Growing into Maturity

Village Expansion: Boon or Burden?

By JIM CARNS
News Editor

The Village of Arlington Heights, with its feet planted on the Northwest Tollway to the south and arms reaching into unincorporated area to the north, is growing into maturity.

But the constantly pressing question is whether the weight it puts on will be lean or fat—whether new growth will be a boon or a burden to the community as it now exists.

A major consideration is the financial stability of a community which has grown beyond its role as a "bedroom village" under the wing of metropolitan Chicago.

BUT ANOTHER important factor is the existing image of a primarily residential community.

At the outset of his administration in May, 1961, Village Pres. John G. Woods set forth a vigorous policy of annexation; since then village size has increased by about 1,500 acres.

Also at that time, it was determined that residential areas within the municipal boundaries, constituting about 90 per cent of total area, were not paying their own way.

According to recommended zoning classifications of land surrounding Arlington Heights, adopted by the village board in February, the character of the village is in for revision.

Even in annexations since 1961, office, research and industrial zoning has taken a new position of importance. More than 200 acres have come in under such zoning already.

BUT PROPOSED zoning classifications for unincorporated land surrounding the village—primarily to the north and south—show large areas in O-R, M-1 or commercial zoning.

These areas, along the Northwest Tollway to the south and above Rand Road to the north, are extremely suitable to non-residential development, Woods says.

The result of such zoning, annexation and future development would be an upward leap in assessed valuation without as great a leap in governmental expense—hopefully.

ELEMENTARY and high school districts, which consume about 70 per cent of the tax dollar, would obviously benefit greatly from increased valuation with no corresponding increase in school population.

The village, which receives less than 10 per cent of the resident's real property tax dollar, stands to benefit from increased sales tax and numerous license fees.

More than 400 additional acres reaching north to Dundee Road between Wilke and State roads will soon be under consideration by the village for pre-annexation, non-residential zoning.

SUCH AREAS as these are on the fringe of a residential community. Their effect upon the image of such a residential area remains to be seen.

With "strict controls and careful village planning," research parks or light industry "could be a big plus for the village," says Woods.

In conjunction with any such development, Woods adds, comes the problem of adequate buffering. About 60 acres of land annexed since 1961 has been zoned for multiple dwelling—mostly between industrial and single-family residential areas.

A good example is the proposed Shalamar Apartment development, which will occupy 20 acres of a 120-acre tract, the remainder of which is planned for non-residential development by Ludwig Marcy and Sons.

ON THE OTHER side of the buffer is a continuing development of single-family residential areas. But the percentage of such zoning in areas recently annexed or eyed for annexation has dropped to between 60 and 70 per cent of total area.

The result of such a reduction, if it is carried past the planning stage, could be a trimming of Arlington Heights' residential "fat."

Woods sees non-residential development, properly controlled, as the tax muscle which should bring the village into maturity as a lean and energetic community.

BUT HE DESCRIBES such balance as a "long range goal," and in fact any major industrial or research development is still years away from completion.

Without denying the time lag, it is evident that the concept of "town of bedrooms" is gone for good.

August 17 Move

Cement Depot Stands Empty

After more than six years of legal maneuvering to remove Consumers' Co. ready-mix concrete depot from downtown Arlington Heights, the plant stands empty.

The outlet, a division of Vulcan Materials Co., of Chicago, halted operations from Northwest Highway near Ridge Avenue July 17 by agreement with the village.

The company has further agreed to remove all equipment from the site by Aug. 17.

The move, which received the highest blessing of Village Pres. John G. Woods speaking for the village board tihs week, was hastened by location of a new site.

THE OPERATION will move to unincorporated area, suitably zoned, near the intersection of Rohlwing Road and Northwest Highway adjacent to Arlington Park.

The village had claimed since 1956 that the ready-mix operation in town was in violation of the existing zoning ordinance which permitted only commercial development in the area, not industrial.

The village had also contended that operation of the facilities constituted a nuisance because of increased truck traffic and the creation of dust from mixing and hauling.

PROPERTY being vacated is under lease from North Western Railway to George Schneberger, Arlington Elevator Co., who in turn leased to Consumers.

Schneberger will reportedly continue to use the property after Consumers facilities are removed.

Leading up to the move, a county zoning ordinance which had limited the new site to M-1, light industrial usage, was found invalid. The ready-mix plant is an M-2 usage.

Apparent reasons for the county finding were the proximity to this site of the Rolling Meadows industrial district, an oil storage area and a concrete molding plant.

SINCE THE MOVE is voluntary on Consumers' part and beneficial to the village, a suit brought by Arlington Heights against the company will be dropped, according to Village Atty. Jack Siegel.

The suit, if successful, would have achieved the same end now accomplished out of court, Siegel said.

TELL OLD ORCHARD DEVELOPMENT PLAN

Peters Named New Assessor

John T. Peters, 1715 N. Verde Ave., Arlington Heights, will assume the duties of Wheeling Township Assessor Aug. 1. He succeeds Theodor Studtmann.

Studtmann, on advice of his physician, offered his resignation to the township board in late June. Peters was appointed July 16 by the same board.

He has lived in the township for more than 20 of his 29 years, and has been in the real estate business for the past 6 years. He moved his office to 101 N. State, Arlington Heights, in April.

BUT PETERS says he will devote full time to his new position beginning Aug. 1. In this capacity he joins ranks with his father, Albert C. Peters, who is now Township Supervisor.

The younger Peters' educational background includes elementary and high school degrees from districts in Wheeling Township; a BA degree in history and political science from Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and extra courses in law and real estate at John Marshall Law School and Northwestern University.

He is a member of the board of directors of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and chairman of the associate division.

Other affiliations include the Arlington Heights Elks Club, Illinois Assn. of Real Estate Boards and National Assn. of Real Estate Boards.

AS TOWNSHIP Assessor, Peters aids the Cook County Assessor in determining real property assessment in his area of the county.

He is also responsible for making personal property assessments and keeping records of all building permits and improvements in the township.

Looking forward to taking office, Peters says his first big job will be to compare aerial overlays of the township covering 55,000 pieces of property with existing property record cards.

The comparison is intended to reveal any substantial changes which have been made and not previously noted.

BUT THE NEW assessor admits frankly that he will not really know the scope of his job until he gets into it.

County officials have indicated they have been doing a lot of work which could have been handled by township assessors in the past, he says.

"This," he adds, "I hope to correct."

A MAKESHIFT OPEN AIR market on a trailer bed has replaced the stand which has drawn protests from the neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wilder, 1505 S. State Rd., for the past several years. Suit against the stand was filed last week by the county zoning administrator. (Staff Photo)

State Road Neighbors Feud

Wilder Stand in Court Again

A neighbors' feud on South State Road, sizzling for several years, has erupted into court for a second time.

Root of the trouble is an outdoor stand operated by Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wilder of 1505 S. State, who have sold produce on their property since 1957.

For the past four years, half a dozen neighbors have been filing a continuous series of complaints with county officials, contending the stand violates county zoning regulations.

THE COUNTY has agreed with them again — zoning administrator Daniel J. Ferrome last week instituted suit for injunction to halt operation of the stand.

He claimed sale of fruits, vegetables, flowers and fertilizers not grown by the Wilders is in violation of the ordinance zoning the area R-3 single family residential.

Farms, defined only as "land used for agriculture," are permitted in unincorporated residential districts. And, produce from the farms may be sold. The question is whether produce from other areas may be sold also.

IN THE FIRST suit in 1960, Palatine Township Justice of the Peace Francis E. Kelly found against extra sales and fined the Wilders $100. However, that ruling was overturned on appeal.

But the neighbors' objections continued, and thick files including letters, photographs and traffic counts accumulated in the zoning administrator's office.

The case was brought to a head again this summer after zoning officials investigated materials at the stand and discovered "onions from Texas, peaches from Carolina, Idaho potatoes, and strawberries from southern Illinois," among other items, according to their reports.

NOTICE OF the violation was issued and suit was started when Wilder refused to comply with requirements.

A complication has been thrown into the case since the investigations; the permanent stand was blown down shortly after the last check and the Wilders have been selling since from a make-shift stand on a trailer bed.

This has curtailed their operations considerably, admits John E. Lundquist of 1519 S. State, their neighbor to the south and spokesman for the complainants, who says, "We have the whole thing under constant surveillance."

NOW, "ALTHOUGH they're staying within limits of what could be grown in the area, they're hauling in tomatoes and corn from elsewhere," he charges. "Their own tomatoes and corn aren't quite ready yet."

The Wilders' attorney, Richard Mugalian, said he didn't know what percentage of the produce sold is not home grown, if any.

"And, if the bulk is their own, incidental purchases would not take them out of the exemption for farmers, who have an absolute right under the ordinance," he said.

THE WILDERS, who have lived at the State Road residence for 15 years, now farm about 19 acres, part owned, part rented, in several areas.

Their first run-in with their neighbors ended quietly. Lundquist said they "were operating strong from other produce depots in 1957 and '58, and brought in pigs to take care of the garbage problem. But they got rid of the pigs before action was taken in 1959."

The original stand was taken down in 1959, and the stand which blew down last month was put up in 1960. The market has been open annually from about May through late fall.

IN RESPONSE to complaints about the stand, Mrs. Wilder this week accused Lundquist of running a machine shop in his backyard. A building tradesman, he said he has a lathe in his garage for "a hobby, personal enjoyment, only."

Other complainants with Lundquist are David B. Welty of 131 E. Emerson, Charles A. Merritt of 125 E. Emerson, Orien Bennett of 319 E. Belmont, Jack Geudtner of 217 E. Emerson and Stan Petry of 1521 S. State. (AF

Club Unveils Huge Project

A 200-acre development to include 700 to 900 apartment and town house units, a restaurant-theatre-hotel complex, a shopping center and two golf courses has been proposed for the Old Orchard Country Club area.

A zoning hearing has been set by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals for Monday, Aug. 12, at 3 p.m. in the Arlington Heights Village Hall.

Projected plans for the development include connection to the Metropolitan Sanitary District sanitary sewer and establishment of a water utility company with wells, pump house and reservoir.

ATTORNEY Stanford L. Glass, representing the owners, stated the development was to be undertaken by the Old Orchard Country Club Corp. There were no plans to sell the property to his knowledge, Glass said.

According to plans submitted to the county, a shopping center covering two acres would be built at the southwest corner of Elmhurst and Camp McDonald Roads.

The apartments would contain one and two-bedroom units, Glass said. The town houses would have two and three bedrooms. There are no efficiency units presently considered, he added.

The apartments and town houses would be built on the periphery of the 200-acre golf club property. According to the zoning application 116.5 acres would be retained for the existing two golf courses—one 18 holes and one nine holes.

ABOUT 50 ACRES are to be devoted to apartment houses, with 15 acres set aside for town houses. The present club house, theatre, restaurant, cocktail lounge and hotel will cover 21 acres.

The development adds to the school enrollments of Prospect Heights Elementary District 23 and High School District 214 (Arlington, Prospect and Forest View Schools.)

"This could automatically double the size of our enrollment," gasped George E. Propeck, superintendent of Prospect Heights schools. Present enrollment is 1,000, Propeck said. "Considering the attractiveness of the site and the size of the proposed units" Propect judged about 1,000 new pupils would be brought into the school system.

This would require enlargement of facilities at the present 40-acre school site at Palatine and Schoenbeck Roads or purchase of a new four to five acre site for construction of another school, Propeck indicated.

HIGH SCHOOL superintendent Harold L. Slichenmyer did some fast adding to estimated school population on learning of the proposed development.

"It might make it necessary to build a new high school in the Prospect Heights area at the same time we are building the proposed Elk Grove High School, he stressed. The Elk Grove High School is tentatively slated for completion in September, 1965, or September, 1966.

In order to build two high schools at the same time, district voters (and taxpayers) would have to approve two school bond issues.

Attorney Glass noted that the projected plans appeared to be an answer to retaining large green areas in suburban land while realizing a profit or return in line with the value of the land.

THE GOLF club area is in both the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect plans for eventual inclusion in the municipal lists. Under the Arlington Heights plan, the area is zoned R-1A, the highest zoning classification under the village code.

Mount Prospect Tuesday night annexed an irregular strip of land south of Rand Road, southeast of Golf Lane, north of Euclid and west of Meadow Lane, making the club contiguous with the village.

Police Advise

Arlington Heights police offered time-tried advice to two youths picked up for fighting on the street Saturday.

"Get yourselves some boxing gloves and head for the gymnasium," it was suggested.

Birds, Trucks Stir

'Precious' Sleep—Is Invasion Necessary?

"To sleep or not to sleep . . ." this is a question some Arlington Heights residents have not been allowed to answer for themselves.

There are a great many unavoidable noises in this village of nearly 35,000, from jets overhead to children at play.

But at 6 a.m. when only the birds and a few commuters are stirring, modern Packmaster refuse trucks operated by Laseke Disposal Service have stirred another set.

MEMBERS OF this group awake involuntarily to the melody of rattling cans and packer trucks compared by one resident to "a jet engine winding up."

He lives at the beginning of one of Laseke's residential refuse pickup routes, one which crews commence regularly at 6 a.m.

Those living at the beginning of commercial pickup routes in Arlington Heights are confronted with similar sounds at 4 a.m., but these residents are, of course, rare.

THOSE MOST affected by noise—a minor segment of the village population—live along the first segments of residential routes, picked up between 6 and 7 a.m.

But is the inconvenience to even a few village residents necessary? H. W. Laseke, head of Laseke Disposal Service, says yes.

Working under contract with the village, the disposal company does all its own route planning. The village's interest is simple—an adequate job at a moderate price.

LASEKE SAYS the early starting times for both commercial and residential pickup routes are necessary, though routes are normally through at 2:30 p.m.

"We start early because we can't get through town easily at peak traffic times," he says. "We can do the routes faster by starting early."

The biggest problem, Laseke says, is avoiding conflict with race track traffic as much as possible.

HE COMPLAINS that even operating during the most efficient hours is hardly economical under the present village contract. "This is the only town where we take everything put out for us," he says.

The contract is up for renegotiation this fall. Other problems may be solved then, but Laseke has not expressed an interest in changing route starting times.

There are no noise ordinances or provisions in the existing Laseke contract which would limit starting times, according to Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

THERE ARE now 11 trucks in operation on the busiest pickup days, Laseke says—nine residential and two commercial. On the lightest days there are only four or five in operation.

First-hour pickup on all of these routes takes in a great many homeowners, but not all object to, or are even aware of, the morning noise.

One comments that he doesn't even realize they have come until he sees empty cans in the morning — even when sleeping with open windows.

BUT ANOTHER resident on a nearby route calls the early pickups "an infringement on adequate rest."

"The convenience of village residents should be considered whenever possible in the conduct of all village services," he contends. (AF NOISE IS NECESSARY in modern trash pickup. Even if cans and barrels are handled quietly, modern trucks used by Laseke Disposal System have motorized compressors found objectionable in early morning hours. (A

Arlington High

Flood Problem Stymies Board

District 214 board members are damming Arlington High School's recurrent flooding problem, but they still haven't found a solution.

Friday night's storm flooded the basement to more than double the two-inch level expected during moderate rains. At times the water approached six inches, level of the electrical connections. The fire department was called in for assistance before water hit the sockets.

WATER DRAINS into the area — service corridors between the gymnasium and main classrooms building on Ridge Avenue — from a delivery driveway to a below-ground entrance. During a heavy rain a sewer at the bottom of the drive, instead of draining the water, spouts it upward because of pressure.

Normally, about two inches is expected to flood into the building, down the stairs and into two major study halls, the cafeteria and boiler room.

A sump pump is maintained to drain the section, but the water just goes back to the sewer and erupts again. Friday night firemen used two extra pumps and a hose to force the water out to the street and on to other sewers.

BUT THIS didn't save the work of complete re-cleaning of the area, which had just been all spruced up and readied for a wax job.

The board has considered two solutions to the difficulty, but neither looks feasible.

One is erection of a stand pipe to hold water as the driveway sewer drains. However, the pipe would block trucks from entering the drive.

The second possibility is a shut-off valve in the sewer, but this would prevent drainage even during mild rains.

Dunton Ave. Fire Starts in Kitchen

A fire started in the kitchen Sunday afternoon caused $10,000 to $12,000 damages to the Henry B. Neumann home at 315 N. Dunton.

A dog was the only one injured in the fire; no one in the family was at home. The dog, discovered upstairs, was taken out through a window and revived by firemen with a resuscitator.

SMOKE DAMAGE resulted throughout the house from the blaze, which spread through a hall into the bathroom and dining room, according to Fire Chief Harvey Carothers.

The department's whole crew and three trucks answered the call. The fire was put out in about an hour and a half.

Firemen answered six other calls during the week, five for minor fires and one for an inhalator.

Metal Company Expands

Doubled working space at Armor Metal Products, Inc., 1436 E. Davis St., will be ready for full occupancy by the middle of next month.

The company is adding 6,000 square feet to its original 6,000-square-foot building to expand current facilities, according to Joseph Nikoden, president.

Located in Arlington for the past three years, Armor is a metal fabricating firm specializing in hydraulic reservoirs for use in the machine tool industry. Its products are shipped to both coasts and around the metropolitan area.

THE FIRM has 15 to 20 employes.

The project at Armor is one of 54 giving June the greatest number recorded for a single month by the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

June's industrial developments represented an investment of $120,230,000, compared to an investment of $9,921,000 for June 1962. (A

'Showtime' Winds Up at Polar Dome Sunday, July 28

Don Ameche's International Showtime currently being seen at the Polar Dome in Santa's Village at Dundee, Ill., will wind up its stay in Chicagoland this coming Sunday, July 28.

The show will be seen twice daily, at 2 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., with the exception of Saturday and Sunday when matinees will also be staged at 4:30 p.m. There is no Sunday evening show.

After leaving Dundee, the show will travel to Washington, D.C.; Norfolk, Va.; Providence, R. I.; Boston, Mass.; Nashville, Tenn. and several other cities, winding up its season in Texas in October.

THE NBC-TV spectacular has been a decided hit with American circus buffs. The International Showtime's European style of presentation, with all the acts performing in one center ring, has enabled Don Ameche to present a far more intimate type of show.

The Anden's poodles, a dog act from Norway, and Pallenberg's bears, a talented group of animals from Germany; have been prime favorites. Also popular are the Husteris, a husband and wife team of sway pole acrobats, and the Rosell Troupe, acclaimed the most thrilling of all high-wire acts. (BILL

Court Reforms Outlined

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel spoke on "The Effect of Judicial Reform on Local Courts" Friday in Springfield.

The address was delivered before a conference of newly-elected officials sponsord by the Illinois Municipal League.

In his talk Siegel dwelled on the manner in which an Illinois constitutional amendment placing justices of the peace and municipal magistrates within the circuit court system would affect local courts and ordinance enforcement.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Police Magistrate Court is affected by the changes, Siegel said as an example. Under the new system, which will go into effect Jan. 1, 1964, this court will become a court of record.

This means, Siegel continued, that cases in magistrate court will not have to be re-tried in case of protest. They will go to the Circuit Court of Appeals or the Supreme Court.

Also, the position of police magistrate will no longer be elective. After their present terms, magistrates and justices of the peace will be subject to appointment by the circuit court judge.

AFTER JAN. 1, court costs will go to the state, rather than to municipalities, though fines will still be allocated to municipal bodies.

Salaries of the jurists will, in turn, be paid by the state on a fixed scale.

All of the implications of the new system are hard to determine before it actually goes into effect, Siegel concluded. (AF

Six Teens In 'Gang' Are Fined

Six Arlington Heights youths were fined $100 apiece and costs last week for their part in what Police Magistrate Robert C. Buckley described as "gang action."

But half of four of the six fines were suspended in consideration of those youths' cooperation with police during interrogation.

The boys, all 17, found guilty of disorderly conduct were Carl F. Hahn, 415 N. Evergreen; James Koeppen, 501 N. State; Walter Pagel, 508 Drury; Peter Rickerson, 1015 N. Dunton; Barry Juhl, 831 N. Salem, and Michael Owens, 1 N. Prindle.

They, three juveniles, and Ronald Carda, 17, of 326 S. Waterman, were apprehended June 26 after a three-car chase around the Arlington Heights downtown area.

HAHN TESTIFIED that two juveniles in a car had made an obscene gesture toward him and three passengers in his car. He chased, and Carda, driving another car, joined in the chase.

Carda's case has been continued until Aug. 7, when he will also face charges of possession of alcohol under age and disorderly conduct on a different occasion.

The chase ended with the juveniles' car pinned between Hahn's and Carda's, the youths testified at their trial. Carda is charged with leaving his car and breaking a window in the trapped auto.

THE JUVENILES who were the objects of the chase are to appear in Cook County Family Court. The other juvenile involved, and occupant of Hahn's car, was released after station adjustment.

Judge Buckley, in sentencing the youths who appeared, told them that "as members of a gang you are all responsible under the law for the worst act committed by any member."

Swedes Inspect Subdivision Looking for Building Ideas

A delegation of 57 Swedes on a 20-day search for ideas in American housing stopped off in Arlington Heights for a view of subdivision planning and development.

On a trip arranged by the U.S. State Department, the Swedes were guests of Miller Builders for a two-hour inspection tour through Greenbrier July 13.

HEAD OF the Swedish delegation was Herbert Larsson, member of parliament: the group included architects, engineers, planners and government officials. The Swedish government is encouraging American-type subdividing and sent the delegation to study methods throughout this country.

Swedish cities consist largely of multiple and row housing. Large communities of single family residences have never been developed.

During the tour of Greenbrier, company president Albert J. Miller explained how a large-scale development must be planned within the concept of the total community. He related the steps taken in channeling ideas through professional planners and municipal government and described the way a development is related to a village and services required.

He said, for instance, that Greenbrier — which contains about 240 acres and will have 600-700 homes when completed— donated three park sites and one school site after preliminary planning surveys.

Miller production manager Fred Wilkins mentioned curvilinear streets, retention basins and adherence to building codes as examples showing that proper planning will benefit everyone concerned.

IN ANSWER to a question about prefabrication techniques, viewed in the East, Miller architect William Ballard told the Swedes builders in this area are more inclined to conventional construction because cost, design, elevations and other factors can be more easily controlled.

"And we're interested in building every part of the house, rather than taking something that's pre-set," he said.

In the metropolitan area for three days, the group also visited subdivisions on the west and south sides of Chicago. Arrangements for the Chicago tours were set up through the Home Builders Assn. of Chicago.

In addition to talking with builders, the Swedish delegation consulted with persons representative of everyone concerned with building — village managers, architects, traffic managers, civil engineers, and police and fire brigade inspectors.

Appearance of a collegiate trumpet trio will highlight the Arlington Area Concert Band's second concert on the lawn tonight, Thursday.

The program by the 65-piece band, directed by F. C. Schmoyer, band director at Arlington High School, will begin at 8 at Recreation Park.

The trio, consisting of Coke Smith of Mount Prospect, Jeff Inkley of Prospect Heights and Larry Smith of Arlington Heights, will present "Carnival Variations," by Jacoby and McRae. The vacationing students represent the University of Indiana, Southern Illinois and the University of Illinois at Chicago, respectively. Inkley and Larry Smith are both graduates of Arlington Heigh School.

ANOTHER special attraction will be the appearance of Arlington High's national and international baton twirling champion, Jim Hallett, in "The Billboard March," by John Klohr.

Instrumental soloists will be Norm Schmidt of Prospect High School, baritone horn, in "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," and Paul Ukleja of Forest View High School, trumpet in "Pavanne" by Morton Gould.

Other numbers on the program are "Block M March," "Fantasy on American Sailing Songs," "Irish Tune from County Derry," "All Sports March," "The Desert Song," "The Stars and Stripes Forever," and "Silhouettes," a medley of Jerome Kern melodies. (A

Hub Cap Thefts Reported

Two Arlington Heights residents reporting hub cap thefts or suspected theft last Thursday both identified a black and white 1957 Mercury as the car carrying the suspected thieves.

Ralph R. McCullogh, 716 N. Lynnwood, told police two young men parked the car down the block before taking the two hub caps from his car Thursday morning. They ran back to the car and drove off after the theft, he said.

Thursday night Robert Campbell, 611 S. Walnut, reported three boys drove away in the same or a similar car after "crawling around" a car belonging to his neighbor, Sam H. Clark Jr. of 608 S. Walnut, and possibly stealing the hub caps.

Police could not find the car around either area after the complaints. (A

Winners Crowned In Twist Contest

Eight winners were crowned Friday night in a twist contest sponsored by the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce as a part of Arlington Heights' Sidewalk Days celebration.

The champs each received merchandise certificates for various amounts from participating businessmen.

WINNERS IN the 12-and-under age group were Margie Merkel, 602 S. Dryden, and Gary Wheeler, 105 S. Dunton, first; and Jill Schwank, 526 S. Dunton, and John Keller, 106 S. Dunton, second.

In the 13-17 year division, winning couples were Sue Johnson, 826 N. Mitchell, and Larry Downs, 230 S. Bristol, first; and Kay Jorgensen, 105 N. Phelps, and Ed Kubajak, 1725 Bonita, Mount Prospect, second.

Torrential rains pushed the dance contest from Dunton Court parking lot to a commercial garage across the street, with over 200 persons appearing to watch and dance.

Randy Opela's band provided the music for both dance and contest.

JUDGES FOR the event were Dr. Sherwin Mendell, Glencoe, who has a background in radio-TV entertainment; June Lippert, Arlington Heights dance instructress, and Ken Sherman, emcee of the Sherman show on WTAQ radio.

Delores Eiler, operator of a dance studio in Arlington Heights, directed the contest. (A

Girls and boys will be divided into four age groups with ribbons being awarded to the top three finishers in each event in each age group.

The midget class is for children who have just completed first or second grade; intermediates are those who were in third or fourth; juniors - fifth and sixth, and seniors - seventh and eighth.

OFFICIATING at the Olympics will be members of the local Lions Club and the Arlington Heights Park District recreation staff.

Evening events will consist of individual swimming competition in the crawl and backstroke. Boys and girls wil be divided into five age groups; 8 and under, 9 and 10, 11 and 12, 13 and 14, and 15 and 16. Starting time of the final will be 7:30 p.m.

Jaycees to Hear Report on Comas

All men between 21 and 35 are eligible to join the Jaycees and are invited to the meeting.

International relations, with special focus on South America, is the theme for the Arlington Heights Jaycees meeting next Wednesday.

The program will begin at 8 p.m., following dinner at 6:30 at the Colt Restaurant, Rand Road.

HEADING OFF the program will be a 30-minute documentary CBS showing economic, social and political conditions of several South American countries, with commentary by Frank Reynolds.

A short film on Comas, Peru, Arlington Heights' adopted sister city will follow. Wayne Brennan, key organizer of the village's Inter-American Friendship Council, will give a report on current projects for Comas. Brennan earned a Jaycee district service award last year for his work with the council.

Council President Biancardi Anthony will also be present for the discussion.

SECOND SPEAKER will be the state Jaycee international relations chairman, Fritz Gartner, who will describe Chicago, state and national projects to help cement international relations.

Jaycees are also planning to invite a foreign journalist as guest for the meeting.

Civic Orchestra To Play August 29

Members of the Arlington Civic Orchestra are rehearsing for a "pops" concert under the stars, slated for Aug. 29 at Pioneer Park.

Although the complete program has not yet been selected, it will feature numbers such as selections from "Sound of Music," according to director Mel Kasen.

This will be the second outdoor concert for the orchestra. It played last September at Hasbrook.

KASEN encourages any interested musicians in the area, particularly string players currently in short supply, to join the group, which numbers about 50. Practices are each Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Miner Junior High, Miner at Dryden.

The orchestra has just undergone revamping of the administrative set-up, and a constitution has been written. New officers are president, Robert Fritz, former treasurer, who succeeds Paul Roy, now business manager; vice president, Jack Cooper, and secretary-treasurer, Dorothy Coobs.

It's 'Big Daddy'

Patent's Anniversary Observed on July 31

Necessity may be the mother of invention, but its Big Daddy is the patent.

July 31 is the anniversary of the day when the first patent was issued in the United States. That was in 1790 — little more than a year after the new government began operating.

It was only a process for "making pot and pearl ashes," otherwise known as potash, reports World Book Encyclopedia, but so important was the event that President Washington himself signed the patent awarded to Samuel Hopkins of Vermont.

ENDORSING THE document was the then Secretary of State Jefferson, no mean gadgeteer himself, whose inventions include the swivel chair and the dumb - waiter.

Why all the fuss about the patent?

Statesmen before and after Washington have praised it as a spur to invention and hence, technological advance. And some observers have even credited it with the Western world's high standard of living.

A patent is simply a limited monopoly which secures to an inventor the fruits of his labor. For 17 years he has the exclusive right to make, sell, or use his invention. Of course, it may be a profitless 17 years... if some part of his invention has been patented by an earlier inventor who refuses to let him use it.

BUT AT THE end of that period, the invention becomes accessible to the public at large and scientific knowledge is increased.

Women began making their contributions to scientific knowledge as early as 1809, when Mary Kies was granted a patent for a method of weaving straw with silk or thread.

A few thousand patents later, a former Congressman from Illinois named Abraham Lincoln received one for "A Device for Buoying Vessels over Shoals." The device must have been a sucecss, because Lincoln later declared appreciatively, "The Patent System added the fuel of interest to the fire of genius."

ABOUT THIS time, unfortunately, the fire of genius was just what the examiners were demanding proof of, before they would grant a patent.

Inventors who labored long and hard over their creations but were unable to show that spark of "divine madness" were turned away, while less-than-brilliant tinkerers who might have stumbled onto an idea or a device by accident were rewarded.

In 1952 Congress decided there weren't enough geniuses to go around and changed the patent laws.

THE REQUIREMENT, however, proved no obstacle to Mark Twain, who received three patents. In 1873 he was awarded one for "Mark Twain's Self-Pasting Scrapbook," a book of blank pages coated with gum or veneer.

He sold 25,000 copies during the first royalty period, leading one writer to comment that this was well enough for a book that did not contain a single word that critics could praise or condemn."

Arrested On Obscene Book Charge

ST. LOUIS, (UPI)—The first arrest under the county's new anti obscene literature law was made last night with a raid on a food shop.

Booked on suspicion of offering obscene literature for sale and for allegedly selling five per cent beer on Sunday was Walter Uhlendorf, the proprietor.

COUNTY detectives raided the De Luxe Food Shop and confiscated 125 publications including "Return to Peyton Place," "The Chapman Report," and 11 copies of Playboy magazine.

The maximum penalty for violation is a $1,000 fine and one year in jail. Uhlendorf was released under $1,500 bond.

FRACTURED COLLAR BONE was suffered by Steven Carroll in May when he fell while playing in a neighbor's backyard. Steve is recovering nicely by now, and was able to come to Paddock Publications office last week with his mother, Mrs. Ritamae Carroll, 74 Ridgewood Road, Elk Grove Village, for his insurance check. Mother and son are shown receiving the check from Bob Paddock, vice president of Paddock Publications, which offers subscribers the opportunity to participate in The Suburbanite insurance program. Blue Cross Rate Talk Cancelled

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — A scheduled meeting to discuss a petition by Chicago Blue Cross to raise rates by 35 to 40 per cent to an estimated 80,000 certificate holders today was canceled.

Glen Lovekamp, chief actuary of the Illinois Department of Insurance, said the meeting was called off because Chicago Blue Cross "was unable to obtain a full complement" of company officials in attendance.

LOVEKAMP had described the meeting as an "informal skull session" designed to stave off the proposed rate increase.

Lovekamp, contacted in Springfield, said he would wait until State Insurance Director Richard Hershey returns from vacation before deciding to schedule another meeting with the Blue Cross officials.

Predicts Economic Growth by Regions

DES MOINES, IOWA, (UPI)—Iowa's future lies in "regional development of a multi-county basis" and recognition of the "vital inter-dependence of urban and rural areas," a research and planning firm said.

In a report to the Iowa Development Commission, Arthur D. Little Inc., Cambridge, Mass., said Iowa's industrial growth will revolve around regional development in units of several counties rather than around individual community development efforts.

The survey charted Iowa into 12 economic regions but said the plan was "A guide for tomorrow, rather than a blueprint for immediate implementation."

CARROLL WORLAN, director of the development commission, said the state agency has been using "what virtually amounts to an area concept in its presentation to prospective industries for quite some time although the various economic areas have not been defined as such until now."

He said the development commission is now cooperating with Iowa State University in a development program for Tenco, a 10-county area in south-central and southeastern Iowa. Another area development program is underway for north-central Iowa. (A-14

The whole of 4-H is career related. Millions of 4-H alumni point with pride to their early interest kindled through 4-H. You have heard them say:

"When I carried a 4-H shop project I became interested in machinery—I've been buying, selling and working around machinery ever since."

"When I attended a 4-H conference at State College, I became interested in studying for forestry."

"Our 4-H club took a tour to this plant many years ago and I resolved that I would get into the design department. It took a good many years but I made it."

"Through helping some younger 4-H'ers as a junior leader, I found that I really could teach."

Yes, wherever you find 4-H alumni—in business, industry, science, agriculture, service occupations, entertainment or legislative halls—4-H helped.

4-H helps in careers:

By stressing good work habits, pride in workmanship, responsibility for work well done.

By providing real life opportunities to cooperate and learn to work with others.

By continued attention to better methods based on scientific principles.

By encouragement to continue learning every day to find out "why."

By opportunities to get to know, first-hand, men and women who are skilled and often leaders in their fields.

By help from dedicated 4-H leaders and parents interested in developments of the potentials of each boy and girl.

The 17th annual 4-H Fair is scheduled for Arlington Heights, August 9 through 11. This is the same fair that was held at the Arlington Park Jockey Club for many years. The fair will be held in the Arlington Market Shopping Center. A large tent will be set up for the livestock. All small 4-H exhibits will be displayed in the Miner Jr. High School building across from the Market.

4-H club members will be showing their projects at this Fair for judging. All exhibits will be rated.

Anyone that would be interested in the project work of the 4-H members is welcome to walk through the exhibits.

Kurtz Leads White-Water Canoeists to World Meet

David A. Kurtz, an Arlington High School graduate who says he "never did much in athletics," will represent the United States in the white-water canoeing world championships at Spittal, Austria, next month.

Kurtz, 1950 graduate now living in State College, Pa., has also served as coach for four of the other 11 U. S. team members.

White-water or slalom canoeing, rather new in the United States, is a rough sport. Contestants race on rapids-infested rivers, slipping their canoes through a series of gates or between colored poles hung from wires strung across a river.

"I disliked the contact sport of football and didn't have the punch to win in track," writes Kurtz, who moved to Arlington from Palatine in 1939.

BUT NOW, at the age of 31, he has spent eight years as adviser to a Boy Scout Explorer post concentrating on slalom canoeing. His first contact with the scouts was as a member of Arlington's Troop 7, sponsored by First Methodist Church, where he earned the Eagle Scout rank.

Four of the team members going with him to Europe are in his Explorer post. A fifth representative from State College has been a teammate of Kurtz's since 1959.

Expecting the sport to be tougher on European streams, Kurtz and his proteges have already gone over to begin practicing. During the rest of the year, "we'll run any river, any time. If the temperature is 25 or above, we'll go."

ALTHOUGH American participation in white-water canoeing has steadily increased, U.S. enthusiasts are still about five years behind the Europeans, Kurtz said. The United States had three boats at the last championships in 1961; this year there will be 10.

Other countries competing include Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, France, East and West Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Switzerland, Russia and Yugoslavia.

Because no federal funds are used to help finance the canoeing team, members are expected to pay their own way. Individual costs of about $880 for the State College delegates are partially supported by more than $2,000 collected by the Elks Club in a fund-raising drive. (A FORMER ARLINGTON HEIGHTS resident, David A. Kurtz of State College, Pa., battles the rapids on a Pennsylvania river as he prepares for the world championship white-water canoeing meet in Spittal, Austria, next month.

Worst Toll Ever

300 Elms in Village Expected to Succumb

Toll of dutch elm disease in Arlington Heights this summer is running highest of any year since the disease was first spotted here in 1956.

More than 300 trees will probably be victims of the disease, estimates village forester Evans Wells. He said the village may lose 150-200 trees from parkways, and property owners may lose 100-150.

Although the toll is greater, it is not exceptionally high, considering the number of trees in the village, Wells said. There are 18,000 trees on parkways alone.

Peak of the season has passed since the disease set in last month.

Many of the trees have already been spotted and are waiting for removal. Scouting for the disease and checking trees is Wells' chief job as a part-time village employe.

In addition to diseased trees, "it is vitally important now that residents be aware of and eliminate any elm wood on their property, in fireplace piles or anywhere," Wells said. "Wood lying around is a major factor in transmitting the disease."

The forester indicated he would be glad to check for the disease on any resident's request.

Removal of diseased trees is one of two major steps in the program to rid the village of dutch elm disease, started three years ago. This "sanitation" element to destroy the beetles' breeding places includes pruning, cutting down, digging out stumps, and burning the wood away from the village.

By ordinance, residents may be compelled to get rid of privately owned diseased trees. Last weekend Wells issued notices requiring removal to five more residents, four on the 900 N. Dunton block. This localization of the disease was incidental; it is scattered in trees all around the village, Wells explained.

Second phase of the anti-disease program is spraying for the beetles in the spring before leaves are out and again in the fall after leaves have dropped. (A

Police Network to Aid Data Exchange

The Arlington Heights Police Department is one of the initial subscribers to an advanced communications hookup designed for inter-departmental exchange of information.

An unobtrusive teletype machine in one corner of the police radio room can reach out an ever-increasing number of police departments in Chicago and suburban communities, state police, Springfield, National Auto Theft Bureau, and county enforcement bodies.

RADIO communication is also available with all of these enforcement agencies, but the closed-circuit teletype leaves a permanent, confidential record of all information, and there is no congestion.

License checks to the Secretary of State's office in Springfield, previously made by radio, have been cut from an average of 15 minutes to three or four minutes by teletype.

Besides its use in checking vehicle registrations, the network provides for exchange of facts about missing persons, circulation of reports of stolen property, major crime flashes and news of escapes.

The machines are designed so that one police department is able to hook up with one or all of the other departments on the network at one time.

THE SYSTEM was engineered by Illinois Bell Telephone Co., and has been approved by the Illinois Assn. of Chiefs of Police.

Arlington Heights is the only municipality in the immediate northwest suburban area with such a hookup. (A

Liquor Store Sold; Another One Opens

A new package liquor store has opened in Arlington Heights and another liquor store has changed hands.

Lee Willard Liquors has been doing business for about three weeks at 1010 S. State, sharing a building with a medical center.

Management of Parkway Liquors at 17 E. Campbell is changing to Teddy's Cut Rate Liquors Inc., although name of the store will remain the same.

PARTNERS IN Lee Willard Liquors are Willard Heimsoth of 1419 N. Highland and Lee Steffan of Park Ridge. Heimsoth owned and operated Will's Pure Oil Service Station, 216 S. State Rd., for the past 10 years, and Steffan worked for Kuhlman and Nagel Inc., Des Plaines, for 15 years,

New Parkway managers are Charles, Wiliam and Gus Karavidas. Former manager was Arnold Friese, 1004 N. Highland.

Both stores operate under Arlington Heights class "B" permits for package stores. Number of the licenses is set by the village at seven. All are now taken.

Lee Willard Liquors picked up the license formerly held by Festival Liquors on Northwest Highway, and the Parkway permit was reissued to the new management. (A

New Thrills Found On Mystery Shelf

by BETTY AINSLIE

The detective story fan samples many a new mystery, but here are a few extra good ones to whet the appetite of the person who rarely reads one of these thrillers.

All can be found on the recent mystery shelf of Arlington Heights Memorial Library.

"Burden of Proof," by Jeffrey Ashford, drops you into the middle of a courtroom scene with the first page, then flashbacks unravel the story—a tale of a man who doesn't seem to be guilty of murder, but continually has the sticky finger of guilt pointing in his direction.

It's written with a bit of English humor, and designed to keep the reader interested and uncertain until the last pages.

A NEW Inner Sanctum mystery is called "The Prowler," by Francis Rickett. A doctor and his wife are killed by a burglar, a drug addict, a mental patient?

This is the problem to be solved in this story. Why should anyone want to do away with such a seemingly fine couple? Residents of a small town become involved in the crime, and work to solve the mystery.

Money willed to an island doctor leads to the solving of an old mystery in "The Sin Mark," by Margaret Hood.

In the unraveling of this story of adultery and murder, the people of Fox Island suddenly have the chance to look at their own lives. There's plenty of local color from an author who knows the islands, and writes the dialect with ease.

"Killy," by Donald Westlake, is an unusual detective story. A tale of labor unions and their growth is background for the solution of several murders and the makings of a different book. A young idealist suddenly finds that life is very real, and very much in earnest.

A TIMELY story of international intrigue and love is "A Call From Austria," by Martha Albrand.

Here a man searches for his missing brother. Robert, the hunter, realizes that the person who did away with his brother would not hesitate in murdering him also.

Robert is a writer who discovers that the articles he has written about a situation in South America could well be the cause of his death.

A suspenseful novel with a great deal of humor is "A Fire In His Hand," by Michael Grieg. Set at a Halloween party, a game of murder turns into a comedy of errors. The plot involves two people: a nephew who is trying to get his aunt's money, and the aunt who slyly sees through the whole affair.

Larcenies Lead List of Crimes

Larceny led the list of criminal complaints filed with the Arlington Heights police department last month — nine cases of larceny over $50, 18 under $50 and 10 stolen bicycles were reported.

These bring the totals to date this year to 41 for larcenies over $50, 68 for larcenies and 47 for stolen bicycles, according to Chief L. W. Calderwood.

Total number of complaints for the month was 368, less than last June's 374, but bringing the year's record to 1,840, compared to 1,782 through the first six months of last year. However, 12 of the complaints were unfounded.

Thirty cases involving juveniles, 25 boys and five girls, were handled by the department. Twenty-six of the cases were adjusted in the station, and four were referred to family court.

Total auto accidents for the month numbered 41, making 294 for tye year, including one injury accident. The year's record is 294, compared to last year's 265; injury accidents this year total 15, last year 33.

Some 383 arrests were made for traffic violations, with speeding topping the list at 240. Convictions numbered 309.

The department issued 686 parking tickets during the month. (A

Bikes on Sidewalks Face Confiscation

Bicycle riders, take notice.

Seeking a means to alleviate the obstruction of sidewalks caused by parked bicycles, Police Chief L. W. Calderwood has recommendedd they be impounded until claimed by their owners.

CALDERWOOD has suggested to Village Manager L. A. Hanson that bikes on sidewalks where racks are provided and not used could be picked up by police. Youngsters could claim their bicycles by going to the police station accompanied by their parents.

Officers have been instructed to request youngsters to straighten out their bikes and park them away from pedestrian traffic on sidewalks where no racks are provided.

Calderwood also suggested that merchants who cater to younsters could provide bicycle racks where needed.

Suburbs Hear About O'Hare Proposal

Stringent Ceiling On All Building

by LEE SECHLER
Staff Writer

Jets and prop-driven aircraft provided background sights and sounds Tuesday morning as representatives from the State Department of Aeronautics, the villages circling O'Hare Airport and the City of Chicago met to discuss zoning regulations which would affect the issuing of building permits in villages as far away as Wheaton and Palatine.

Conducted as a public hearing by the State Department of Aeronautics, the meeting was attended by approximately 40 people and officials with papers spread over the green felt-covered tables.

The zoning proposals presented at the meeting were drawn up by the City of Chicago in the form of an amendment to a 1945 act.

They state that a hazard area now exists; an area which circles the airport and includes parts of all the villages and counties falling in that circle.

Present at Tuesday morning's meeting in the Seven Continents Restaurant at O'Hare were representatives from Arlington Heights, Roselle, Elk Grove, Villa Park, Itasca, Palatine, Mount Prospect and various industries in Cook and DuPage counties.

VERY LITTLE was accomplished at the meeting, except possibly to clear the air and set the stage for developments later.

Joseph Koval, who conducted the hearing for the department of aeronautics, said the zoning proposals would be studied by the state department, with due respect to the questions raised Tuesday.

He said each person present would be mailed a copy of the State Department of Aeronautics' proposal.

The various vilage officials and industrial representatives who receive copies would then submit written opinions.

Koval, when asked by another reporter to estimate how long all this would take, replied that he had no idea.

Philip Zeitlin, chief zoning planner for Chicago, and William A. Downes Jr., commissioner of aviation for Chicago, explained the proposed zoning ordinance and the operation and scope of O'Hare Airport's operation.

Zeitlin, who said over two years work went into the zoning proposal, was asked the most questions by village representatives and officials.

Safety was the key factor stressed by both Zeilin and Downes at the meeting.

"The schedule of this country is geared to the schedule of this airport," explained Downes in his opening statement before the assembled representatives.

"When it's disrupted here, it's disrupted everywhere."

"We had over 417,000 operations from O'Hare last year and we have over 1,000 operations per day at this field now; 13 million passengers last year and over that this year.

"It's our obligation to passengers and the FAA to keep the approaches to the runways safe," he explained.

AND THIS is where the zoning proposal comes in.

The hazard area referred to in the proposal is as much as 10 to 20 miles from the ends of the runways which fan out in all directions.

The most critical, according to Zeitlin, would be from the end of a runway out 10,200 feet. In this zone, nothing over 50 feet would be allowed, including trees.

No maps were available for the press, and maps that had been mailed to village officials were impossible to make out.

However, from figures released, the proposal would extend out as far as Palatine and Wheeling in Cook County and Wheaton in DuPage County.

This means, if the letter of the proposal is followed, that the director of the Illinois Department of Aeronautics would have to approve all building permits in the villages circling the airport, even if it were only for an "outhouse" as a representative of Villa Park remarked.

Zeitlin, as an example, listed a day camp for children as a hazard if it was within the 10,200-foot zone from the end of the runway.

Robert Hollander, village manager of Palatine, said he was not against the proposal insofar as making O'Hare safer, but was against the idea of the director of the Illinois Department of Aeronautics issuing all building permits.

"Maybe that's the way state and federal government is run. But it's not the way we do business," he remarked.

HOLLANDER was told that it was not the purpose of the proposal to have every building permit submitted to the director, but only those which might be in violation of the proposal.

Hollander suggested that since the intent of the provision was for all building permits to be approved by the director, that the specific provision be changed and eliminate this possible problem.

A builder asked if he would have to change his building in a subdivision located within the pie-shaped wedge from the end of the runway even if part of the subdivision was finished.

"It's possible," was the reply.

Zeitlin, however, pointed out that the proposal, as presented by Chicago, was not retroactive if adopted.

But non-conforming structures within the "safe" zones and covered by the zoning would have to be marked as deemed necessary by the FAA and the State Department of Aeronautics.

The chief zoning planner for Chicago said the proposed zoning regulations were based upon the size and layout of O'Hare, the type of equipment using the field, height above sea level and general topography.

Also consulted were FAA regulations on approach and safety factors, and the 1952 Presidential Airport Commission (Doolittle Report).

It was interesting to learn that Chicago doesn't have any specific zoning regulations concerning O'Hare and no agency of the government had adopted any — at least now.

BUT CHICAGO has made a commitment to the FAA to protect the approaches to existing runways and make sure they are safe for operation.

Even if some traffic was diverted or returns to Midway, as has been the talk for a number of months or longer, the zoning proposals for O'Hare wouldn't be relaxed.

Zeitlin said it was a matter of safety.

The Chicago proposal would block any new small, private airports within 10 miles of O'Hare.

Approximately seven or eight now exist within the area covered by the proposal.

A representative of the Association of Commerce and Industry asked if an effort would be made to eliminate any of the airports if the proposal was passed.

Zeitlin's first answer was yes, and then he did a little backward running with words and said no.

It was pointed out, however, that the private airports were licensed by the state and legal action could be taken if they became a hazard to O'Hare traffic.

ACCORDING TO the proposal any violation of the regulations would constitute a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $200 and removal of the hazard.

Each day the violation continued would constitute a separate offense.

One runway is directed southwest, directly into the heart of DuPage County and directly across the villages of Bensenville and Addison, all the way to Wheaton.

Most aircraft approaching O'Hare for landings are from northwest (across Rolling Meadows), north and east.

Takeoffs vary an even greater extent, but are largely to the southwest, west, northwest and east.

Brides and Vacationers Dominate Summer Scene

Sidelights Of Arlington Heights

Dorothy Meyer, CL 3-2298 Elsie Jedd, CL 3-5982

In this 20th Century, the good old summertime is no longer an enforced period of relaxing between sowing and harvesting, for modern industry and transportation allow us freedom to travel and hold weddings at any season of the year. But brides and vacationers still favor the lazy, hazy days of summer, and Arlington Heights social news revolves mostly around cupid and points East, West, North and South.

Mrs. Paul E. George, 932 S. Evergreen, gave a tea and miscellaneous bridal shower July 17 for Miss Diana Kelly, daughter of the William Kellys of Arlington Heights, who will be married Aug. 3, to Joseph Reading, son of the Joseph Readings of Crystal Lake. The wedding will take place in St. James Catholic Church of Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Reading presided at the tea table and guests included Miss Kelly's college friends, neighbots and relatives.

Miss Nancy Carole Scott, who will be married July 27 to Robert A. Johann, was guest of honor at a miscellaneous bridal shower last Thursday. It was given by her sister, Mrs. Robert Kyska, who will be matron of honor at the wedding, and Mrs. Richard Anderson, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Graves, 910 S. Dunton.

Earlier in the month, Mrs. Norbert Raupp, mother of the groom, entertained at a luncheon and shower for Miss Scott.

THE JOHN McCombs, 710 S. Dunton, were hosts at the rehearsal dinner Friday for Miss Marcia Born and Robert Schacht, who were married Saturday in First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights. Guests included members of the wedding party and their families, including Mr. Schacht's brother and family who are here from California.

The Keith Posselts, 302 W. Maple, recently flew to New York City for an 11-day vacation seeing plays and visiting points of interest.

The junior Chet Smiths, 1304 S. Eastman, are home from a 3-week vacation in Europe, which included visits to Lisbon, Madrid, Rome, Venice and Paris. Before leaving Spain for Italy, the Smiths went to Tangiers in Morocco, which was one of the highlights of their trip. Residents of Tangiers, mostly of Arab descent, still cling to ancient customs in dress and living, and showed just as much interest and curiosity in their foreign visitors, the Smiths observed.

Before returning home, they went to Luxemburg, to spend a week with Mrs. Smith's sister and brother-in-law, the Joseph Volrichs.

THE JOHN Cornells, 1018 N. Evergreen, and their children, John, Anne and Allison, have just returned from a 9-day vacation in Oglebay Park, W. Va. There they joined all their family members who live in the east for a family holiday.

Capt. Richard A. Hartert came home from Korea July 10 after a 13-month tour of duty with the United States Transportation Corps. Before leaving for his next assignment at Ft. Eustis in Virginia the latter part of July, he and Mrs. Hartert and their two children, Laura-Jean and Ricky, will spend a week in Rhinelander, Wis., vacationing with Mrs. Hartert's parents, the G. H. Krohns.

The John Freiberg children, John, Michael and Carol, will leave for LeRoy, Ill., next Monday to spend two weeks visiting their grandparents, the senior John Freibergs.

John spent the first two weeks of July at Camp Napowan in Wild Rose, Wis., with members of his Scout troop, returning to his home at 1303 E. Eastman, Saturday.

THE K. T. BRUSAS, 417 S. Evergreen, and daughter, Hedy, recently returned from a 2-week vacation at Rocky Mountain National Park with visits to Estes Park and Denver.

A high point in their vacation came when they attended the all Arabian Horse Show in Estes Park. Every member of the Brusa family is an avid equestrian, including Mr. Brusa, who as an army reserve officer, formerly served in the 14th Cavalry Unit, so that the show held special interest for them.

Miss Carol Wright is here from Greenwich, Conn., for a 2-week vacation with their former Arlington Heights neighbor Peggy Bliss, and her parents, the Robert Blisses, 1307 E. Eastman. Carol and her parents, the Robert Wrights, moved to Connecticut last February.

Mrs. Lewis Brown, 509 S. Chestnut, entertained at a farewell luncheon and bridge July 17 in honor of Mrs. John R. Gray, who has moved from Arlington Heights to Aurora. Among guests were the Mrs. Peter McAndrew, Mrs. Roy Anderson, Mrs. Lawrence Middel, Mrs. Louis Keppler, Mrs. Richard H. Johnson and Mrs. Gerald Smith.

Mrs. Gray's new address in Aurora is 327 S. Buell.

MR. AND MRS. Stanley Lattner, 1018 N. Vail, took a 2-week motor tour of the Smoky Mountains and a visit to Williamsburg, Va., which they found so interesting that they are looking forward to another visit soon.

Upon returning home, Mrs. Lattner went to Spring Lake, Mich., to spend a week with her mother, Mrs. Nelson Stuitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nyquist, 741 S. Mitchell, had as their houseguest for several days last Alice Adams and her daughter, Diane of Meridian, Miss.

The Paul Blacks, 701 S. Chestnut, were in Faribault, Minn., over the weekend, visiting her sister, Mrs. Lewis K. Remley, and mother, Mrs. E. E. Kline.

A. L. Wartenberg, 430 S. Dunton, and his son, Glenn, spent the past week in Pittsburgh visiting his daughter, Mrs. H. Page, and her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Engleson, 418 S. Patton and daughter, Lynnea, visited former Arlington Heights neighbors, the Charles Schwartzes over the weekend. The Englesons' son Ricky, remained home with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Wartenberg, who came from Portage Park to keep him company.

THE PAUL WEINRICHS, 825 S. Vail, and the Carl Weinrichs of Arlington Heights, recently returned from a 6,000-mile motor trip to the West Coast. Included in their travels were visits to the Black Hills, Yellowstone National Park, Salt Lake City, Yosemite National Park and San Francisco. They spent several days in San Francisco, visiting the Carl Weinrich's son, David, who is stationed there with the Navy.

Leaving San Francisco, they went to Orange in Southern California to visit former Arlington Heights residents, Mrs. Emma Sametinger and Miss Margaret Schulenbury.

Other points of interest on the homeward journey were Las Vegas, Hoover Dam, and the Grand Canyon before a long stopover in Colorado to visit the Paul Weinrichs' daughter, Mrs. William Jacobsen, whose husband is with the Military Police at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal, and with a brother, Arthur, and his family in Boulder.

MRS. ROBERT Rowan, 530 S. Belmont, entertained at a coffee Friday for her mother, Mrs. William Shriver of Ashland, Ohio, who was here for a 2-week visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley J. Wilkins, 751 S. Belmont, reported good fishing during their 10-day vacation in Nisswa, Minn. Their daughter, Barbara, accompanied them.

Mrs. Albert Goldthwaite, 426 E. Park, was among those celebrating birthdays last week. Here for the occasion were her son-in-law and daughter, the Ronald Martells, and their three children, who stopped by on the way from a vacation in the North Woods, to their home in Elkhart, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ross, 341 Bristol, and their sons, David and Richard, returned Sunday from a month's vacation. They drove through the Smoky Mountains on to St. Petersburg, Fla., where they remained for two weeks, visiting points of interest in the area.

Enroute home, they drove down the Blue Ridge Parkway and went on to Portsmouth, Ohio, for a 2-week visit with Mrs. Ross's father, A. Glenn Werner.

MR. AND MRS. Robert Lundin, 595 Newbury, are leaving Arlington Heights next week for their new home in Rocky River, Ohio.

Scott Nash of Wayzata, Minn., recently spent several days here at the William Ball home, 454 Banbury, as the guest of their daughter, Betty.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Colburn, 535 Burton, had as their houseguest for the past 10 days, their niece, Miss Barbara Connors of Arlington, Mass. Miss Connors was enroute home from a vacation in California.

The Charles H. Oestmanns, 320 Burton, were in Delafield, Wis., last weekend visiting their son, Jim, and daughter, Jane, who are vacationing at Camps John's and Nagawicka on Lake Nagawicka.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur O'Grady, 304 E. Grove, will have a barbecue August 4 to celebrate the fifth birthday of their daughter, Julie. Coming to the party will be her grandparents, the Paul Skepneks and Mrs. Mathilda O'Grady of Chicago, and an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bell of Hillside and their eight children.

THE JEROME Mockenhaupts, 430 S. Belmont, spent a week in Henderson, Ky., as guests of the Gordon Kays, and then came home to spend a week in Chicago at the Park East Hotel, from where Mr. Mockenhaupt took part in the annual housewares show at McCormick Place.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mills, 205 S. Drury, spent the past week in Dearborn, Mich., visiting their daughter and family, the Robert E. Childs.

Vacation plans of the Warren Stahnke family, 110 S. Brighton, included a 3-week motor trip to the West Coast with visits to relatives and long-time friends along the way.

Of special interest to the Stahnkes and their three children, was a visit with their uncle, Dr. Herbert L. Stahnke, who is doctor of Entomology at the University of Arizona, and a tour through his laboratories where scorpions, centipedes, rattlesnakes and other poisonous reptiles and animals are kept.

While in the southwest, they took a sightseeing trip to Nogales in Old Mexico, and went back to Tucson for a visit with Mr. Stahnke's relatives. Leaving Arizona, the Stahnkes drove to California, where Mrs. Stahnke visited former schoolmates in Apple Valley, West Covina and Hayward, while Mr. Stahnke and the children visited Disneyland and Knotts Berry Farm.

Enroute home, they camped in Yosemite National Park where they encountered quite a bit of snow, which was a welcome preparation for the drive through the hot desert afterwards.

MR. AND MRS. Robert Ryan, 116 S. Wilshire, recently attended Mr. Ryan's 25th class reunion at Campion High School in Prairie du Chien, Wis.

The Ryans' son, Michael, is currently spending two weeks at Camp Campion, on the grounds of his father's Alma Mater.

Miss Susan Rose, daughter of the George W. Roses, 1300 Mayfair, marked her 13th birthday June 29 with a back yard barbecue for eight friends, which was followed by a swimming party at Rolling Green Country Club.

Last week, Mr. and Mrs. Rose had as their houseguests, friends from St. Paul, the Jack Vyns and their daughter, Marianne.

Mrs. Walter McClure, 1605 E. Kensington, is home from Northwest Community Hospital, recuperating from surgery.

Carl Bredehoft, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Bredehoft, 201 S. Wilshire, left Sunday for All American Sport Camp, north of Toronto, Canada. Other Arlington Heights boys who will be at the camp are Tim Empkie, Dan Carta and Brian Anderson.

MISS BARBARA Gard, whose forthcoming marriage to Carl Graf of Arlington Heights will take place Aug. 10, was feted at an "Around the Clock" shower Thursday by Mrs. Charles Bobinette, 308 S. Drury Lane.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kramer, 1717 Kensington, and daughter, Susan, returned Saturday from a 2-week vacation in the West. They spent several days at a Colorado ranch and then went to Arizona to visit relatives in Scottsdale.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnice Basil, 427 S. Windsor, and their daughter, Joanne, came home Sunday from a 2-week motor trip through the New England States to Canada. In Canada they spent several days each in Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa, and then drove to Mackinac Island for a short rest before returning home.

Teacher-Parent Council Planning Year's Programs

Discussion is under way on plans for the three regular meetings of the Teacher-Parent Council of Arlington High School during the coming year.

"We are most anxious to develop programs of widest possible interest," reported Ben F. Carns, president, who conducted the first official planning meeting July 17.

One of the programs will probably be the regular open house when parents visit students' classrooms, but other plans are still tentative. The program is expected to be completed in September.

Mrs. Orville Anderson, hospitality; John M. Keys, publicity; Mr. and Mrs. David A. Lindsey, program; Mrs. William Edgerton, secretary; Mrs. Marguerite Dietrich and Douglas K. Murphy, faculty representatives, and Bruno Waara, Arlington High principal. (A

Weekly Paycheck Is Bigger

CHICAGO, (UPI)—Robert R. Donnelly, state Director of Labor, said today that average weekly earnings for Illinois manufacturing employes reached $110.36 in June, a new high.

Donnelly said these wages were $1.90 a week higher than the May, 1962, average.

He attributed part of the increase to a one cent boost in average hourly earnings, and an increase in the work week. Average weekly hours worked were 41.2 during June, Donnelly said, or an increase of 30 minutes over the May figure.

Mack Readying for Departure, Tells Preparatory Steps

(The following is the second in a series of special reports to Paddock Publications from Mack Borgen, 15-year-old Explorer Scout from Arlington Heights, who is attending the World Jamboree in Greece.)

by MACK BORGEN

I am now at Fort Slocum, N. Y., where Region Seven has joined the other 550 scouts in the American continent. I truthfully doubt that the 73 countries at the World Jamboree will present more variety than do the 50 states of America.

In about two weeks, the 600 scouts from the 50 states will be at the World Jamboree, a window of democracy. The World Jamboree in 1957 was summed up by one of the scouts as "the United Nations in short pants."

WEDNESDAY AND Thursday of this week were spent at the Valley View Training Center in Hinsdale for some training in preparation for the free world's largest non-political youth event. We did such things as stenciling names and addresses on equipment, making patrol flags, and distributing certain materials.

At the end of each night's campfire, we would proceed to our rugged living quarters, the manor house. At the campfire Thursday evening we were honored by having the Counsel General of Greece come and speak of such things as customs (tipping, greetings, etc.), climate (no humidity with temperatures around ninety), and other varied topics.

As an example, the Counsel General said that the shops were open from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. and from 4 p.m.-7 p.m. The majority of the afternoon spent in a Greek "siesta."

TRAVELING BY jet was about the first time for a majority of the scouts in our troop, a first plane trip for about 10, and the first time out of the state for two.

Fort Slocum is located on an island just off Long Island. The fort is the Army Information School. The island has been in possession of the Army since 1863 when it was used as a neutral hospital during the Civil War. We are getting our first taste of Army life for about two hours a day.

In one of our classroom demonstrations we learned that we were to use the most widely used fire materials in the world, charcoal. The stove we are to use is used extensively in Asia, Africa, South America, and in the Mediterranean countries.

IT IS ABOUT two feet high and a foot tall. This stove is a far cry from the electric and gas stove which we have in America. Strangely enough this stove is used by more people in the world than any other type or kind of stove.

One of the greatest problems of this jamboree is the making of the menu. You may easily see this when you take into consideration that Hindus will not eat meat, Catholics don't eat meat on Friday, Scandinavians wouldn't think of a day without black rye bread, as Scots wouldn't get up in the morning if there wasn't a hot bowl of oatmeal waiting for them.

"People are down on what they ain't up on." This was the opening statement in our public relations class yesterday. The amount of news correspondence is left up to each scout, but as said by Mr. Keith Kentopp, American Public Relations Director, "No public relations (in respect to news correspondence) is like winking at a girl in the dark. You may know what you're doing but the girl surely doesn't."

Until I write again, Kali andamosi. (A-14

Stalled Drivers Appreciate Help

Motorists who run out of gas on Chicago area expressways may be careless but the great majority have proved their honesty, Francis S. Lorenz, Illinois director of public works, reported.

He said that of the 2,731 drivers who were provided gasoline by the expressway emergency patrol between June 15, 1962, and July 1, 1963, 2,172 of the drivers, or 79.1 per cent, sent the state the fee asked for the service.

The gasoline assist operation was started by the expressway patrol on June 15, 1962. Motorists who need aid get two gallons of gasoline from the patrol. They also get a bill for $2.50, and an envelope in which to send the fee to the state.

"THE HIGH percentage of returns is remarkable in view of the fact that sending in the fee is entirely voluntary," Lorenz said.

Of the 400 motorists who received gasoline from the expressway patrol last month (June, 1963), 331 drivers or 82.7 per cent of the total, sent in the requested fee.

The expressway patrol assisted a total of 3,705 motorists whose cars were disabled last month. Of these, 582 cars stopped because of mechanical trouble, 907 for flat tires, and 445 for cooling system trouble.

Dan Ryan expressway had 1,277 disabled cars; Northwest expressway 1,100; Congress expressway 968, and Edens expressway 360. A14

The Way We See It

Voters Victimized

Northwest suburban voters are again in serious danger of being short-changed.

As was the case two years ago when the Illinois General Assembly was considering reapportionment of the state's Congressional districts, government forces are now wrangling over means of remapping the State House of Representatives.

By all rules of logic, new House districts will be created to serve DuPage County and the six northwest Cook County townships — Elk Grove, Hanover, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Barrington.

But an imperfect reapportionment bill has been vetoed by Gov. Kerner and the realignment is about to be put in the hands of a 10-man, bi-partisan commission to be appointed by the governor. There seems to be a 50-50 chance that the "blue ribbon" commission will come up with an equitable map. Failure of the commission to do so will set the stage for an at-large election in 1964.

An at-large contest, where all 177 State Representatives run statewide, would deprive voters of genuine representation guaranteed by the Constitution. (There is also some question whether 29 State Senators whose terms expire will have to run at-large too.) Voters might be asked to mark ballots for literally hundreds of candidates. It is often difficult for a voter to thoroughly examine the qualifications of candidates in a single district. It would be impossible to study the credentials of 300 to 400 candidates.

An at-large race would destroy the theory of equal representation and inject undue confusion into a state government that is desperately struggling for order.

Gov. Kerner was justified in vetoing the Republican-sponsored remap plan. It was gerrymandered to favor incumbent legislators and it cheated Lake County of three Representatives. A group of southern Illinois legislators reportedly "forced" the GOP to give them the district that belonged to Lake County, thus ruining an otherwise acceptable map.

Some politicians have commented that the people would have "nothing to lose" in an at-large election. One legislator was bold enough to proclaim he was "delighted" at the prospect of an at-large race. Most responsible persons in government, however, acknowledge that an at-large contest would be chaotic, a backward step at best. The problems of an at-large election "stagger the imagination," as one lawmaker put it.

Paddock Publications accepts the proposition that equity demands legislators be elected by districts. This places tremendous responsibility with the special commission. Its members have a real obligation to the people of Illinois to reapportion the House. We trust partisan considerations and political rivalries will not play a role in this effort.

For Better Teachers

California schools are no longer hiring teachers who majored in education. That state's board of education recently introduced new requirements for teacher applicants. Chief among them was the attempt to do away with education majors or teachers who have taken an overabundance of education courses.

In the words of Thomas W. Braden, president of the board: "Our future teachers will be broadly educated in the liberal arts, familiar in depth with their subject matter, and skilled in imparting their knowledge. They will be better teachers and will turn out better students."

The so-called education courses have long been a bane to students studying for the teaching profession. They have been cursed as being repetitious, meaningless, useless, and unchallenging. Yet Illinois teachers are still required to take 18 semester hours of education courses. Critics say this time would be better spent in subject matter related to the student's intended teaching field.

This belief is what spurred the California board to reduce their requirements from 16 hours to 12 for elementary teachers and from 16 to nine for high school teachers. California colleges, some of which have required 30 to 50 hours of education courses for teacher training, will be forced to make some alterations. And since California hires half of its new teachers from other states, the new plan may be felt in other areas.

Another aspect could be the change in requirements for school administrative positions. While such jobs now usually require at least a Master's degree in some area of education, such qualifications may be hard to find if other states join California in the condemnation of education courses. Instructors may be forced to obtain two Master's degrees; one in his subject field if he wants to improve his teaching and raise his salary; and another in an education area if he has any administrative aspirations. The truly ambitious can pick a pair of Ph.D's.

Going Through Motions

The civil defense department of a small McHenry County community has listed the telephone number of the village police department with the phone company as its latest action.

We had always supposed that the phone company had the numbers of its subscribers, including police departments. Perhaps the civil defense officials acted in the belief that, where national survival is concerned, you just can't be too careful.

So we have another footnote to the civil defense story.

Civil defense has faced some big difficulties since its inception.

One difficulty has been the conflict of expert opinion on the value of its recommended procedures. Another (perhaps the biggest) difficulty has been the aloofness of the civil defense department from any strivings for peace. In fact, some CD officials, especially at the local level, seemed to regard "peace" as a dirty word. Some of their civil defense spokesmen have sounded less like the voice of survival than the voice of doom. Hearing what sounded like an invitation to build your own coffin, many people naturally declined the invitation.

Nevertheless, a great deal of good is being accomplished. An example is the widespread teaching of first aid skills. Another is the examination by school authorities of what they should do in the case of disaster.

This spring, in the city of Portland and the state of Oregon, civil defense programs were voted down, at least temporarily. It is interesting that the major reason for this was the failure of the organization to do what was expected of it after a natural disaster — in this case, a severe windstorm.

Unrealistic civil defense programs will not succeed. If an organization can't deal with a windstorm, the public will not trust it as a remedy for nuclear bombs. If it is simply going through the motions, as by listing telephone numbers with the phone company, it might as well disband.

And it must not ignore the public's desire for peaceful solutions. The public is saying that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. After all, that is the slogan of civil defense, too.

Looking Ahead

Disunity Is GOP Handicap

by BRUCE LADD
Associate Editor

Otto Kerner is the Governor of Illinois. He is a Democrat. He is a very influential man. But the state's Republicans think his record is bad. They intend to replace him in 1964.

The Republicans claim to have an impressive inventory of talent. Several men in the GOP want to be governor. Party stalwarts are not sure which man is most talented.

There will be a fight. They are choosing up sides now.

Likely combatants will be: Charles H. Percy, board chairman of Bell & Howell Co.; Hayes Robertson, chairman of the Cook County GOP Central Committee, and Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier. There may be others.

LADD

PERCY IS the only announced candidate. He wants to be a servant of the people. He is handsome, articulate, rich, and has many friends. He is a "comer."

Robertson will officially disclose his intentions next Wednesday. He is not handsome. But he is rich, a fighter for the GOP, and has many important political friends. He is "dependable."

Carpentier will formally announce his candidacy Aug. 4. He is not handsome. He is not rich either. But he is an old pro. He has many friends. Some say his friends are found in both political parties. He is "electable."

DESPITE ITS array of talent, the GOP is starting the gubernatorial campaign from a position of weakness. The party lacks unity. It lacks leadership and direction. Unity, leadership and direction are big words. Some Republicans would rather not be bothered with big words.

Other Republicans, however, are very upset that unity is not present. They do not sleep well. They believe too many GOP candidates in the primary election will be harmful. The vote will be split so that the best man may not win.

They also fear a multi-man primary race will break the party into many pieces. A broken window is sometimes hard to put back together again. The GOP is like a window. It could be shattered at any time. Yet it facilitates vision and is protective against the elements.

A QUARTET of Republican leaders holds a solution to the chaotic, disunited primary possibility. These leaders have an unusual opportunity to contribute. They are bright, young men.

They are: William H. Rentschler, former U.S. Senate candidate who is extremely popular statewide; Cook County Sheriff Richard B. Ogilvie, considered the best sheriff Cook County has had in many decades; State Treasurer William Scott, who's succeeding in keeping campaign promises; and State Supt. of Public Instruction Ray Page, a strong voice Downstate.

These leaders have a chance to unite behind the best candidate. They can provide direction. Their candidate would win in the primary. He would be in good stead for the general election. This is the answer to the GOP's problem of too many candidates. It is an easy answer.

ALTRUISTS are people who have unselfish devotion to the welfare of others. The State of Illinois needs more altruists. Politicians are not altruists. They are egotists. Their law is preservation of the fittest. That is why the politicians rule the roost.

There is hope in many GOP quarters that Rentschler, Ogilvie, Scott, and Page will be altruists for awhile. There is hope that they will put aside past victories and defeats in the interest of long-range Republicanism. There is hope that they will pull together.

It is honest hope. It is within reach. The time is now.

Otto Kerner is the Governor of Illinois. He may be governor in 16 months.

Nothing Succeeds Like Failure

Cynicism Justified

by BOB CUMMINS
Staff Writer

Cynicism disfigures a person, like a scar.

Yet who among us is completely free of the scar?

Take me, for example. I haven't read a single one of the following books: "How to Become a Millionnaire in Real Estate," "101 Systems for Beating the Races" or "How I Made $2 Million in the Onion Futures Market."

I haven't read these books because of cynicism. I ask myself the cynical question: If these authors enjoy such fabulous wealth and own the secrets of wealth, why are they selling books? I can't find a good answer. As everyone knows, people who have anything to do with books are apt to be bad financial risks.

CUMMINS

Another question that keeps nagging me is this: Of all the tens of thousands of people who have bought and read, say, "How I Made $2 Million in the Onion Futures Market," why hasn't one of them written a book called, "How I Made $2 Million in the Onion Futures Market by Reading 'How I Made $2 Million in the Onion Futures Market?"

IF THE person who first made a killing in onion futures feels impelled to write about his good fortune, isn't it logical to expect that someone who followed in his footsteps would want to write about his good fortune, too?

I say, yes. It is logical. The fact that this sequel hasn't been written is a cause for grave suspicion.

Someone might say, "Such a book wouldn't sell. Who would buy "How I Made $2 Million in the Onion Futures Market by Reading 'How I Made $2 Million in the Onion Futures Market' when "How I Made $2 Million in the Onion Futures Market" was already on the book stores' shelves?

I SUBMIT that such a question is completely irrelevant and immaterial. Remember, anyone who has made $2 million is not writing his book for money, since he already has money coming out his ears. So he doesn't care how many copies are sold. The fact that it wouldn't sell wouldn't keep him from writing it, if he were really sincere.

The more you think about it, the more logical it would be for an author to write a book called "How I Lost $2 Million in the Onion Futures Market." The author of such a book would really need the money. As a result his book could be depended upon to be a revelation.

I dare say he might use correct grammar. I predict his syntax would be impeccable. His imagery would verge on the poetic. You see, a man who has just lost $2 million can't be too careful about his next venture.

FAILURE IS a better teacher than success. This truth is attested to by champions in all kinds of endeavors. But the publishers haven't accepted this truth. They are still publishing success stories. And no one can learn much from success stories.

I think that is the basic reason so few of us have got rich in the onion futures market.

1963 Press Contest Winner

Three National Newspaper Awards Earned by Paddock

Paddock Publications, Inc. this week received three top awards in the 1963 National Better Newspapers Contest sponsored by the National Editorial Association.

Winners in the nation-wide competition, which attracted more than 2,300 entries from 49 states, were announced Saturday at the NEA annual convention in Seattle.

The Arlington Heights Herald, Paddock Publications' entry in the contest, won:

—first place in general excellence for suburban and community newspapers with circulation over 6,000;

—first place in best pictorial series for all newspapers; and —third place in classified advertising for newspapers over 4,000 circulation.

The awards were accepted for Paddock Publications by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., vice president of the 14 suburban newspapers.

The first place general excellence award, top prize in the national competition, was based upon news coverage, writing, makeup, mechanical excellence, advertising enterprise, editorial page, community service, and photos.

This is the 11th general excellence award earned by Paddock Publications since 1956. The newspaper also won top honors in this category in the 1960 and 1962 NEA contests.

In photography, the NEA first place prize for best pictorial series was made to Larry H. Cameron, chief photographer of Paddock Publications, for his work on the six-part series, "These Lonely Rooms," a report on the aged of Illinois.

CAMERON

The award recognized "the best series of pictures which depict a news, feature, or historical sequence."

In announcing their choice, judges said: "In this, a new category in the National Better Newspapers Contest, the Arlington Heights Herald took top honors with an outstanding series devoted to the problems of the aged.

"Imaginative pictures, excellently reproduced, accounted for about 75 per cent of the space used. The pictures were used in large sizes to dramatize the subject matter.

"The combination of pictures and feature copy added up to the finest coverage of a subject that any newspaper could possibly be expected to produce," said the judges.

Since its publication last year, the series has been nationally acclaimed. Requests for reprints have come from 38 states, District of Columbia, Canada, and Switzerland. Nearly 2,000 copies have been distributed to more than 300 institutions, government agencies, private and public welfare agencies, specialists, and various public officials and civic leaders.

Winner of several awards for excellence in photojournalism, Cameron joined the staff of Paddock Publications in 1956 and was named chief photographer in 1960.

In addition to "These Lonely Rooms," he has photographed the newspapers' special series "The Poor of Illinois," "Transurbia," and "The Hidden City."

His next assignment, scheduled for publication early in 1964, will be a four-part "depth" report on dependent and deprived children. The series will be written by Charles E. Hayes, executive editor, who has collaborated with Cameron on "The Poor," "These Lonely Rooms," and other special projects.

The NEA prize is the eighth photographic award presented to the newspapers since Cameron's appointment as chief photographer.

The third place classified advertising award recognized typography, format, layout, copy preparation, and volume of want ad pages. It is the seventh classified advertising award received by Paddock Publications since 1955. The newspapers won first place in the 1962 NEA contest.

This week's awards bring to 126 the total number of press honors conferred upon the newspapers since 1956.

Last fall, Paddock Publications received four top awards in the Illinois Press Association state contest: first place for general excellence, first place for best editorial, first place for best editorial page, and third place for display advertising excellence.

Other winners in the 1963 NEA general excellence competition were:

Second place, Birmingham, Mich., Eccentric; third place, Montclair, N. J., Times; honorable mention, Lapeer, Mich., County Press; Park Forest, Ill., Star; Kettering, Ohio, Times; and Ambler, Pa., Gazette.

The Birmingham Eccentric, Park Forest Star, Kettering-Oakwood Times and Paddock Publications are members of the Suburban Press Foundation.

Arlington Greens

The men's golf outing sponsored by the Arlington Greens Community Association was held Saturday at Rob Roy. Pat Danna came up with a low gross of 83; Gary Waffle, 88; and Dick Fagala, 90. Low net of 79 was decided by a coin toss which gave the trophy to Gary Waffle. Jerry Lynn walked away with the crying towel and used same to cover his eyes when the eclipse began. A perfect day, weatherwise, added to the success of the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Shaw, N. Belmont, began a two-week motor trip throughout Canada shortly after they moved in, the middle of June. A business trip for Mr. Shaw, Mrs. Shaw enjoyed her first trip to Toronto, Ottawa and other cities in Ontario. Their children, Nancy and Neil, visited with grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tarnow in Northbrook, until their parents returned at the end of the month.

Houseguests of the Len Brunes, N. Dryden, early in July were his sisters, Miss Adelaide Brune of Akron, Ohio, Mrs. Rose Pollpeter of Chicago, and her daughter, Mrs. Don Peterson.

July 15 was moving day for the Robert Ponter family, to their new home in Pittsburgh. They were residents at 612 E. Oakton for about nine years.

MOVING FROM the Greens last weekend were the William Lahsers who lived at 1104 N. Douglas for the past eight and one half years. They plan to move into their new home at 710 E. Talbot, Hickory Meadows, in the early fall.

Sunday dinner guests of the Pete Johnsons, E. Olive, were newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Henzel of Chicago. Mrs. Henzel and Mrs. Johnson are sisters. Earlier in the month her brother, Matthew Whalen Jr. of Morris Plaines, N.J., enjoyed a weekend visit with the Johnsons while on a business trip in the area.

New residents in the Greens are George and Joan Vastine, 605 E. Olive. Former Chicagoans, the family moved into the village the latter part of June from Rogers Park. Their children are Kathryn, almost 4, Mary Beth, 3, Timmy, almost 2, and 5-month-old Theresa. Mr. Vastine is employed as a salesman for the Wyeth Pharmaceutical Company in Evanston.

Another family new to the Greens are Loren and Joyce Marschman, former residents of Palatine. Their children include Terry Alan, 12, Cathey, 11, and Sandra, almost 5. Mr. Marschman is self employed in the septic service business.

More vacation returnees last week were the Don Schreiner family on N. Beverly Lane. A week's stay at a resort near Tomahawk, Wis. was followed by a three-day visit with grandparents in Marathon.

VACATION TRIP for Mr. and Mrs. James Otis, N. Beverly Lane, earlier in July included a three-day visit with her sister and family, the Carl Okesons at Merrill, Wis., and then West to the Black Hills for several days of camping and sightseeing.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fagala and sons, Bruce, Barry and Brad, of N. Douglas, returned early last week from a two-week vacation trip to North Carolina. Their trip included sightseeing through the Shenandoah Valley and on to Gerton, near chimney Rock Park, for a week's cottaging at Lake Lure. Joining them for the week were the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fagala from Orlando, Fla. The return trip took them through the Smoky Mountains for more sightseeing.

The Harry Gildemeister family of E. Olive enjoyed a week's vacation at Crystal Lake, near Sayner, Wis. Fishing, swimming and visiting relatives in the area ended the summer cottaging all too soon.

Wednesday morning Mrs. Gildemeister hosted a get-acquainted coffee for her new neighbor, Joan Vastine. On hand to greet the newcomer were Barbara Tyrell, Betty Johnson, Kathy Schwarz, Pat Nolte, Jan Ullenius, Emily Kluball and Eleanor Langhenry. Saturday the Gildemeisters hosted a cook-out for 19 relatives and friends from Libertyville, Antioch and Round Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Schick and daughter, Sharon, returned Friday after a week's vacation trip. They motored along Lake Michigan to Mackinac and Sault Ste. Marie. Their return trip included a couple of days at Wisconsin Dells before heading homeward.

A cook-out party in the Compton home on N. Douglas on Sunday included the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Berg of Chicago, the Otto Eik family of Lombard and the senior and junior Gust Houghlund families of Chicago. Occasion for the family gathering was to celebrate Mrs. Compton's birthday.

A VACATION trip to the West Coast ended in mid-July for Mrs. Olen Culpepper of N. Beverly Lane, her daughter, Mrs. C. Christian and grandsons, Tommy and Bobby, of Highland, Ind. The Grand Canyon and Estes Park, Colo. were some of their sightseeing stops before arriving in Los Angeles, and a visit with a niece, Mrs. Judy Polone. Among their side trips were a three-day visit to Tia Juna, Mexico, to see the bull fights, San Diego, Disneyland and Marineland.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson of N. Douglas enjoyed a week's visit from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Bell, and sister, Ina Jean, from McKeesport, Pa. Their departure in mid-July also ended the visit for his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Powers of Knoxville, Iowa. Weekend guests in the Anderson home were a sister and family, the Gregg Vrbens of Des Moines.

The Don Tyrells of E. Olive hosted a cook-out Saturday for 24 guests, friends and colleagues from Chicago and the various suburbs.

The David Bartletts returned Friday from a five-day trip in Wisconsin. After a day or two stop in Madison, they motored to Drummond for a day's visit with young Dave, a junior counselor at Camp Shawahmegon. On Saturday their son, Paul, entered Northwest Community Hospital for an appendectomy.

The Ken Jahnke family of N. Belmont left Friday for a weekend stay in the Wisconsin Dells area.

THE CLIFFORD Sell family of N. Hickory arrived home Sunday from their two-week vacation trip East. They visited grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sell in Schnecksville, Pa. and numerous other relatives in the area. One of their side trips was a three-day stay at Ocean City, N.J.

Cynthia Marie, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Philipp, 639 E. Clarendon, was christened in St. James Catholic Church Sunday by her uncle, Rev. Richard J. Feller of St. Colette's in Rolling Meadows. Godparents were her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Burton of Norridge. Grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Feller and Mrs. Henry Philipp, all of Chicago, were among the 15 dinner guests to mark the occasion.

Thursday evening ended a three-week vacation trip for the Leslie Shannon family of N. Hickory. Wisconsin's north woods area, near Mercer, offered the fishing, swimming and relaxing. (A

Eastwood Events

The E. K. Newquist family of 407 N. Hickory has been vacationing in Colorado, visiting in Denver and Fort Collins, and then roughing it in the wilds on sheep and cattle ranches high in the mountains. In Fort Collins the Newquists visited with Mrs. Newquist's aunt, a professor at the State University where she is head of the textiles and clothing department. The children were delighted with their tour of the college campus, and Ken, who is interested in chemistry, was thrilled with his personally conducted tour through the University's chemistry department.

Karen Newquist's 10th birthday on July 15 occurred while vacationing and even though far from home, it was observed with a special birthday cake and lots of good wishes.

MR. AND MRS. L. M. Gustafson of 211 N. Beverly Lane, parents of Mrs. Newquist, are also Colorado vacationers. They have been staying in Fort Collins and at Big Thompson Canyon.

July 15th was also happy birthday time for Bobby Schwantz. His two brothers, Jimmy and Denny, were included in Bob's first all-boy party for neighborhood pals, Kevin Hughes, Richard Coha, David McAvoy, Rickie Gotlund, Jackie Larson, Mark Cormier and Brian Byrne. Rockets were the theme of Bobby's party and the boys made a "big thing" of the huge rocket cake his mother made and decorated. Bobby's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Schwantz of 710 N. Beverly Lane.

While the Robert Luedeking children of N. Beverly Lane are campers for the next two weeks their mother will also take a break from household chores and vacation with her parents in Milwaukee. Peter Luedeking left Sunday for Hastings YMCA camp at Lake Villa, while Susie departed yesterday for Camp Norwesco in Eau Claire, Wis.

THE KENNETH Manchee household at 641 N. Beverly will also be fairly quiet for the next two weeks while Peter and Linda are away, both bound for the same camps as the Luedeking youngsters — Camps Hastings and Norwesco, respectively.

Hurry-up-and-get-well wishes are sent to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kanouse's son Andy of 215 Brighton Place who is in Northwest Community Hospital undergoing a series of tests.

Mrs. Robert Brinckman and Randy and Greg of 210 N. Dryden returned Sunday night from a visit with Mrs. Brinckman's mother, Mrs. Amy Hawkins in Taylorsville, Ill. While Mr. Brinckman was able to be with his family only over the weekends, he did have the opportunity to attend the Masters' family reunion with them. This is Mrs. Hawkins' branch of the family and was attended by about 100 relatives this year at the Taylorsville Park Pavilion. This past weekend, before coming back home, the Brinckmans had a get-together with many old friends.

A FATHER AND son weekend was experienced by Ken Behm and his son Dick last Saturday and Sunday when the two of them went off alone on a real man's vacation. It was Dick's first fishing trip and the fish cooperated so it was also his first fish catching experience. Besides fishing the two male Behms also had fun swimming while on their Wisconsin weekend jaunt.

The month of July brings two birthdays in the John Harty household on N. Brighton Place. On July 12 Michael was 11 and after a birthday dinner with his family at the Coach Lite he was host to his neighborhood friends for cake and ice cream.

Last Saturday, July 20, Kevin Harty celebrated being 15. A dinner out was also his way of being honored for reaching another milestone. (A

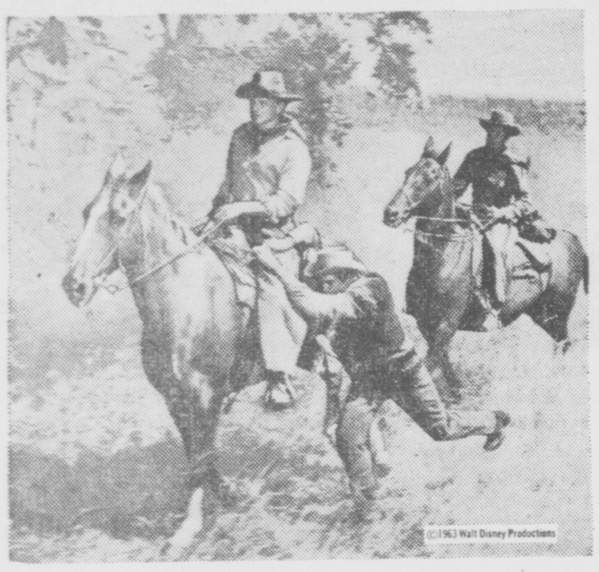
Hearing on an auto theft charge against Charles Everson, 18, of 54 W. Hintz Road, Wheeling Township, has been continued to next Tuesday in Evanston Municipal Court.

Everson, son of the Wheeling Township Road Commissioner Oscar Everson, and a Chicago youth, Albert F. Garibay, 19, are both charged with theft of a car in Evanston July 15.

A THIRD YOUTH involved in the case, a 16-year-old from Deerfield Manor north of Wheeling, was taken into custody later and turned over to county juvenile court.

All three were also involved with two Chicago men in four other thefts and an auto break-in, according to Chicago police. The two Chicago men are now being held on two of the counts. Their hearing has been continued until mid-August so Everson and Garibay can be prosecuted with them, said Detective Dick Pavlik of the Chicago stolen auto detail.

Leads to several of the stolen autos were discovered in the back yard of the Everson residence south of Wheeling, where police last week found about 10 stripped-down cars. (B9



LEADING THE CHASE, Brian Keith hardly slows down to pick up a passenger as he pursues a band of Apaches in Walt Disney's "Savage Sam." Keith stars with Tommy Kirk, Kevin Corcoran and Marta Kristen in the Technicolor film. Buena Vista releases. Starts Friday at the Catlow Theatre, Barrington.

New Building Code Adopted by County

by HELENE BRISTOL

Amidst protests from a former business agent of the Chicago Plasterers' Union and the charge they were "legislating manslaughter" and "approving cremation," the Cook County commissioners Monday adopted a new county building code.

Byron Dalton, former head of the Plastering Institute of Chicago, former business manager of the plasterers' union and chairman of the Building Code Committee of the Building Construction Trades Council, told commissioners by allowing wall construction with a fire rating of only .15 they would be approving materials responsible for the Our Lady of the Angels and St. Anthony Hospital fires.

A fire rating of less than .15 would eliminate almost all interior building materials except plaster.

Dalton had testified at length on the proposed building code at several earlier meetings.

The code was presented by Commissioner Charles F. Chaplin, R-Northbrook, chairman of the county board building committee.

Chaplin recommended the effective date of the new building code be Sept. 15. He explained this should be enough time not to "work a hardship on people who already have applications pending" but would be soon enough "that it will prevent people from rushing in and getting applications approved under the old code."

CHAPLIN explained the code represented "many hours of work by the professional staff and the citizens committee."

The citizens committee was composed of 24 members appointed by Seymour Simon, county board president. Two of the members came from the northwest suburban area—Erie Jones of Palatine, executive vice president of the Home Builders Association of Chicagoland, and Bertram Pollock of Northbrook, village president.

Harry F. Chaddick, director of the Code and Ordinance Revision Committee technical staff, said that he hoped Dalton would continue his fight to create interest in fire prevention and better building codes since it was a problem which existed throughout the United States.

Chaddick stated that the new county code called for the same fire-resistance standards as the building code of the City of Chicago. "I do not know of any place in the United States where building requirements are more strict," Chaddick said.

Editor Attends Regional Meet on Housing for Aged

The first regional conference on development of housing for older people in Illinois was held Wednesday at the Hotel Faust in Rockford.

The conference was sponsored by the Illinois State Advisory Council on the Improvement of the Economic and Social Status of Older People.

Discussion was aimed at potential and actual sponsors of housing for the elderly. Explanation was made of all major federal programs available to assist in financing such housing, either through mortgage insurance, direct loans, or public subsidy.

CONFERENCE topics included apartments, homes for the aged, group dwellings, retirement villages, hospitals, nursing homes, and individual family homes for retired people.

YEARICK

Richard Blakely, managing director of the state housing board, addressed the luncheon meeting.

William L. Rutherford, Peoria attorney and head of the state advisory council, was conference chairman.

Program participants included I. S. Loewenberg, architect, of Chicago: Theodore Veenstra, Public Housing Administration; Floyd J. Hicks, Federal Housing Administration; Harley D'Eath, Community Facilities Administration; Eldon Colegrove, Farmers Home Administration; Thomas J. Harper, Small Business Administration; and Dr. Roger Sondag, state department of public health.

ALSO ATTENDING Wednesday's conference was Charles E. Hayes, executive editor of Paddock Publications 14 suburban newspapers and author of the recent series, "These Lonely Rooms," a report on the aged of Illinois.

Hayes was featured last year on a half-hour TV program devoted to his analysis of problems confronting the aged and aging in Illinois.

Mrs. Elizabeth Breckinridge, conference coordinator, said the meeting was not a promotional effort for federal programs. "This is an explanatory conference in answer to the many questions which have come to the Advisory Council staff from commercial, non-profit, and governmental groups."

THE COUNCIL staff routinely offers consultation to all types of sponsors regarding community needs, markets, designs, program and management of facilities for older people.

A report on the conference will be published in next week's editions of Paddock Publications newspapers. (A14

St. Thomas Church to Open for Use Sunday

Sunday will be the first time parishioners of St. Thomas of Villanova Roman Catholic Church will use their new church, 1100 block of Anderson Street, Palatine.

No special ceremony or dedication of the new church will be made until the school is opened, said a church spokesman.

A new schedule of Sunday Masses to go into effect will be 6:30, 8, 9, 10:15, 11:15 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. Week day Masses in the new church will continue to be at 6:30 and 8 a.m. but will move from the rectory where they formerly were held.

THE NEW church which is six rooms in the 18 room school serves a parish encompassed by a line following Dundee Road, Wilke Road, Chicago Avenue, and Rohlwing Road in Palatine and Arlington Heights.

Until now the parish established two years ago has had Masses at Winston School in Palatine and the Elks Club in Arlington Heights.

The new church which will be air conditioned was completed under the direction of its pastor, Rev. Francis E. Waldron. Assistant pastor is Rev. John McEnroe. (A&PF

House Group Maps Plans To Permit School Prayers

WASHINGTON, (UPI) — About 25-30 House members mapped strategy today for overcoming the Supreme Court ruling that prayers and devotional Bible reading in public schools are unconstitutional.

They directed Rep. Frank J. Becker, R—N.Y., to appoint a five-member committee to draft a compromise for the approximately 20 different proposals for constitutional amendments.

Becker is one of about 50 congressmen who sponsor proposed amendments, now before the House Judiciary Committee. On July 9 he filed a discharge petition which, if signed by 218 members, would by-pass committee action and bring the measure to the House floor.

AT THE close of business today, the petition bore 52 signatures.

If the necessary additional signatures are secured, Becker's committee will draft substitute bill designed to satisfy all sponsors.

Some of the bills introduced in the House and Senate provide merely that prayers shall be constitutional in public schools. Others specify that prayers "or any other recognition of God" shall be allowed in all public places. Some members believe Congress should assure that any participation in devotional exercises must be voluntary, while others make no such provision.

Any constitutional amendment must be ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures within seven years after Congressional passage.

Skunks Win Again (They Usually Do)

WISCONSIN DELLS, WIS., (UPI) —All that resort owner B. H. Adams wanted to do was get rid of a skunk—but he nearly got rid of a whole motel unit yesterday in the attempt.

Adams suspected there was a skunk den under one of the units—so he loaded his fogging machine with insect repellent and stuck the nozzle under a 12-by-16-foot frame into the crawl space.

MRS. ADAMS stood at the other end of the building to see if any skunks ran out. What she saw was the entire building lifting off its foundation. The insecticide mixture exploded, splitting the flooring and shifting the building.

There was no skunk smell today—just a lingering odor of that powerful insect repellent.

Says Primers Too Childish

MADISON, WIS., (UPI) — An educator from Indiana University says no, no, to the "Oh, oh, look, look" type of sentences generally found in first grade reading primers.

"Children don't use short, sloppy sentences much, yet this is the kind of sentence usually found in their reading texts," said Ruth Strickland, author of "Language Arts in the Elementary School."

She told a reading institute at the University of Wisconsin that children should be allowed to select their own reaading material more often. "The child can read above his level if material catches his interest," she said.

THURS., JULY 25, 1963

Tuesday the "flying" grandmothers did it again. Mary Hilgeman's mother, Mrs. J. Mulheran, left from O'Hare Field to return to her home in Phoenix and Otto Gorgius' mother, Mrs. W. Gorgius of Chicago, arrived the same day, after a tour of Europe. On June 2, one had arrived and the other had taken off.

Mrs. Otto Gorgius drove Lynne and Laurie, her mother, Mrs. P. Granger, and nieces, Pam and Cheryl, and Mrs. Don Larson and Scoop, W. Algonquin Road, to Sand Lake on Thursday. They all returned with sunburns after fishing and swimming.

Friday dinner guests of the Gorgiuses were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gallert of Plano. Saturday, Otto's mother spent the day in Mount Prospect, telling the family about her trip to Europe. Sunday the family enjoyed a chicken barbecue and games at the Venetian Village homeowners annual affair and on Monday, Loraine and her guests visited old friends of her mother's in Chicago.

Mrs. Don Larson, Jim and Scoop spent Sunday at Rippon College in Wisconsin.

DURING their vacation this month, the Bernard Olson family, Elk Grove Road, drove to Wisconsin Rapids and spent a few days visiting relatives. Janet and Joyce remained there for an extra week on the farm of their aunt and uncle, the Evert Jolings, returning home by train last Wednesday, accompanied by their cousin, Priscilla Joling, who will be spending some time here.

Jackie Nitz was 9 July 20 and celebrated on two days. Thursday afternoon there was a party for Susan Maas, Roxanne Elliot, Janet, Joyce, Kathy and Lori Olson and Priscilla Olson. The girls enjoyed ice cream, cake, games, prizes and pony cart rides. The celebration on Saturday was a family affair, with the following guests at a steak cook-out: grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Newlands of Chicago. Joseph Nitz of Arlington Heights and cousin, Mrs. Eleanor Newlands and Marjorie of Chicago.

Joseph Nitz, Elk Grove Road, spent four days in Cincinnati this month, traveling there with the Arthur Fells of Pell Lake, Wis., who went to visit their daughter.

LAKE BRIARWOOD

The Ray Rices and their son, Richard, just returned from a trip to Niagara Falls. They also visited some of Mrs. Rice's relatives in Buffalo and Hamburg, N. Y.

Hearty greetings are extended to new neighbors, Barney and Peggy Freitag and Peggy's mother, Mrs. Margaret Burk. Peggy is interested in ceramics and has many items that she has created.

Dorothy and Joseph Trizel entertained some of their neighbors Sunday evening with a barbecue supper. At the time Joe was starting the fire for the cook-out, a neighbor boy called, "Don't you know it's going to rain?" Joe replied, "I'm just sending smoke signals to the Indians on the island."

Speaking of Mr. Trizil, there was a home owners meeting and a secret vote was taken on the question of annexation. All were, however, asked to sign their ballots. Mr. Trizil's classic comment was, "Now I've seen everything. A secret ballot with your name signed."

Lou Craig just spent a pleasant three-week vacation at home with his children, Donna, Georgie and Debbie. He said that they were like a bunch of water babies enjoying the lake.

COLONIAL HEIGHTS

Last week Frances Di Maiolo and granddaughter, Francine Carcerano, spent a week at the home of her son, Joseph in Lyons. While there, they did a lot of sightseeing, took a trip to Springfield, visited the Hinsdale Health Museum and then went to Romeo Beach.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Di Maiolo was surprised with a visit from her niece and family, the A. Pumas from New York, whom she had not seen for 10 years.

The Phil Buffas spent Sunday in the city with Phil's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Buffa.

Wednesday the Dave Andersons entertained Dave's folks, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anderson of Chicago, and his grandmother, Mrs. Frances Anderson of Grand Rapids. It was the first time Steven and Kenneth had seen their great-grandmother. They also had a surprise visit from Dave's brother, Ronald, and his fiancee, Joan Coscioni, who announced their engagement that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Douglas attended the annual Jewel Tea picnic Sunday in Barrington. It was a day full of fun and food.

Unexpected company was in store for the Frank Lowes on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bush of Detroit stayed for dinner and the rest of the evening was spent discussing and making plans for the Lowes to visit the Bushes.

MR. AND MRS. Frank Vyleta Jr. and their children were accompanied by the senior Vyletas of Cicero when they toured the Lincoln Park Zoo. After returning home, the evening was spent having a barbecue and visiting.

Nielson's on Mannheim was on the agenda Saturday for the Bob Wunars.

Mr. and Mrs. Irv Volkner spent the weekend camping in Mouston, Wis. The weather was good and the bugs, surprisingly, were not too bothersome.

The James Colamatteos' houseguest has been Minnie Martinson, grandmother to the Colamatteo children, Donna, Jimmy, Pauline and Terry. The family is so thrilled having her here, that Cornucopia, Wis., will not be seeing her for some time.

Fox River Grove was the place of excitement for the Carl Baardsens on Sunday. Year-old Kristen Sue thinks beaches are the place to live, since her sisters, Karen and Carlene, built castles and buried her legs deep in the sand.

Nancy, Rita, Larry and Noreen Cipriani were happy to have their grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Hastings of Chicago, visit them for a few days last week.

Saturday the Pat Sullivans visited with cousins, John and Chris Horist of Chicago.

HAROLD and Esther Weitzel were guests of John and Tuckie Ritling of Glen Ellyn Friday evening. Dinner was at the Purple Lilac, followed by a play at Melody Top.

A welcome is extended to Faith and Jack Brennan, now residing at 1720 Estates Drive with Tommy, 6, who will be attending first grade at St. Raymond's, kindergartner Jean, 5, and Ellen, 3.

The Jack Brennans had a dinner party Saturday for the Tom Cavanaghs of Warrenville, Bob Burkes of Chicago, Terry Moons and Elvin Bruces of Mount Prospect and the Harold Weitzels of Estates Drive.

Jerry and Jim Kingsborough had friends out from Chicago for a barbecue on Saturday. The guests were Mrs. Fran Matsumata, with Susan, Christie. Stanley and Gary. Sun scopes had been built so the afternoon was spent watching the eclipse with several oo's and ah s.

A WELCOME is also extended to several more newcomers.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Langos and 3-month-old Gary Jr., have been residents at 1715 Robbie Lane since July 1. They moved here from Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Stava and 5-month-old Kristine Elizabeth are now living at 1717 Robbie Lane. They moved here from Chicago's south side July 13.

Mr. and Mrs. George McHugh and daughter, Dawn, 2, and son, Sean, 2 months, are now residing at 1719 Robbie Lane. July 7 they moved here from Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. David Buckley, with David Jr., 4, Danny, 2, and Sheila, 2 weeks, moved to 1721 Robbie Lane from Mount Prospect on May 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Fell are now residing at 1723 Robbie Lane, having moved from Chicago on July 13.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gools and Steve, 5, are living at 1728 Robbie Lane. July 5 Barrington said good-bye to them.

Crow Causes Cop To Caw for Help

ST. LOUIS, (UPI) — The anguished cry of county police officer William E. Burkett broke over the police radio today with the announcement that "this bird bites, send help."

Colleagues, rushing to the officer's aid, heard this story when they got there. Burkett had been cruising in his car when he received a radio message to investigate a crow "running loose."

AS HE DROVE slowly down a street to investigate, a crow flew down and landed on top of his patrol car spotlight. When Burkett stopped and opened his door the culprit flew inside the car and landed on the policeman's shoulder, bringing his urgent cry for aid.

Police later learned the crow was a pet of a suburban Pine Lawn couple. A friend eventually arrived on the scene to carry the bird home, on his shoulder.

3-Ton Beachcomber Competes With Kids

by LEROY POPE
United Press International

NEW YORK, (UPI) — The kids who rake the sands of beaches at Coney Island, Virginia Beach or Lake Michigan after summer weekends hoping to find lost coins or ten dollar bills are facing a threat.

Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co's Oxnard, Calif. division has developed a three-ton machine called the beach sanitizer and has been testing it on the beaches near Los Angeles and on the shore of Chicago's Lake Michigan.

New York's city park department, which employs hundreds of temporary workers each summer to rake the miles of beaches on Long Island from Coney Island to Far Rockaway, said it would be interested in the machine if it would save money.

ALLIS-CHALMERS officials insisted it would. They said the sanitizer, pulled by a tractor, would scrape the sand to a depth of six inches at the rate of an acre an hour. The sanitizer costs approximately $7,000, the tractor is extra.

The sanitizer has a rotating blower drum that tosses the sand on a big sifter and recovers lost coins, eyeglasses, wallets, and other objects. It screens out bits of broken glass, sharp bottle caps and other debris that could cause injuries.

Allis-Chalmers designed the machine with the idea that it would be invaluable for giving very long beaches an annual spring cleaning and perhaps one more in mid-summer.

BUT ON the crowded beaches of New York City and the New Jersey shore and even on some of the western beaches, park officials find it necessary to drag the beaches after every summer weekend. This is done usually by attaching an ordinary farm harrow to a tractor and pulling it over the sand followed by a smoothing brush or a big wooden bar.

The beaches have to be swept not only because they become littered but because the vagaries of the surf from day to day shift the sand into big piles. So, the sand has to be smoothed out.

For many years, hardware stores in Brooklyn have sold big sifting rakes to kids—and some men—who used them to scavenge a section of beach for lost money and valuables. Sometimes the rakers find a wallet with a big sum in it or a valuable diamond ring.

MORE OFTEN their treasure is counted in nickles and quarters and bits of costume jewelry.

If the city were to buy the new Allis-Chalmers machine, the kids will keep on dragging the beach sand for treasure.

"They will get out on the beach with their rakes ahead of the machine," a park department official said. (B9

"HUD" a powerful contemporary drama concerning a family of Texas ranchers, starring Paul Newman in the title role, Melvin Douglas, Patricia Neal and Brandon de Wilde, will open next Friday at the Des Plaines Theatre. Based on the Larry McMurty novel, "Horseman, Pass By," the Paramount production is one of that studio's major attractions — a boldly realistic story of strong personalities in conflict, set to today's rugged cattle country.

Discuss Study of Suburban Health

A possible study of public health problems and needs in suburban Cook County is under consideration by the Cook County Public Health Council.

Council officials met recently with Dr. Charles Sutton, deputy director of the Illinois Department of Public Health, to discuss possibilities of a study.

THE SURVEY would be conducted by the council in cooperation with the National Commission on Community Health Services. Twenty areas throughout the country will be involved in the study. Suburban Cook County is the only large metropolitan area currently being considered.

The national commission has been formed to look at public health organizations in terms of the 1960's and '70s. Although many provious studies have been made, the commission encourages a new look and fresh ideas to meet changing problems in public health.

Institute's Report

Miracle Drugs Don't Prevent TB: Doctor

"In the long fight to eradicate tuberculosis from this community, we have come up against a wall. . .of apathy, fear, prejudice."

So begins the president's message from Dr. Walter C. Bornemeier, in the 1963 annual report of the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County (the Christmas Seal agency).

He continues: "The wall encloses vast numbers of the public who believe that miracle drugs have made them safe. . . key leaders in the community, intelligent but uninterested. . . and those most susceptible to the disease: minority groups and the very poor, whose daily struggle (for necessities) make them oblivious to everything else."

DR. BORNEMEIER points out that the 318 Chicagoans "behind the wall" died of TB last year, according to provisional figures from the Chicago Board of Health.

The report outlines the various methods the Institute employed during the past year to batter away at that wall. . . through research, education, case detection, rehabilitation, statistical analysis and public information.

At the research level, the Institute awarded grants totaling $31,738 for scientific studies.

AT THE neighborhood level, the Institute held conferences for community leaders in high TB incidence areas; participated in Chicago area and suburban health fairs; was a cosponsor of Health-o-rama in City Hall; conducted health programs for senior citizens, unions and school groups. Special efforts were made to develop wider contacts with the Spanish - speaking community here.

The most conspicuous of the Institutes programs — the mobile unit mass X-ray survey—was conducted in conjunction with the Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium in Chicago and the Suburban Cook County Tuberculosis Sanitarium District in suburban Cook County.

A grand total of 1,015,779 chest X-rays was made under the auspices of the Institute last year. This figure includes X-rays made at industrial plants and schools, as well as in Chicago and suburban neighborhoods.

Participating in the neighborhood survey were thousands of volunteers who collectively contributed 18,000 man-hours of clerical assistance at the mobile units. (B-8

For Villages

Waive Fee for Tree Disposal

Despite warnings by Commissioner William Erickson, R—Evanston, that municipalities would take undue advantage of free service, Cook County Board President Seymour Simon pushed through a resolution Monday which would permit the county forest preserve district to dispose of trees cut down by municipalities without charge.

A fee of $2 for trees under two tons and $4 for trees over two tons was set by the county board sitting as forest preserve commissioners. The fee will be collected only from private haulers. Municipalities which haul their own trees to the forest preserve dumps will not be charged.

Charles G. Sauers, general superintendent of the forest preserve district had recommended the fee schedule.

Simon noted that most municipalities hire private haulers and only a few actually haul their own trees away. He explained that if the number of villages doing their own hauling became too great, the commissioners could at that time consider extending the charge to include municipalities.

Erickson warned Simon, "If you give these municipalities too much leeway they will think everything is free—you'll see!"

The suggested fee schedule, with the exemption for municipalities, was adopted unanimously by the commissioners, with Erickson passing his vote.

A. Be kind. Assume your name has been forgotten and say, "How do you do? I'm Mary Sanders," or "Mrs. Sanders," whichever you prefer. The other person will bless you for it if he really has forgotten your name.

Shot for Sitting In Favorite Chair

ST. LOUIS, (UPI) — Police held Henry Hutson, 54, in the fatal shooting of his nephew last night during an argument over who would use a chair at their home.

Police said Hutson and his nephew, Beaumont Hutson, 24, argued over the use of a favorite chair for watching television.

Police accused the elder Hutson of obtaining a pistol and shooting his nephew in the back as he attempted to flee the home.

The killer followed the victim outside and shot him in the head, police said. As Hutson slumped to the ground, two more shots were fired, the bullets striking him in the head

Girl, 12, Asks for Caboose---and Gets It

METROPOLIS, ILL., (UPI)—The big railroad didn't know what to do about the little girl. She wanted a caboose.

Charmaine Evans, who is 12 years old and lives with her mother, Mrs. Juanita Evans, wanted a caboose to "play house in."

So she wrote a letter to the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad in Chicago.

"THIS MAY sound silly," she wrote, "but if you got a worn out old caboose that I can have or take care of I sure (would) like it. I am 12 and live alone with my mother. Mom says it's all right if you give me one. Please write me a letter if you are or (are) not going to let me take care of a caboose."

The railroad officials wondered what to do. There weren't any real cabooses available to give to a little girl and besides, Mrs. Evans probably would not like having a 40-foot caboose in her backyard anyway.

Finally, they got an idea.

YESTERDAY a train steamed into Metropolis and the conductor hopped off. Conductor G. N. Miller of Herrin had a present for Charmaine.

It was a miniature caboose, quarter-inch-scale, 10 inches long.

"I sure never thought this would happen when I wrote them," she smiled. "I'll take very good care of it."

Someone asked Charmaine if she was just as happy with the little caboose.

She smiled the secret smile of little girls. "Well. . . almost."

Retired Pair Tours In Homemade Sloop

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. John N. Crayton, Los Angeles, poked their way into St. Louis this week aboard their homemade sloop as they leisurely toured the country.

The Craytons, both 60, appropriately named their trim craft "Pokey" in keeping with the nature of their trip.

THE COUPLE began their trip last November and expect it will take a full year to return to their home port at San Pedro, Calif.

Crayton stated a preference for the intracoastal waterway, rivers and canals over the Pacific with its waves.

Approve $200,000 for Walks on County Roads

A long-sought solution to the dilemma of how to provide sidewalks for students walking to schools along county roads apparently was solved by the Cook County Board Monday.

The board approved expenditure of approximately $200,000 per year from county motor fuel tax funds for improving shoulder areas along county roads. The Pozzopac treatment is a new development which sets a rock-gravel base into a basic pavement with similar qualities of hardness to rough concrete.

Andrew V. Plummer, appointed Cook County highway superintendent at the Monday meeting, explained the Pozzopac shoulders would be four inches deep and eight feet wide. The hard surface will enable snow plows to clear snow from the shoulders as well as the roadway, Plummer said.

HE NOTED that many school districts had sought sidewalks along county roads as a safety and convenience factor for children walking to schools. No county funds were available for this construction except motor fuel tax funds. An opinion from the state's attorney about two years ago informed Cook County Commissioners that sidewalks could not be built from motor fuel tax funds unless they were constructed as a part of a major roadway improvement.

Plummer stressed that the Pozzopac shoulders would be helpful in areas where parking along roadway shoulders was the custom or where the sides of the roadway were dug up from rough usage.

A preliminary estimate indicates that the Pozzopac shoulder treatment will cost about $10,000 per mile.

Sidewalks along county roads have been an issue for almost every school district in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg Townships during the past two years. Some districts have provided additional bus service at considerable expense because of the absence of sidewalks along heavily-traveled roads. (B8

Educator Tells Educators What's Wrong at Colleges

by HELENE BRISTOL
Education Editor

While his audience of college and university level educators sat and "took it on the chin," W. H. Ferry told them "Why The College Is Failing" and that higher education in general was "in terrible shape."

Ferry also told the college leaders what was needed to correct the basic problems, but emphasized he thought a real change seemed "far too much to expect."

Ferry, vice president of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, Santa Barbara, Calif., was talking to the Association for Higher Education members gathered at the recent annual convention of the National Education Association in Detroit.

Ferry stressed he would not catalog the things which educators already recognized to be wrong—the preferred position of the natural sciences, federal aid, census counts of the oncoming school poulation and the comparisons of how much more or less Americans "spend on chewing tobacco or hairnets than they do on education."

HE CHARGED that "measured against the real needs of the country, not those trivial and transitory summons that are too often labeled needs, the American college is a bad investment. Judged by its output of practical wisdom and independent criticism, the college is a resounding flop."

Colleges are geared to serve two masters—what the community says it needs and whoever or whatever pays the bills, Ferry said.

The doctrine of community needs, combined with local control, has achieved "bizarre effects" according to Ferry.

The "most grievious of these effects," Ferry said, "is to leave thousands of high school graduates semi-literate and unprepared to go on with their educations while fitting them out excellently as drivers of cars, appliers of first aid and baton-twirlers."

"The college in turn passes its own illiterates into the world, trained perhaps in a narrow skill, but certainly not educated, able perhaps to make a living but unable to make a world," he continued.

The trouble lies with the word "need," in Ferry's opinion, not the idea of popular control. Some form of public control, in a democracy, is inevitable," he noted. Schools and colleges should be educating the community as to the "wise use of its power, formal or informal, over the educationl process."

Ferry bluntly stated, "If we are convinced that the general welfare is only the sum of individuals striving for their own self-interest, it is logical that education should be devoted to sharpening the tools of each person to enable him to do his best in the marketplace."

"THE DOCTRINE of self-interest, however, leaves the public interest an orphan in a storm of selfishness," was another Ferry comment.

"Instilling the intellectual skills needed to cope with . . . the ages of affluence, technology, revolution, bureaucracy, alienation and instant suicide . . . making men habitually ready to live wisely in these ages is the foremost duty of education.

"Where else in a self-governing nation is the obligation to be placed? Home and church have their responsibilities for character and morals. But if civilization fails and falls, the failure will be mainly that of education. It will show, if any are left to see, that there was in the world much more violence than practical wisdom, and blame will be assessed against the agency that bears primary responsibility for keeping up an adequate supply of this more and more scarce resource."

The major problems of today —race relations, the Cold War, automation—might be on the road to solution or have not become problems if education had been doing its job, Ferry stressed.

"What is needed is a divorce from the status quo, a shedding of the fetters of Cold War commitments, a raising up of critical voices and an intention to instruct the community both as to its true needs and the true goals of higher education," was the solution offered by Ferry.

He expressed doubt that "possibilities for such an eruption of reason in institutions other than the college—corporations, the mass media, the political parties, unions—it seems far too much to expect."

The colleges have to provide the "general staff and troops" for the fight for reason, he said, but added he saw few stirrings today.

Ferry's closing comments were, "The college is a major element in the forming of a nation's character and in deciding its destiny.

"The question is whether it will regain the higher ground of intellectual leadership and preparation for the new society, or whether it will cooperate in achieving domestic decay and international suicide.

"I believe it is touch and go." (A-14

Chicago Industry Booming

CHICAGO, (UPI) — A record half-billion dollars worth of industrial development projects were announced for the metropolitan Chicago area during the first six months of 1963, the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry reported today.

A total of 251 projects representing an investment of $530,021,000 was announced during the first half of 1963, compared with 218 projects representing $248,939,000 during the first half of 1962, the association said.

THE GREATEST number of projects ever announced during a single month came during June, the association said. Fifty-four projects announced during June totaled $120,230,000.

"These projects consist of construction of new plants and industrial warehouses, expansions of existing plants and warehouses, and acquisitions of land or buildings for industrial purposes," association vice president Ben W. Heineman said. "They do not include buildings erected on speculation until such structures are occupied."

School Doors Shot; 3rd Vandalism Case

The west doors of Park School were bombarded with gunfire sometime last Thursday night in the third instance of vandalism at District 25 schools within past weeks.

Police found about 30 holes in the doors and two small windows after Josh Hamilton, assistant maintenance superintendent, reported the damage. Glass was strewn into the building about 15-20 feet from the windows. Some steel balls about the size of bicycle ball bearings were also found.

DISTRICT Business Manager Peter Bakas was uncertain of repair costs.

It will take about $30 to repair damage caused when a crude bomb was tossed through a window at Dryden School July 12, he said.

Cost of repairs at Westgate School is being paid by a youngster who admitted firing a .22 shot through a window there two weeks ago. (A

Thieves Hit Local Firm

Two barrels of scrap brass totaling about 1,000 pounds were taken from the company between 4 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Monday, personnel manager Edward Wilson reported to police.

Wilson estimated value of the scrap at about $200.

Ridge Park–Sherwood

A weekend reunion brought widely scattered members of Ruth Griffith's family to 625 N. Kaspar, where Ruth and Bill entertained at backyard picnics and soccer games. Arriving Friday, on their first flight, only a few hours before the storm, were Ruth's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lohnes of Ripley, Ont., and Ruth's sister, Mrs. Roy Tincher and four children from Virden, Ill. Saturday the George Lords from Berrien Springs, Mich., and Tracy Lords from Tecumseh, Mich. came in. Lloyd Lord, Ruth's youngest brother from Arlington Heights arrived, too.

The Harold Lords, moving from Ann Arbor, Mich., came for the reunion, then left their two small children with Ruth and Bill while they settled in their new Evanston apartment. Tuesday an outing was planned to Carroll College at Waukesha. Ruth's stepfather, Mr. Lohnes, attended Carroll 47 years ago, and this will be his first visit since.

Victim in the "accident of the week" was Mark Kishbaugh, now in a cast with a broken collarbone. Mark was enthusiastically demonstrating the rides at Arlington Sidewalk Days; too enthusiastically, as it turned out, for his feet slipped and he fell.

TWO DAYS after the scheduled removal of his cast, the Kishbaughs hope to leave for Dayton, Ohio, after 3½ years in Ridge Park. They lived there for six years and are now transferring back. Mr. Kishbaugh is with a Canadian paper company. Ridge Park youngsters and neighbors around 817 N. Harvard will miss Mark, 6, Scott, 9, and Janice, 14.

Reunion with their son, Airman 3/c Jerry Inselberger, was the high point of their eastern vacation trip for the Hank Inselbergers, 644 N. Salem. Jerry, who's been stationed at Bangor, Me. for a year, was able to join them for nine days of camping. Greg and Susie list as their favorite sights the water-powered flower clock at Niagara Falls, old Fort Niagara and the changing of the guard at Arlington National Cemetery. The Inselbergers camped out for their three-week trip, using Hank's specially-built camping trailer featured last summer in the Herald.

Happy Birthday was sung twice at the James Grant home, 819 N. Salem, as Jimmy, my, now 10, and Mike, 7, were honored at a quiet family celebration.

"What a way to spend a birthday!" says Mrs. James Kunnen, 1016 N. Fernandez. Greg "celebrated" his third birthday in the doctor's office having five stitches removed from his leg.

The Kunnens had been host to her mother, Mrs. Willis Koontz, and planned to take her to relatives in St. Joseph, Mich. A bottle of juice they were carrying had broken and before they'd even left town, Greg turned abruptly and gashed his leg open on the sharp edge.

CAUGHT IN Friday's downpour were the Ralph Elsners, 819 N. Kaspar, en route to dinner and "Bye Bye Birdie" downtown in honor of Shirley's 16th birthday. They'd gotten as far as downtown Arlington when the storm struck, and it took them an hour to get home to see about the children. Mrs. Elsner reports, incidentally, that despite the recent digging on Kaspar Street, the water still flowed over the parkways and up to their door.

After the rain, the Elsners hopefully started again, only to be trapped in a traffic jam on the tollway and a flooded tunnel. They finally made the 10 p.m. show.

Fortunately for the Bob Demmerts, 925 N. Harvard, their summer home is on the south side of Lake Geneva, which put them on the receiving end of all the boats and debris washed ashore in the recent storm. They lost none of their own equipment, but had a mammoth clean-up weekend to conclude their two-week vacation.

"Surprise!" sang the girls to Pat Phillipp, 644 N. Salem, at an impromptu party organized last week by her eight-year-old daughter, Marjorie, and Patti Shumate. The girls talked Patti's mother into baking a birthday cake and startled Mrs. Phillipp, who wasn't aware anything was going on.

LEAVING RIDGE Park after a two-year stay is the Don Snyder family, 720 N. Patton. They came here from Columbus, Ohio, and will be moving to Muskegon, Mich. Don, formerly assistant administrator at Northwest Community Hospital, will hold the same position at Hackley Hospital in Muskegon. Despite running the home and caring for Donna, 15, Joanne, 10, and Cathy, 9, Mrs. Snyder has been attending Elmhurst College on a full-time basis, preparing for a career as an elementary teacher.

"There's an age and place for everything," believes Gene Chapman, 903 N. Kaspar. So it was that she took her older sons, George and Johnny, to Riverview for a long-anticipated outing, along with Chris and Jonathan Bone, while Kathy Andrew visited Bobby and Danny Bone in Palatine. George, who's been planning his Riverview trip for more than a year, managed to courageously ride all of the roller coasters alone.

"What a birthday present!" exclaims Kevin Harvell about his flight to Marble Rock, Iowa. Kevin, who just turned 14, has been having a busy summer. First the family visited Saugutuck, Mich., staying at the Ship and Shore Boatel. Home again at 1206 W. Elm, they were joined by Maureen and Sharon Wilkie of Miami, Fla., for 12 days. Kevin and Patrick "did" the Chicago sights with the girls, and the four then left to visit Mrs. J. F. Staudt in Marble Rock,

WHILE THE young people were gone, the Harvells welcomed his sister and her family, just back from a tour of duty in Paris. Col. and Mrs. R. J. Spritzen and Jane Ann had fascinating stories to tell of their life there. Col. Spritzen of the Marine Corps will be stationed at Notre Dame University in charge of their ROTC program.

Ridge Park welcomes new neighbors. At 822 N. Princeton, in the former William D. Rudy home, are the Richard Gustafson family, who came here from Tampa, Fla. Mr. Gustafson, formerly a navigator with the Strategic Air Command, has recently joined IBM. Their children are Jeanne, 5½, and Robert, who'll be four this fall.

Moving into the former Eugene Schlickman home at 712 N. Fernandez are Mr. and Mrs. Michael Schafer from Chicago. Mr. Schafer is with Phelps Steamship Agency. Their children are Cathy, 2, and Mike, 8 months.

Two weeks of fishing at Red Muir's Fishing Resort in Land o' Lakes, Wis., brought perch, bass and wall-eyes for the Ron Saidikowski family, home again at 828 N. Salem. They visited her family, the Gorskis, also spending their vacation at the resort. (A

"HERE'S HOW!" say Gordon Oas-Heim (Carter), Jeri Jensen (Allyn), and Norman Rice (Helms), little realizing that after one sip of champagne, Allyn does one of the funniest "strips" ever seen on stage. It all happens in "Champagne Complex" playing, at Country Club Theatre, Old Orchard Country Club, Prospect Heights. The comedy will run through Sept. 1, and relates the story of "ecdysisism" (an uncontrollable urge to cast off the outer garments). (Bill

VIRGINIA TERRACE

New arrivals in the Terrace are Ray and Sally Davis, who moved to 1266 N. Chicago last Wednesday. The Davises and their children, Donna, 9, Denise, 7, and David, 3, lived in Detroit prior to moving to Arlington Heights. Ray is employed by Wolverine Tube Company in Norridge. Both Ray and Sally are interested in golf and cards—especially pinochle and bridge. Sally likes to bowl and in Detroit did volunteer work in the hospital. She is thrilled at present with a new hobby—learning to play the guitar. The Terrace welcomes the Davis family.

Darrell Elder recently attended the National Education Association Convention in Detroit. He was one of the 7000 delegates present at the education meetings. He made a side trip to Canada before returning to his home at 1334 N. Chicago. While Darrell was at the convention, his wife, Francine, and son, Darin, visited Mrs. Elder's parents.

Volunteer Barbers

It was haircut day at the Little City School for Retarded Children Wednesday of last week in Palatine.

Thirteen barbers from four shops in Arlington Heights donated their time and effort on a normal day off to shear 52 children.

THE PROJECT, organized by William F. Neumann of Neumann's Barber Shop at the request of Donald R. Becker, school superintendent, took two and a half hours of constant clipping.

Five barbers, including Neumann, came from Neumann's shop, four volunteered from Tom's Barber Shop, three from Arlington Market Barber Shop, an done from Jim's Barber Shop.

Bearing all necessary cutting equipment, they set to work at the school, Algonquin and Roselle roads, going from cottage to cottage.

THE ONLY thing they didn't have was a barber's chair, so piano stools rolled up to full height were substituted.

"We were glad to do it for such a cause," said Neumann. The school is a non-profit, nonsectarian organization serving approximately 75 children.

The call will go out to barbers in other towns in the future, on a rotating basis, according to Becker. (A

Notes from Arlington Acres

Notes from Arlington Acres.

While most residents of Arlington Acres were viewing Saturday's partial eclipse through do-it-yourself sunscopes, Susan Marshall, 432 S. Forrest, was in Moose River Crossing, Ontario, Canada, with a group of Northwestern University faculty members and astronomy students, observing and photographing the phenomenon which was total at that point.

The party, headed by Professor Hynek, director of Dearborn Observatory, left early Wednesday morning and drove to Cochrane, Ontario, where they boarded a special train, the "Polar Bear Express" for a five-hour ride to their camp-site. With the group were members of the staff of National Geographic and the editor of Sky and Telescope, and much of the photographing was done with cameras furnished by Life Magazine.

MOOSE RIVER Crossing in the wilds of Canada just 50 miles from James Bay, has a total population of 50, all Cree Indians with the exception of one white family, and camping was under the most primitive conditions. Lighting was furnished by kerosene lanterns, cooking done over camp fires, and drinking water drawn from a swamp and boiled. Lack of conveniences did not dampen the enthusiasm of the expedition and were even enjoyed for the few days of camping, but they found great difficulty in coping with the swarms of carnivorous flies and mosquitoes which inhabit the area.

As a director of the Northwest Shrine Club, William Bayuk, 408 S. Forrest, took an active part in the convention held in Chicago earlier this month. Headquartered in the Morrison Hotel, his club entertained out-of-town conventioneers, while the local wives saw to it that the visiting ladies enjoyed their stay. One phase of the work-and-fun convention which the Bayuks particularly enjoyed was the parade Thursday evening in which Bill took part as one of the clowns. Joan, too, was in the parade, first as the passenger in a small, chrome, scooter-type car which circled and reared on its wheels the entire parade route, and later as a more dignified rider in a white convertible.

AN ACTIVE week at the convention did not prevent the Bayuks from planning a celebration in honor of the fourth birthday of their son Mark, July 17. At an afternoon party for Kevin McGuire, Lori Spagnoli, Michael Veres, Kathy Paul, David Carlstedt and Mark's sister and brother, Karen and David. A clown theme was carried out in the cake, cupcakes, favors and games. A dinner party for the family followed the afternoon children's party. Among the guests enjoying a chicken barbecue were grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Bayuk and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Niemz of Edgebrook, family friends, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Paul of Park Ridge, and David's godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carlstedt of Mount Prospect.

Tommy Thorstad's seventh birthday on July 18 was celebrated one day early, at the summer home of his grandparents at Lake Delavan, Wis., when his parents, the James Thorstads, 412 S. Phelps, drove up there to pick up his sister, Kitty, who was taking her turn spending a few days at the lake. Tommy was wished a happy birthday by his other sisters, Susan, Janice, Barby and Patricia, and his brother, Jimmy, and several cousins, as well as the adult members of the family.

Congratulations on his July 18 birthday go across the miles to Chuck Longrie, stationed at Laughlin AFB at Del Rio, Tex. Chuck's parents are the Lyle Longries, 429 S. Forrest.

JANIE AND Susan Ashbrook, daughters of the Dexter Ashbrooks, 416 S. Forrest, enjoyed the thrill of flying to East Moline a week ago to visit the Marvin Fagerli family, friends of their parents. Since the Ashbrook family came here from E. Moline, the girls had many school friends to see and well-remembered places to visit.

Best wishes for a speedy recovery go to Mrs. F. D. McGuire, 409 S. Gibbons, who underwent surgery last week in Lutheran General Hospital, Des Plaines.

Tommy Loch's seventh birthday July 21 was well observed by his brothers, Timmy, Terry, Raymond, Michael and David, and a cousin, Claire Ann Loch of New Orleans, who was spending a few weeks visiting the Loch family, 2124 E. Park.

Earlier in the month the Lochs had played happy hosts to close friends from New Orleans, the Robert E. Cooney family. Hosts and guests enjoyed sightseeing around Chicago as well as the area closer to home.

TOMMY GANZER, son of the William Ganzers, 408 S. Prindle, was guest of honor at a luncheon party Saturday to mark his fifth birthday July 21. Guests were Peter and David Brown, Keith Moller and Bobby McMullen, as well as his brother and sisters, William, Joan Marie, Mary Pat, Kathryn and Janet.

On the following day Tommy shared the birthday honors with Grandpa Tyler of Evanston at a family dinner.

Polly and Frank Pipkin, whose parents are the Charles Pipkins, 508 S. Prindle, are enjoying a vacation in Aspen, Colo., where Polly is spending every available minute on the back of a horse. While Frank is getting in a lot of horseback riding, it is not his favorite sport as it is Polly's. An aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chamberlain are enjoying the visit as much as the children, especially since they were able to congratulate Frank in person on his July 17 birthday.

JUST BACK from a trip to Las Cruces, N. M., is the Richard Christiansen family, 428 S. Waterman. With Jack, Linda, Cindy and Dick, the family drove, taking eight days to make the trip, with interesting stops all along the way. One highlight was a tour of Carlsbad Caverns, another a side trip to Juarez. While in Las Cruces the Christiansens were

'Circus' for Shop Center

Three live elephants are now appearing at the Mount Prospect Plaza, Central and Rand Roads, Mount Prospect.

The elephants, named Jeannie, Myrtle and Miss Thailand, are performing twice daily in a standard size circus ring. Performances will be held this Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Jeannie pulls a cart which children may ride in free of charge with tickets obtained in any store in the Plaza. No purchases are necessary to obtain tickets.

THE CIRCUS performance includes King, a fighting lion presented by Arokiswami Arumaisingh of Madras, India; elephant Jeannie in the Indian torture press act; Myrtle in a fan dance and a ball game with children, and others.

Miss Thailand, a veteran of the "Romper Room" television show, is reported to be the smallest and youngest baby elephant on tour today.

Also exhibited will be George, a baby chimpanzee; a talking Macaw bird, and other entertaining animals.

Residents wanting to know times of the circus performances may call 255-0644 or inquire at any Plaza store.

Indian to Demonstrate 'Wrapping'

This Thursday, July 25, at 3 p.m. in the yard goods department of the Goldblatt Store, located at Central and Rand Road, Mount Prospect Plaza, Arokiswami Arumaisingh of Madras, India, will demonstrate how to wrap a "sari."

This is done with a single piece of cloth approximately eight yards long. He will also show how the turban — so familiar to the men of India — is wrapped.

The same demonstration will be presented Saturday at Noon at the G. C. Murphy Store, also located in Mount Prospect Plaza. (BB

Every Business To Get a Number

Standard identification numbers are now being assigned to all manufacturers in the Chicago area by Dun & Bradstreet, business information agency, as part of a new nationwide program which will eventually identify every business in the country for electronic data processing purposes.

Gordon J. Aubrecht, Dun & Bradstreet Chicago district manager, states that the issuance of these seven-digit identification numbers is the first step in establishing what will be known as the Data Universal Numbering System. The numbers will be referred to generally as D-U-N-S numbers. This is seen as a step toward establishing a common numeric language between computer systems.

WITH A D-U-N-S number, each business will be guaranteed singular identification. Difficulties arising from different companies having similar names, operations or locations, will be eliminated. Other concerns with whom they do business will be able to use the D-U-N-S numbers in their computers for automated accounting operations. Increased accuracy and speedier handling of paperwork will result.

G. J. Aubrecht reported that many of the nation's larger retailers are planning to utilize this numbering system initially for electronic processing of their accounts payable beginning early in 1964. Manufacturers should arrange to print their D-U-N-S numbers on their invoices as an aid to their customers. Manufacturers with more than one billing location will be assigned a number for each point.

WHILE D&B will assign numbers to all manufacturers, those wanting their number immediately may contact any of D&B's 138 offices in major United States cities for immediate service. There is no charge for these numbers.

Human errors such as transposition of digits in the numbers will be eliminated by the inclusion of a "built-in check digit" which will verify the accuracy and sequence of the remainder of the number. Data processing equipment will automatically reject incorrect numbers. The numbering system is compatible with all such electronic equipment irrespective of trade name or manufacturer.

Oak Park Savings Reports Rapid Growth in 1st Half

John P. Domeier, president and chairman of Oak Park Federal Savings, released June 30 figures indicating a record-setting pattern of growth for the association.

Total resources increased to $167,350,000 from $130,000,00 in June, 1962, and from $146,500,000 at the beginning of this year.

Reserves were strengthened, to $8,051,000.00.

During the first half of the year, 1,109 formal loan applications were processed. This figure, compared to the 662 applications received during the first half of 1962, reflects a dynamic growth for the association's mortgage loan portfolio, which is contrary to the national trend in a sticky new-residential construction market.

TOTAL outstanding loans increased from $110,251,822.27 in the first half of 1962, to $144,232,639.80 for the same period in 1963.

The number of new savings accounts opened were 8,394, compared to 4,790 in the first half of 1962, increasing in amount from $4,500,000 to $7,756,000. Outstanding savings total $134,721,000 compared to 1962's first-half figure of $105,172,000.

Earnings of $1,362,300 were paid to savers for the April-May-June quarter. (BB

A WARNING

Watch Out for 'Free' Offers

by A. B. JOHNSTON
Executive Vice President
Chicago Better Business Bureau

Planning to sell your home? Not all respondents to that want ad you placed may be interested in buying. The Better Business Bureau suggests extreme caution if a prospective buyer wants to rent your home as an office and offers to reside it "free."

This approach is just another version of the widely condemned "demonstration home pitch." He may represent himself as an officer or son of the president of an aluminum siding firm which wants to establish a branch sales office in your neighborhood.

Your house happens to be just what his firm is seeking. Due to his supposed position he is prepared to make you an astonishing offer, he says.

ACTUALLY HE is a salesman whose sole purpose is to get your signature on a contract to reside your house.

First, he says your house will be completely sided with aluminum or simulated stone. His firm is going to do this to display the fine quality of work prospective customers can expect from his company. Naturally the market value of your house will be handsomely increased.

He further claims his firm will rent your house for a full year, paying a full year's rental in advance. There will be no worry about damage because only one or two of the first floor rooms will be used as an office.

THERE IS one small detail. This agreement must be a secret. Competitors and your neighbors must not know of the arrangement.

What a sweet deal this appears to be—too good to pass up. You increase the value of your home, receive a full year's rent in advance and still own the house at the end of the year.

But, it does not work that way. The "authorization" you sign, giving your consent to the application of aluminum siding is, in fact, a regular sales contract. After the siding is on, the check you are given for rent may turn out to be a loan on which you are paying high interest.

THE "SECRET" agreement is to prevent you from disclosing facts to the financing institution which would recognize the irregularity of the deal.

By the time the payment book had been received the "owner's" son may be 10 states away. Renting your house was just a come-on. He is probably now working the same deal on another unsuspecting customer in another town. (BB

Coe Named Lake Villa President

ERNEST COE

Coe as President and Director of the Lake Villa Trust and Savings Bank. Coe, for the past five years, has been Vice President of the Palatine National Bank, a position he will retain with his added duties.

He attended the University of Chicago and is also a graduate of American Institute of Banking. He served two terms as President of Palatine Chamber of Commerce, and has served on the Board of Directors of various civic groups.

During World War II, Coe served in the 7th Army in Europe as a Sergeant in the 3rd Infantry Division. He was decorated with two Bronze Stars for valor.

He resides at 2368 W. Warren St., with his wife, Mary, and their three children.

Gocke Takes Post with Crusade

Robert E. Gocke, 164 Highland Road, Palatine, has accepted a key leadership post in the industry division of the 1963 Crusade of Mercy, it was announced today by Donald M. Graham, general campaign chairman.

Gocke, a vice president of The Greyhound Corp., is chairman of the airlines and buses group in Chicago's largest charitable drive.

The 1963 campaign will begin officially on Sept. 30, with a goal of $16,551,000 to help support 142 Community Fund agencies and the Chicago Red Cross. In 1962, the annual drive surpassed its goal for the fourth straight year.

In his capacity as head of the airlines and buses group, Gocke will oversee volunteers who will seek corporate gifts and institute and improve payroll deduction plans in employee campaigns.

Here's Secret of Controlling Fly

The secret of fly control is sanitation plus insecticides.

According to University of Illinois entomologist Steve Moore, sanitation will reduce the number of flies to a point where insecticides can control them.

Covered garbage cans with tight lids and solid bottoms will help reduce fly numbers around the house. On a farm, clean animal pens twice a week and scatter the debris in fields to dry, or compost or bury it. Flies breed in any moist, decaying organic material. Proper disposal of breeding material is the first big step in house fly control.

MOORE recommends using diazinon, ronnel or dimethoate to control flies. Mix the chemical with water according to directions on the container. Spray liberally around the garbage can and adjacent areas, as well as on outside surfaces where flies roost.

Baits made with corn sirup combined with any of the three chemicals (diazinon, ronnel or dimethoate) or such insecticides as dipterex, DDVP or dibrom may be used to attract and kill flies. Put some of the mixture into small containers, and place it where flies congregate.

One insecticide, dimetilan comes impregnated in red plastic bands about two inches wide and six feet long. These bands can be hung from support posts or rafters in a barn or garage and will kill flies that land on them.

USE BAITS and insecticides with extreme care so that children cannot reach them.

Observe precautions listed on insecticide packages for using and storing. (BB

'King Arthur' Offers New Idea For Investors

Eugene LaPointe, 913 Margret, Des Plaines, is one of the founding members of a new investors' organization, believed to be the first of its kind in the real estate field, called King Arthur Investors' Round Table.

LaPointe, sales manager for a bakery firm, is the owner of a 14-apartment King Arthur building at 191 Villa Ave., Addison, and one of many "arm-chair" investors in the resort apartment complex in Addison originated by William G. Riley, president, the Riley Management Corporation, Bellwood.

The King Arthur investors are all persons in the professions and business who wish to own income property but have neither the time nor the inclination to assume the responsibility of rentals and other management details. Riley Management, when it sells a building to an investor, takes over these day-to-day operations.

"THE PURPOSE of the King Arthur Investors' Round Table is advisory and is based on the mutual desire of all of us to work toward perpetual enhancement of the King Arthur resort living concept," said LaPointe. "We already provide for tenants a wide range of recreational facilities right on the King Arthur grounds, and are considering adding more as time goes on."

The present amenities of resort living for King Arthur tenants, in both the Addison complex and the new one under development in Northlake, include Olympic-sized pools, tennis courts, putting greens, boating on private streams right on the property, barbeque pits and little parks with fountains. All these facilities are provided at no extra charge with rentals of $139 a month. All King Arthur apartments are one-bedroom units, designed for both individuals and families without children. (BB

Bruning Talks Merger

Charles Bruning Co., Mount Prospect, which makes copying equipment, is discussing merger with the Addressograph-Multigraph Corp.

If the merger talks bear fruit, Bruning would become a division to Addressograph. The merger would be accomplished by exchanging Addressograph stock for Bruning stock.

A merger would have to be approved by directors and stockholders of the two companies.

BRUNING makes copying machines and related sensitized papers, cloths and films which are used to make white prints, which are sold under the name Copyflex. The company also sells drafting materials, engineering instruments and surveying equipment.

Addressograph, based in Cleveland, makes and sells duplicating machines, carbon papers, inks, ribbons and electronic data processing machines and supplies.

Last year Bruning's sales totaled $51,353,973. Addressograph's sales in a 12-month period ending last April 30 were $180,697,373. (BB

Kangaroos can attain speeds of up to 30 miles per hour and can attain heights of over 10 feet in leaps as long as 42 feet.

Personalize Floor Plan with Dividers

Practical ways to use divider walls in home improvement projects are included in a colorful new 24-page guide to room planning and interior decoration, prepared by famous New York designer Ving Smith.

Dividers can be used effectively in every room of the house, Smith says, and his drawings and pictures illustrate the point.

HE SHOWS how a divider can be used to screen the eating area from the food preparation center in the kitchen . . .compartmentize the bathroom . . increase the livability of a family room . . . establish privacy in a shared teen bedroom . . .and dramatize a standard living room.

Smith states that dividers can be built quickly without a lot of muss. For instance, plastic-surfaced Marlite planks can be applied to framing with adhesive, and no finishing is necessary.

A copy of Ving Smith's guide for homeowners can be obtained by sending 25 cents to the Home Service Bureau, P. O. Box 652, Dover, Ohio. (BB

Drill Team Has Saturday Date

by SONDI BAKER
Staff Writer

Spotless.

That's the way 100 white tennis shoes worn by 50 attractive Arlington High School girls will look this weekend.

One hundred white gloves will be equally immaculate.

"You have to do it to win," the girls say. "It's all a part of contest requirements."

This Saturday and Sunday the Cornet drill team, an up-and-coming precision marching group organized at the local school 18 months ago, enter their second and third competitive events against other similar teams.

Despite the group's title, neither instruments nor music is involved.

An increasingly popular extracurricular activity for teenagers, the Cornets specialize in precision marching demonstrations featuring formations and rhythmical, intricate steps. Their formations are noted for covering the marching field rather than clustering.

Twice-weekly summer practices and more frequent drills during the past school year paid off last month.

IN THEIR first competitive attempt four weeks ago, they were runners-up in a field of more experienced marching teams.

The second place win at the State Veterans of Foreign Wars contest was termed "an excellent showing for such a new group" by judges.

The marchers travel to the National Music Contest at South Milwaukee Saturday, hoping to secure their second trophy this summer.

Sunday they will participate in a parade in Woodstock.

The summer appearances will be highlighted Aug. 11 with an appearance at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield.

Mrs. A. Kenneth Chapin, Mundelein, organized and is the adult leader of the Cornets which are jointly sponsored by the high school and the local VFW Post 981.

Mrs. Chapin has participated in, or worked with, girls' drill teams for eight years. She is also leader of the Cardettes, a baton twirling squad in Arlington Heights.

The Cornets' premier performance took place at Arlington High's homecoming last fall. Other local appearances included the Arlington Heights Memorial Day parade.

"Competition is anything but easy," Mrs. Chapin explained recently.

MINUTE details in appearance and performance are considered strongly in contests.

Pistol shots signal the team onto the field for eight-minute routines with strict time limits. Shots also warn girls of nearing completion deadlines and the end of time limits.

A "showy" appearance is necessary, too.

The Cornets' uniforms, in addition to their spotless white shoes and gloves, consist of brilliant red corduroy bermudas with white side-stripes, red corduroy vests, long-sleeved white blouses and white socks.

Matching Western-style hats with white plumes and bands top the smart ensembles.

Joan Kastning, one of the corps heads, explained judges look for "sharp" creases in bermudas, "complete absence" of visible buttons, and even the absence of straying wisps of hair.

"The judges at the VFW contest told us many similar teams wear hair-nets during competition to make hairdos standard," the corps head said. "But only during competition!" she emphasized.

Normal feminine vanity produced a generally negative reaction to the hair-net suggestion, but some Cornets indicated nets "may" be worn in future contests—"for the sake of competition."

Uniforms of the color guard sergeants differ slightly. They wear cranberry-and-white pleated skirts instead of bermudas. White boots replace tennis shoes. Majorette-type hats are also worn by the color guard who march with flags of the United States, VFW, Arlington High, and the drill corps itself.

Each girl "or mother" made or purchased individual uniforms, one mother said.

HATS AND color guard equipment were purchased recently for permanent use of the corps, financed with funds raised by the girls. Concession stands at school athletic events and other projects were undertaken during the past year. Last summer a hamburger stand was set up during Arlington Heights' Sidewalk Days.

The girls hope to be able to finance permanent uniforms for the corps in the future.

Mrs. Chapin said members are chosen in spring tryouts after a three-day clinic held by experienced members who teach drill fundamentals to all interested high school girls.

"The group is becoming more and more popular at the school," she exclaimed. "About 150 tried out this spring."

Three-day tryouts follow the clinic. All members must try out annually.

Judges are Mrs. Chapin, high school faculty members, and graduating Cornets.

This summer the team is composed of girls who graduated this spring, as well as others who will be sophomores, juniors, or seniors in September.

Two sets of twins and three members of one family belong to the drill team.

Twins Karen and Carol McNeeley both joined the Cornets.

TWINS Michelle and Marcia Hoggay, seniors this fall, are color guard sergeants. Their sister, Mary, a sophomore in September, is a new member.

There may be extra practices this week, according to June Klassen, secretary of the corps.

"We're hoping — win or lose, however, we have a lot of fun," she concluded. "We're just starting!"

Sale Saturday

Shetland Pony Lovers Flock to Terry-Jean's

Shetland pony buyers from all over the country are arriving for the second annual production sale at Terry-Jean Stables, Palatine, Saturday, July 27.

Terry-Jean Stables is a major project of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Andersen.

When they started in the Shetland pony business six years ago, their objective was to purchase the best mares and have the best herd sires possible. For the latter they chose King's Big Shot and Hillswicke's Captain Supreme.

Big Shot bore out his assignment by being selected the grand champion stallion of the 1960 National Shetland Congress and Captain Supreme followed through by winning the championship stake, 42 and under, in harness at the same show and repeated in 1961.

Both have won numerous other awards of major importance and Captain Supreme has an undefeated string of more than 30 classes, going through two years.

AFTER THE Andersens established their breeding program, they planned to have production sales once a year. This is their second offering.

For the sale they have selected fine mares carrying the service of King's Big Shot and Hillswicke's Captain Supreme, some with foals at their side. One and two-year-old colts and fillies by these two champions will be offered; some have been in training and are ready for the show ring.

Also included are some mature sons of Big Shot and Captain Supreme and mares bred to the Hackney herd sire, Rex's Parader, some with foals by him at their side, which will qualify for registration as Americana ponies.

TERRY-JEAN Stables is named for the Andersen grandchildren, aged 14 and 12, who are active in stable activities and drive and handle the ponies. Mr. Andersen is well-known in area real estate activities with an office in Wheeling.

Terry-Jean Stables is located at the corner of Algonquin and Ela Road. In past years, buffalo and deer were featured there, but activities now center on the ponies. Bob Meeks is trainer.

The sale begins at 10 a.m. and is open to the public. Individual buyers are welcomed. The ponies are trained for children to use in harness and to show.

HINTS TO HOMEOWNERS

by James Fizzell, Associate Farm Advisor

ALERT HOMEOWNERS DIAL DAILY 392-3060

Mid-summer is the time when borers take their biggest toll of new trees. Healthy, vigorous trees are resistant to borers. Newly planted trees or trees suffering from drought or crowding are particularly inviting to borers.

Some of our most commonly planted materials are host to damaging borers. These include Ash, Birch, Elm, Honeylocust, Lilac, Maple, Oak, Sycamore, Willow, and others. Pine is also subject to attack.

Prevention of borer attack is more successful than attempts as a cure. To discourage borer attack, keep the trunks of newly set trees wrapped with heavy paper for the first two years, or until the trees are established and growing vigorously. Start the wrap just below the lowest branch and spiral it downward to the ground. Heap soil around the base of the tree to close the space between the wrap and the ground. Secure the wrapping in place with stout twine.

BORER ATTACK can be prevented, for the most part, by a DDT spray applied to tree trunks; 4 pounds of 50 per cent DDT wettable powder or 1 gallon of 25 per cent DDT emulsifiable concentrate to 100 gallons of water. Designed to kill young borers as they hatch from eggs on the bark, the spray should be applied at monthly intervals throughout the summer, beginning about May 1. Use a spreader sticker in the spray to increase coverage. Application of DDT to the entire tree is not recommended unless necessary as such application may result in serious infestations of mites and aphids. A durable insecticide deposit can be made from DDT, powdered skim milk, and water. To a mixture of 4 parts of 50 per cent DDT, wettable powder and 1 part of powdered skim milk, enough water is added to make a smooth slurry that can be applied to the trunks of trees with a paint brush. Dead and dying branches should be pruned from infested trees and burned. Borers in the wood can be killed if the tunnels are cleaned out with a piece of wire and carbon disulfide or nicotine sulfate is injected into the holes with an oil can. The holes should be plugged with putty after treatment. Carbon disulfide is highly inflammable and can be ignited by a spark or cigarette.

Some new materials applied to the trunk of the tree will kill borers already feeding. Work on a systemic insecticide continues; however, the prospect is not too encouraging. (BB

Wick-watering may help your plants fend for themselves when you're away on vacation this summer—if you can't get someone to water them in your absence. We suggest setting up the wick-watering system several weeks before you plan to leave, just to be sure it works. Here's how to do it:

First, water all plants thoroughly. Submerge the pots up to the rims in tepid water for 15 to 20 minutes, and syringe all foliage except the hairy-leaved types. Then set all pots around a large container of water. The container should be level with or preferably higher than the pots. Or you can use several individual quart bottles of water. Do not use water that has gone through a home-type water softener.

To convey the water from the container to the plants, use lengths of cotton wicking or clothesline (with sizing removed). Cover the middle section of each wick strip with aluminum foil to prevent excessive evaporation. Insert one end of the strip in the water and the other end in the soil of each pot. A two-week supply is about one quart of water for two six-inch pots.

Putting each plant into a polyethylene bag will also help to conserve soil moisture while you are away. Don't completely seal the bags—allow for some air movement. Keep the bagged plants in bright light, never in direct sunlight.

WHILE YOU ARE making preparation to leave for your vacation, plan to put your yard in good shape. An unkempt yard is a sure sign that the tenants of the home are away and can be an invitation to vandals or prowlers.

Mow and edge your lawn just before you leave. If you plan to be gone more than just a few days have a neighbor mow while you are away. More than likely one of the neighborhood youngsters would be happy to pick up some spare money this way.

Weed the borders and garden. A mulch will help keep weeds down for two weeks or more. Pick off any old and any blooming flowers, and any ripe fruit in the garden. Here again, neighbors will usually be more than willing to keep the flowers and fruit picked while you are gone.

As an added protection have your newspapers and mail delivery stopped and arrange to have lights in the house turned on and off during evening hours. A simple timer can be purchased to do this job.

With these preparations, you can leave on your vacation, free from worry and sure that your home and your plantings too will be safe and secure until you return.

Hopes to Find Shark Repellent

Joe's Aim: To Establish Station Under Sea

Heads for Jamaica And 'Exploration'

by BOB YEARICK
Staff Writer

Joe Strykowski, 225 S. Waterman Ave., Arlington Heights, has written three books, studied four years to be a priest, speared sharks, photographed an hour and 15 minute film, played semi-pro football, and been mistaken for Lloyd Bridges.

All this, as they say, in 28 years.

Strykowski's next — and, he says, most important — project is to establish an oceanographic station at Negril, Jamaica. He expects construction to begin by Oct. 1. In March, he plans to have a five-man staff, with perhaps 10 to 15 more added by summer of 1964.

The station's initial research will be on sharks, Strykowski said. He plans to capture the man-eaters, which feed a few miles off the Jamaican shore, and study them in an attempt to develop a shark repellent.

"WORK HAS been done on this subject since World War II," Strykowski said. "But nothing fool-proof has been developed."

He emphasized that repellent research will only be a beginning.

"We hope to explore each and every aspect of oceanography," he said.

His staff will consist of two men from the University of Miami, two from the Wood's Hole Marine Institution and one from the University of Wisconsin. All are working on their doctorates in oceanography, Strykowski said.

The 6-5, 195-pounder will work on his masters and doctorate degrees at the University of Kingston (Jamaica) in marine biology.

TO FINANCE the project Strykowski and his staff will conduct 14-day undersea expeditions around their station. For $250, a customer will receive a round-trip air ticket from Miami, plus all necessary diving gear.

The laboratory may receive a grant from the National Science Foundation after it has shown substantial progress, Strykowski said.

To prepare himself for directing construction of the oceanographic station, he quit his job with an electrical firm two months ago and went to work for a construction company. He had been writing technical journals for Andrew Antennas in Orland Park.

Strykowski graduated from the University of Illinois with an arts degree in social sciences. He then joined the army for six months.

ABOUT HIS curtailed study for the priesthood, Strykowski says, "One day I just decided it wasn't for me. If there's one thing I value, it's my freedom, and I didn't want to give it up. I have great respect for the men (priests), but I decided I didn't want to be one of them."

Apparently, there were no hard feelings, because Joe premiered his film, "The Silent Reef," at St. Bonaventure Seminary in Wisconsin, where he was a student for four years.

The true-life film is about a Jamaican fisherman who is confronted with a scarcity of fish. It turns out two boys are using dynamite to stun the fish.

During the filming, Strykowski killed an attacking shark. He used a spear-gun with an exploding head.

"THE SHARK'S stomach was blown apart from the explosion," he said. "It was really a frightening sight to see him almost bent in half, snapping at his own entrails."

It was on the plane to Jamaica to make the film that Strykowski was mistaken for Lloyd Bridges. A stewardess offered to put Strykowski's underwater camera, which he was holding, in a safe place.

The woman behind him heard the conversation and jumped to incorrect conclusion.

"I knew it!" she said. "My son watches your program all the time. You're Lloyd Bridges, aren't you?"

Strykowski explained that he wasn't, but it turned out that he did work as a stand-in on Bridges' "Sea Hunt" television show.

Joe's fling at semi-pro football was short-lived.

"I HAD three teeth knocked out and decided football and I didn't get along."

He has authored or co-authored three books: "Scuba," "Scuba II," and the "Underwater Yearbook."

The yearbook was the first of its kind. Strykowski sent the first copy to President Kennedy, who, he said, sent him a letter complimenting him on his effort.

Joe has also donated articles to magazines such as Skin Diver, Diver Below, Ontario Diver, Underwater Naturalist and Diver's Delegate.

Strykowski can reel off facts and statistics for hours which, he says, prove that the United States should spend more money on underwater study and less on space programs.

"IF WE went into an all-out crash program, and if the Russians stood still in their oceanographic studies, it would still take us 10 years to catch up," he says.

"In one day, we spend as much on space research as we do on underwater programs for an entire year."

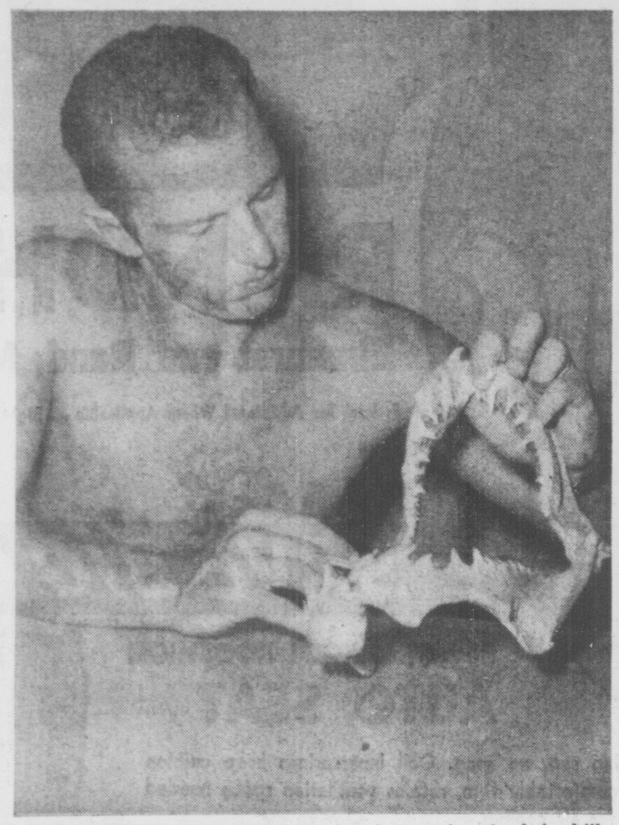
Through his Jamaican station, Joe hopes to encourage young people to study oceanography.

His interest was first stimulated when he read Jules Vernes' "Twenty Thous a nd Leagues Under the Sea."

"I received a copy for my birthday when I was a kid," Strykowski said. "I must have read it a dozen times. From then on, I read anything I could get my hands on that dealt with the sea."

Since then, Joe has developed into an expert scuba, skin and hard-head diver. He is also an internationally certified diving instructor. This summer, he teaches classes each Monday at Park Ridge YMCA.

In a few months, he will be in Jamaica at his own research station, using all his accumulated knowledge. Perhaps he will make a major contribution to "catching up with the Russians." (A14



STRYKOWSKI EXAMINES the jaw bones of a shark he killed while photographing an underwater film near Jamaica. He used a speargun with an exploding head, which he designed himself.

JOE STRYKOWSKI emerges from pool at Park Ridge YMCA. He teaches underwater diving classes there one night each week. His course has become one of the most popular YMCA activities in the area.

Zany Dress Award To Bartlett Woman

A Bartlett woman was named winner last Thursday in an "Out-Do-Me-in - Dressing - Up" contest judged by Phyllis Diller, zany comedienne famed for her exaggerated costumes.

Carol Drzonek, 110 Berteder, received a $100 fall wardrobe as first prize in the contest co-sponsored by Radio Station WIND and William A. Lewis Co.

The contest was part of WIND Day at Randhurst, Mount Prospect.

FORTY WOMEN took part in the judging. Each participant received a $10 gift certificate and a Phyllis Diller record album.

Miss Diller described the costumes as "some of the most outlandish and hysterical I've ever seen!"

Prior to judging, she entertained 1,000 spectators at the Lewis store in Randhurst.

The popular TV and night club star is currently appearing at Drury Lane Theatre.

The radio personalities were Tom Sherwood, Bruce Lee, Perry Marshall, and Lee Rodgers.

Colored Fruit Aids Shoppers

By BARBARA ANN DAVIS

Since Saturday is an unusually busy day, an information booth has been activated on the main mall. Cathye, who presides over this booth, is on vacation so taking her place is "little" Marsha. Last Saturday I relieved Marsha during her lunch break and discovered "information" to be a very broad statement!

Actually, this booth is a "lost and found" . . . would you watch "junior" . . . where can I find an ice-cream freezer . . . would you page my husband . . . how do I reach Dr. Grogman's office . . . where can I find 40 dollars . . . and, where's Carson's, The Fair and Wieboldt's? It's really very simple to find your way around Randhurst. The three major department stores are located on each point of the triangle with Wieboldt's facing North.

Randhurst might be compared with a "fruit" salad with the first observation of "fruitfulness" noted when driving into the spacious parking area. In place of a parking meter, an orange, apple, plum, lime and peach appear to designate your selected parking area. This color "scheme" and fruit association is carried out "inside" the building. Inside "lanes" are also named after a specific fruit and exit to the parking lot of same color and name.

A quick mental note of color and fruit association aids you in every direction. If you utilize the lockers, don't panic if you forget where your locker is located. Logically speaking, your locker should be located in the arcade nearest your parking area. The lockers are numbered as follows: Wieboldt arcade 1-204; Fair arcade 205-337; and Carson's arcade 338-470. Should you suffer a complete mental block, the security and maintenance men circulating the mall will come to your assistance.

In answer to a few more questions asked daily, there is an elevator "inside" Randhurst (located in the "lime" lane and services the professional terrace) . . . strollers are available in each arcade entrance . . . and, wheel chairs may be rented for a nominal fee at Sun Drugs.

There should be no need to get lost inside or outside of Randhurst as the architects designed this center to be easy and enjoyable.

Behind a "swinging" ebony door with smoked glass and oval-shaped windows is one of the most talked about rooms "inside" Randhurst. The richness and elegance of this room is magnified by the use of "gold" carried out in velvet paneled walls, ceramic tiled floors, faucets and towel dispensers. Shades of red dominate the velvet appointments, mosaic ceramic-tiled ceiling and marble bowls. Italian, theatrical lights line the mirrors. A $4,000 crystal chandelier, imported from Vienna, lights up this magnificent room and sets off each color in the tile to "glitter' 'and dance with delight. One might expect tea to be served at any time. Only the best for "mi lady!"

No, John, this is not a "gaslight" tavern. This is a $65,000 "ladies" lounge located on the second floor of Wieboldt's.

All-English Mass Is Demonstrated

MILWAUKEE, (UPI) — Three Marquette University theology graduate students were among the performers at a demonstration of a proposed all English mass for the Roman Catholic Church at St. Benedict the Moor Auditorium.

The English rite demonstration mass may influence changes in Roman Catholic liturgy at the second Vatican council, which reconvenes in Rome this fall. Several of the liturgical changes contained in the work are being considered by the council.

THE DEMONSTRATION was composed by Chicago organist and choirmaster Dennis Fitzpatrick.

New features in the proposed mass are the use of English throughout the mass and several ritual changes including the distribution of both wine and bread at communion instead of bread alone, and the restoration of processions at the beginning, gospel, and offertory parts of the mass.

Recordings of it are being sent to all American Bishops along with altar missals. (A-14

Repair Bridge At Alton

ALTON, (UPI)—The Clark Bridge, which spans the Mississippi here, will be closed for about three weeks early next month for repairs, the Illinois Highway Division announced yesterday.

Traffic is to be rerouted over the Chain-of-Rocks Bridge while the work is being done.

E. R. Ailes, assistant district engineer, said cracks have begun to appear in a $580,000 roadway that was laid in 1959, causing the need for repairs.

Late-Late Tavern Licenses Sought

The plight of taverns in unincorporated areas of Cook County facing less restrictive operation of similar spots within village limits was discussed at the county board meeting Monday.

Late closing hours of competing night clubs, taverns and roadhouses was cited as a reason some club and tavern owners might seek annexation to surrounding municipalities, cutting the county off from their sales tax revenue.

The "glitter gulch" area along Mannheim Road near O'Hare Field was one spot pointed out by Commissioner Charles F. Chaplin, R—Northbrook, as being hit hard by competition. Chaplin introduced a resolution for a special late-late liquor license several months ago.

AFTER HEARING testimony from representatives of the Retail Liquor Dealers Association of Illinois supporting the resolution, the county board deferred action until their next meeting Aug. 9.

Under Chaplin's proposal a special late-late license would permit clubs and taverns to stay open until 4 a.m. The late-late license fee would be $1,000 in addition to the basic $500 fee for all liquor licenses.

Present county regulations permit taverns to stay open until 1 a.m. each day and 2 a.m. Sunday for the $500 license. A late license may be purchased for an extra $850 permitting the tavern to remain open to 2 a.m. each day.

Chaplin noted that some of the motels and clubs around O'Hare Field represented large investments. He said the county must make it possible for these places to operate profitably.

Becomes a Bootlicker

MADISON, WIS., (UPI)—Dane County Deputy Sheriff Richard Tellefson said yesterday he plans to switch his brand of shoe polish.

While engaged in a conversation the other day, Hector, the county police dog, licked all the polish off his shoes.

"I thought Hector liked me an awful lot until I opened the polish bottle later," said Tellefson. "It smells just like chocolate." (A14

MOUNT PROSPECT

The song, "Illinois," was the theme of the Camp Fire Girl float in the July 4th parade in Mount Prospect. Patriotic music was the parade theme, and so, in keeping with that idea, the state song was chosen for the float. Mount Prospect's 'original' Camp Fire Girl, Bertha Ehard, was the originator of the idea.

Mrs. Jane Webb, public relations chairman and historian, was in charge of the decorating committee. Assisting her were Geraldine Childers, Sue Beesley, Lillian Floros, Helen Becker and Eunice Granzin.

For the float, Richard Webb cut out a large Illinois map shape and an Abraham Lincoln face shape in the center. Also on the float was the Illinois state bird, a cardinal, and the state flower, the violet. The Illinois song was played by John Drnec on the accordion as the float passed along.

Representing the various levels of Camp Fire Girls were Carol Floros, Blue Bird; Linda Webb, Camp Fire; Janie Beesley, Junior Hi; and Beverly Potter, Horizon Club.

Riding in the vehicle pulling the float were Mary Hansen, General Chairman of the Mount Prospect District, and Naomi Jaacks, Leaders Association Chairman. (B9

ELK GROVE VILLAGE

Twenty-two Brownies from Elk Grove Village attended the second session of day camp at Camp Pine, according to Mrs. Billie Harriet, bus attendance taker and camp counselor.

During this session of camp, fairytales were the main theme and group counselors and other adults were known by fairytale names. Counselors for the Elk Grove group were known as "Snow White" and "Rose Red."

The Brownies visited the Nature Center, held three cookouts, handled assigned camp chores and hiked through the woods guided by a naturalist. The groups presented a program, based on fairytales, the last day of the session.

ROLLING MEADOWS

Many varieties of water animal life were carried back from Troop 633's recent bike hike.

June 29, 15 girls assembled to load their bikes on a rented trailer. The Scouts then proceded to Deer Grove where they enjoyed the hilly terrain, Forest Preserve scenery and their sack lunches. Andrea Matthey and Gerry Krammer led in a few games as part of a badge requirement.

Participating in the activities were Mrs. Richard Kocian, Mrs. Kenneth Liszewski, Mrs. Giles Talik and Mrs. Robert Winsell. The group is grateful to Mr. Kocian for handling the bike transportation.

Troop 633 is now looking forward to a backyard camping experience in the fall. (B9

Pros, Stars Raring to Go

College Boys Horning Out Big but Lack Pro's Savvy

But Packers Still Tough

Chicago, July 25 — It is a rare occasion when the College All-Stars are unable to match the professional football champions in size, speed, and ability.

This year will be no exception when the Collegians battle the Green Bay Packers in the 30th annual All-Star game, Aug. 2 at Soldier Field.

Last year the point was driven home to the mighty Packers. An unheralded All-Star team rocked the champions back on their heels and held the lead as late as the third quarter.

GREEN BAY was forced to call upon all its championship savvy to put on a whirlwind finish and make away with a 42 to 20 victory.

Quarterback Bart Starr of the Packers set an individual All-Star game record by passing for five touchdowns as Green Bay exploded from a shaky 21 to 20 lead entering the final period.

The 1963 All-Stars have the size, speed, and ability to cope with the Packers. However, only a superlative effort will be able to nullify the experience possessed by the Pros.

From 15 to 20 All-Stars will weigh at least 250 pounds when they go up against the Packers. Most of the Collegians, especially the linemen, checked into their training camp at Northwestern University with more weight than they packed in school.

THE OBVIOUS reason is to help them in their pro careers. For example, tackle Bob Vogel of Ohio State, who played college ball at 235 pounds, checked into camp at 255.

"I held my weight down in college because of the system," said Vogel, who is 6 feet 5 inches tall. "With the emphasis on running at Ohio State, it called for a lot of down field blocking."

Now Vogel wants to carry that extra 20 pounds when he is called upon to battle those huge defensive ends and tackles in the pro league.

The All-Stars this year also have speed to burn. This is exemplified by Bob Paremore, a flashy half back from Florida A. & M.

PAREMORE once ran the 100 yard dash in a track meet in 9.3 seconds, but all it got him was second place. His teammate, Bob Hayes, won in the world record time of 9.2 seconds. Hayes subsequently has lowered the standard to 9.1 seconds.

Paremore also possesses a rare quality as runner. He is

West De Pere, Wis., July 25 — The Green Bay Packers will be minus the services of four members of last year's National Football league championship team when they play the College All-Stars on the night of August 2 in Chicago's Soldiers Field.

Two of the absentees are regulars. They are Paul Horning, the fabled halfback who is on suspension for gambling, and defensive Bill Quinlan who was traded during the winter layoff. Also missing will be John Symank, a defensive backfield reserve who was dispatched along with Quinlan, and Nelson Toburen, a substitute line backer still bothered by a back injury suffered last season.

Horning's running halfback berth against the All-Stars will be filled by one of two men, both of them capable performers. Tom Moore, who played the position part of last year while Horning was injured, has the inside track. The other aspirant is Earl Gros, a second year man from L.S.U. who has been understudy for fullback, Jim Taylor.

EXCEPT for Horning and Quinlan, the Packer offensive and defensive starting units against the All-Stars likely will be the same potent platoon which pulverized National league opposition in 1962 with the notable exception of the Detroit Lions.

Bart Starr, who finally is coming into his own after years of fighting for national recognition will direct the Packer attack. The astute blond quarterback last season completed 178 passes for 2,438 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Starr's favorite receiver against the All-Stars are expected to be the same trio which annually sends opposing N.F.L. coaches scurrying for the ulcer pills. The talented triumvirate are Boyd Dowler and Max McGee, both of whom snagged 49 serials last season, and burley Ron Kramer, who caught 37.

Dowler who normally works from the flanker position, is one of football's fleetest pass catchers. McGee, entering his eighth year as a pro, played end. He reported into camp as a svelte 205 pounds, 15 less than his first day weight last year. Kramer the mastodenic monster who operates as a closed end, combines the rough house bronze of an old time saloon brawler with the delicate touch of a concert pianist.

WITH STARR, Dowler, and either Moore or Gros in the starting backfield, will be the Packer indomitable full back, Jim Taylor, who is back up to

Foregoes Forfeit

Al Could Have Won, But Elected to Play

by BILL HALLS

Coach Al Glover could have beaten Des Plaines by forfeit Monday in the finals of the Ninth District American Legion consolation baseball tourney, but he elected to play and lost.

"That's no way to win," said Glover, who admitted his players were a bit peeved with the decision. "The players wanted to take the forfeit, but I figured we came to play baseball."

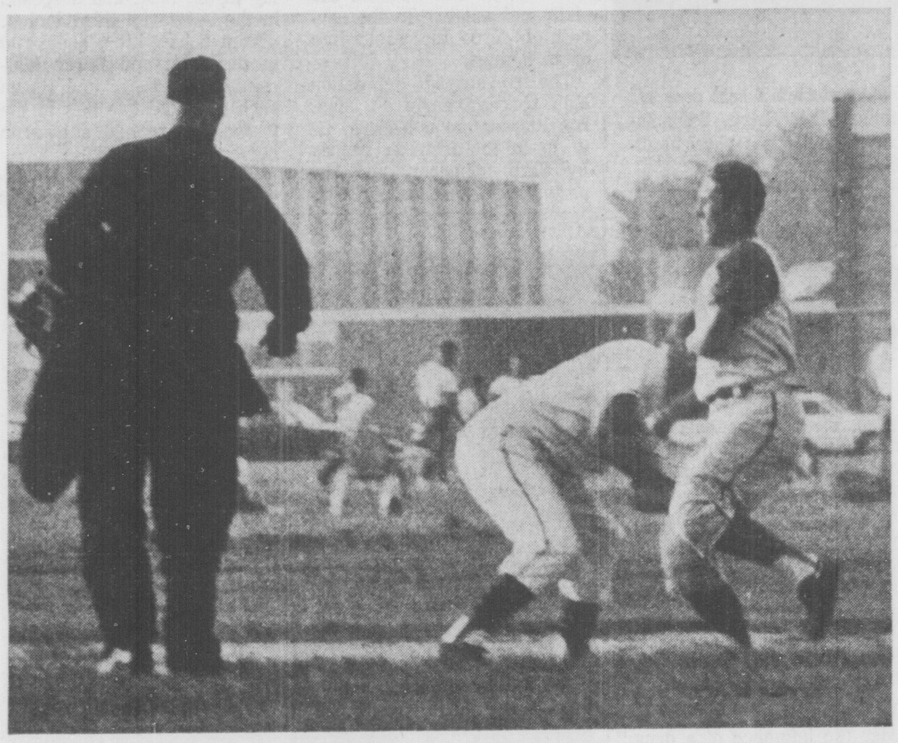
ED SCHWENKE blanked Mount Prospect Post 525, 5-0, on three hits in a six-inning game called because of darkness.

The game was shortened because Des Plaines failed to field a nine man team until 6:30 p.m. Glover had the choice of accepting the tainted victory at the 6:15 forfeit time, but agreed to wait until Des Plaines' ninth man showed up.

Glover's luck was bad throughout the tourney.

"I even lost the flip of the coin for home team four straight times," he moaned.

A MOUNT Prospect victory would have evened the double



BOB PAWLOWSKI of Des Plaines is tagged out by Mount Prospect Post 525 third baseman Ron Aukamp in the first inning of the Ninth District American Legion Consolation Tourney finale at Prospect High Monday. Pawlowski crashed a double to drive in two of the three runs Des Plaines scored off of lefthander Al Koehler. He was cut down on a relay from the outfield. elimination tourney, and set the stage for the final game on Wednesday. As it was, Des Plaines anded up undefeated, and the Prospectors took second place.

Mount Prospect, after dropping a 2-1 decision to Des Plaines last week, moved into the finals with a 3-0 victory over Northlake Saturday.

Glover's club ended the season with an overall 12-8 record, including a 7-2 win over the Mount Prospect Mid-Teen Conference entry in a non-

Paddock Links Meet Deadline Nears With Only One 'Sure' Entry

With less than 10 days remaining before the August 3 deadline, only one team appears to have assured itself of spot in the 14th annual Paddock Publications' Inter-League handicap golf tournament on August 18 at Barrington Hillcrest Golf Club.

Prospect Plaza Bank, which held a 15½ point lead over second place J and B Village Meat Market in the St. Emily loop as of July 18, looks like a sure thing.

Teams in first place as of August 3 are eligible for the Paddock tourney. League officers carry the responsibility of naming the four golfers who will represent each league, but the Paddock sports department requests the first place teams.

AT LEAST three other teams seem to have the inside track in making the tourney. Several other tourney slots are still up for grabs.

Jim's Standard has an 8.1 lead in the Mount Prospect Friday Twilight loop. In the Mount Prospect Tuesday Twilight league, Kruse's Tavern boasts an eight and one-half point lead, and Horcher Decorators is way out in front of the Arlington Heights Twilight group with a 12-point margin.

One of the closest races is at Rob Roy where C. P. Floor has a three-point lead over Rankin Radio. Golf-Rand Golf Center, in third, and surging Joy-Di Tool are both still in contention.

Carl's Food Shop is two points in front of Mount Prospect State Bank in the Mount Prospect Monday loop. Picket Paint is just four points out of first.

THE HAGENS, Vardons and Demarets are fighting it out in the Veterans of Foreign Wars league, and Simonds Abrasives has a four-point lead over N. W. Tire and Supply in St. James Holy Name.

St. Colette's also has a close race with Jim's Service out in front of Beverly Lanes, and F. J. Die Mold close behind in third.

Goetz Upholstery and Wheeling Lumber are fighting it out in the Arlington Country Club Friday league. Borchardt's Restaurant is a close third.

The Hoffman Men's loop is another close affair with Plaza Shell holding a two-point edge over Roselle State Bank. Rainbow Inn, Monroe Auto Equipment, and Kiczula Insurance are also in the running.

ARLINGTON Realty and Peter's Realtors are only one point apart in the Old Orchard Scratch League. Black's Memorial Home has an outside chance.

But no matter what teams line up on the first tee August 18, the handicap will equalize all entries, giving every golfer his "day in court." Deadline for entries is Saturday, August 10.

Greens fees are $16 for each four-man team. They must be paid before the entry dealine to Tournament Manager, Paddock Publications, Arlington Heights. There will be no other costs.

Prizes include a large traveling trophy, 12 individual medals for the first three teams, and one dozen golf balls as a special reward for low individual net score.

Hard Rock Man Is Sure Entry

Final Stepping Stone For Lindheimer Handicap

The sixth week of the 73-day thoroughbred season at Arlington Park will feature the $30,000 added Round Table Handicap for grass runners at one and three-sixteenths miles over the turf course Saturday.

The Round Table, named for the Kerr Stables champion who was in many minds the greatest grass runner of all time, is the final major stepping stone for the grass-racing division pointing up the Labor Day "Spectacular," the $100,000 added B. F. Lindheimer Handicap at one and one-half miles on the grass.

Sure to see action Saturday is Mort Johnson's "Cinderella" champion, Hard Rock Man, fresh from a bouncy four-length victory in the recent Stars and Stripes Handicap in which he lowered the one and one-eighth miles turf mark formerly held by such greats as Round Table himself and Mark-Ye-Well.

IN GALLOPING off with the Stars and Stripes, Hard Rock Man took revenge for his defeat in the one and one sixteenth miles Armour won in exciting fashion by Hasty House Farms' French import, Carteret.

Carteret ran into several traffic jams and did not place in the Stars and Stripes. He previously dropped a decision to Hard Rock Man in the one mile Swaps on Memorial Day at Washington Park — so Hard Rock Man is one win up on him in their series so far.

L. C. Howard's stretch-running Bounding Main, who scored an eye-popping victory on the turf here last week, is another sure Round Table starter as is I. W. Spicer's Wa-Wa Cy and Pin Oak Farm's Hialeah Turf Cup victor, Intercepted. The latter two ran two-three in the Stars and Stripes. Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Bensinger's Sensitivo is another possibility for the Round Table.

The chance always remains that Crimson Kin Farm's Crimson Satan, Fred W. Hooper's Admiral's Voyage or Vicgray Farm's Cadiz, the latter upset winner of last week's Hollywood Gold Cup, could see action in the Round Table.

JULY 17, a five-horse spill hospitalized Robert Ledesma, an apprentice rider for Rex C. Ellsworth's stable.

He sustained a fracture of the left leg. Northwest Community Hospital authorities reported Ledesma in "good" condition this week.

Four other riders involved in the mishap were not injured.

In the fourth race, Robert Gallimore was thrown in the stretch, sustaining an ankle injury, when his mount went down near the eighth pole.

Last week, Wa-Wa Cy — paying $19.80 — whipped the weight-burdened Editorialist by one length in the $33,375 Equipoise Mile. Bounding Main, owned by L. C. Howard, closed fast to take third, a neck behind Editorialist.

Wa-Wa Cy, carrying 111 pounds to 124 for Editorialist (heaviest burden in the race), broke early but jockey William McKinley Cook eased him back as Editorialist moved out in front.

Cook urged Mrs. Nancy Spicer's four-year-old colt out in front in the stretch, following a challenge from Sensitivo, and finished strong, pulling away from Herb Hinojosa, atop the favorite, to pick up a $19,875 purse. Wa-Wa Cy's three-year bankroll is now at $89,395.

Wa-Wa Cy paid $7.60 to place and $6 to show. Editorialist returned $4.60 and $3.60, while Bounding Maine paid $8.40.

Midget Gridders Register

Mount Prospect Midget Football Association officials announced registration dates for the 1963 season this week.

Boys interested are asked to attend 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. sessions beginning Saturday (July 27) at Lions Park Field House. A second session will be held August 3 at the same hours.

The program is open to all grade school boys who will be eight to 14 years of age by or on Dec. 1, 1963. The boys must live in the Mount Prospect Park District, and Colonial or Hatlen Heights.

The park district boundaries are: Touhy on the south; Busse on the west; Foundry (Kensington) and Rand on the north; and Mount Prospect Road on the east.

The association is divided into Senior, Junior and Bantam divisions, assuring maximum training and game participation for all boys. Boys will be assigned to divisions on the basis of weight, experience and ability, providing each boy with competition with other boys at his own level of development.

Boys who have not played Midget Football in Mount Prospect must present a birth certificate or other proof of age at registration sessions.

The association provides team jerseys and stockings to all teams, and headgear to senior division teams.

Registration fees are the same as in the past. The fee is $10 for one boy, and $15 for two or more boys.

All boys are asked to register as early as possible so team rosters may be completed well in advance of the first practice date, August 12.

For further information, call Jack Griffin, association president, at CL 3-7697; or John Moore, association commissioner, at CL 5-7315.

Knights Get New Coach; Shifts Made

Earl Benoche, 39, formerly of Bradley, a hamlet near Kankakee, has been hired as assistant frosh football and basketball coach and social studies instructor at Prospect High, Athletic Director Dick Kinneman announced this week.

Benoche, the only 16-letter winner in the history of Bradley High, replaces Ted Wissen, who left the Prospect staff last spring to become the head basketball coach at Arlington High.

For the past five years Benoche has been in charge of the Bradley grade school athletic program. Bradley is also Kinneman's hometown. He is a graduate of Eastern Illinois State College, Charleston, and had previous high school coaching assignments in both basketball and football at Manteno and St. Patrick of Kankakee high schools.

Benoche was head basketball coach at Manteno where his teams won 20 or more games on three different occasions. In three years as head football coach at St. Patrick High, Benoche-coached clubs won two conference championships.

Benoche, his wife, Violet, and four children will live in Mount Prospect.

Kinneman also announced several other changes in the Prospect coaching alignment for the 1963-64 school year. Don Williams, former head frosh football coach, will assume Wissen's former duties as head soph football mentor. Dave Ziemek will replace Williams as head frosh coach.

In addition, Warren Collier, last year's soph basketball coach, will take over Wissen's former jayvee post. Don Arseneau will move up from the frosh coaching ranks to replace Collier.

Lions Win 4th Straight In Rec Loop

John Loughman scattered four hits and struck out 14 in pitching The Lions, a team made up of St. Viator High students, to their fourth straight win last week in Chicago's Winnemac Park recreation league.

Loughman also helped spark the eight-hit Lion attack with a two-run double in the five-run fourth inning rally. On the mound, John gave up two runs in the first inning and blanked the Pirates — from Chicago's Cathedral High — over the final six frames. He walked three.

Jerry Donahue drove in two runs with a pair of singles, and Mike Sheetz brought in two more with one hit.

Gary Drabant, Bill Kaveny, Jim Mikes and Bill Leonard (double) also contributed hits. Mikes and Leonard smacked doubles.

Dan Collins is currently leading the team at the plate with a .353 average. Loughman is second at .333.

Griswold scattered seven hits, including two by Jerry Donahue, in going the distance for Wildwood. Wetter turned in two outstanding defensive plays at third base, killing Lion rallies in the third and sixth innings.

Menaker led the assault off of Tom Collins and Donahue with a 375-foot homer and a double.

Collins, who started for the Lions, went five innings and gave up four runs. Donahue finished up.

Drugs Won't Help Prep Athletes

MADISON, WIS. (UPI) — Drugs, diet supplements and vitamin supplements do not improve an athlete's performance, Dr. Ernst Jokl, a University of Kentucky scientist said today.

Dr. Jokl told a two day University of Wisconsin meeting of 100 teachers and coaches, that "nothing can improve on a well balanced normal diet."

He said "No case is known of a world record having been established while an athlete was under the influence of a drug."

Dr. Jokl is director of the University of Kentucky physical education research laboratory and was one of the speakers at the institute of scientific foundations of physical education at the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Thomas K. Cureton Jr., a University of Illinois physical fitness scientist, outlined to the institute a program of physical fitness which centers on "systematic and progressive exercise and not more, but better food."

Dr. Cureton recommended "Fewer cigarettes; more fresh, stewed and fried fruits; fresh vegetables; lean meats and rich whole cereals," along with recommended exercise as the best means of improving ones health.

Chicago Man Is Brave Fan Says Judge

MILWAUKEE, (UPI) —Never say Judge F. Ryan Duffy Jr., doesn't have a sense of civic spirit as far as the Milwaukee Braves are concerned.

When Jerry J. Widomski, 25, Chicago, appeared before him Tuesday and told him why he got into a fight at Milwaukee County Stadium Monday, the judge decided to hold the disorderly conduct case open for six months.

"You Braves stink," Windomski quoted an unidentified man in the stands as saying. He said he took exception to the remark and a small scale riot followed that involved several policemen and several other fans. The other man broke away from police and escaped. Not so with Widomski.

"You deserve a little consideration because you came all the way from Chicago to see the Braves," Judge Duffy said. "Milwaukee doesn't seem to be supporting them. The attendance is way down."

Homer Caps Comeback

Epperly Sparks Pioneer

Tom Epperly's three-run homer in the top of the eleventh gave Pioneer a hard-earned 11-9 victory over a revamped Recreation outfit last week in Arlington Park District boys softball.

Tom's blast came on the heels of singles by Tom McCarthy, Bill Fortin and Mickey Wadzita, who drove in McCarthy for the first run of the inning.

THE FOUR-RUN rally broke a 7-7 tie, and capped the Pioneer comeback. Pioneer scored two runs in the sixth and another in the seventh to force the game into extra innings.

The re-vamped Recreation club took an early 4-1 lead, but Pioneer came back to tie it up in the fifth on singles by Herb Irlbacher, and Epperly, and Paul Rocca's homer.

Recreation came right back with three runs in their half of the inning, highlighted by John Comford's triple and Art Weidner's two-bagger.

In the last of the eleventh, Recreation picked up two more runs on a pair of singles, and a double by Dennis Smith. However, third baseman Dan Miksta ended the threat with fine catch on Comford's smash.

PIONEER HAD no trouble maintaining its two-game league lead in the next outing, blanking Virginia Park, 20-0. An 11-run first inning wrapped it up.

Wadzita crashed a pair of homers in the rout, one coming in the first, and a second in the seven-run third inning.

Tom Scharf hit a home run in the first, and Larry Malcomson, Irlbacher and Rocca each collected two hits in the frame. Fortin had a two-run homer in the third.

Wadzita, who pitched for Pioneer, gave up only two hits to Virginia Park batters, one each by Mike Wille and Mike Moses.

RECREATION came back strong to clip Evergreen. 16-6. with Comford smashing two homers and teammate Tom Collins blasting a grand slam. Comford drove in five runs.

Weidner hit a solo blast in the fifth, and Bill Rickerson lashed out three straight singles and a double.

Most of Evergreen's runs came on seven Recreation errors. Scott Pregent led the Evergreen attack with three of the five hits given up by Terry Drout.

Clark Simm's three-run homer helped Green's Park hand Evergreen their second straight loss, 6-3. Frank Bianca drove in two more with a double in the second. He scored Ron Hall and Scott Warman who singled ahead of him.

ALL THREE Evergreen tallies came in the sixth on consecutive hits by Jeff Armstrong, Randy Cardova, Mike Needleman and Pregent. Warman was the winning pitcher.

The High School dropped two games, and fell from second to fourth in the standings.

Virginia administered the first defeat, 9-6, despite a three-run homer by Greg Zachawieja of High School in the first. Richie Namovica's two-run double got Virginia back in the ball game, and Moses put them in front to stay with a two-run homer in the second. John Templin was the baserunner.

Namovica upped his RBI total to four in the fifth with a homer with Wille aboard. He singled. Namovica was the winning hurler.

HASBROOK blasted 16 hits to rip High School, 10-4, with a five-run fifth inning icing the game. Mike Blasey led off with a single, and five more hits followed, including a two-run double by Brian Marcussen.

Doug Sanderson's two-run triple in the first gave Hasbrook a 2-0 lead.

The High School had a big inning going in the fourth, scoring three runs, but a double play with two on killed the rally.

Zachawieja, John Vetter and John Tollefson had two hits apiece for High School. However, the only extra base blow was a double by Zachawieja.

In winning Monday, Des Plaines got to Mount Prospect starter Al Koehler for three runs in the first inning with the help of an error and two hits.

GARY KRAFT, who was a fly in the Prospectors' soup throughout the tourney, led off with a walk. After John Gabbert fanned, Al Waters reached base when Mike Phillips misplayed his grounder at short.

Rick DeKreek followed with a single, scoring Kraft, and two more runs scored moments later on Bob Pawlowski's double.

Kraft also had a hand in the final two runs. Koehler hit him with a pitched ball, and he scored on Gabbert's triple. Gabbert came home with the final run when Grant Gentry dropped Waters fly ball in center field.

TOM WILKES relieved Koehler at this point, fanned the side, and allowed Des Plaines four walks issued by Grant, other single. Kaspari was caught at third for the second out.

MIKE PHILLIPS, who had two hits, also singled, but Wilkes fanned to end the inning.

In the fourth, the Prospectors knocked Northlake starter Bill Johnson out with a two-run outburst.

After Wilkes flied to left, Hank LaRocco walked, stole second, took third on a passed ball, and scored on Gentry's single. Gentry stole second and came home with the final run on Lytle's base hit.

IN THE sixth, Rick Lytle, who had two of Mount Prospect's three hits, tripled with two out, but was stranded when Schwenke fanned Joe Mueller to end the game. Schwenke struck out seven in all, and pitched a fine game.

Koehler got credit for the shutout win over Northlake, scattering four hits, and striking out six. He hit one man with a pitched ball but did not walk any.

Al scored the first Mount Prospect run in the first inning, getting a single after Lytle had grounded out, and taking third on Ralph Kaspari's hit. Ron Aukamp, who had two hits, drove Koehler home with and scored both runs.

With one out, Kraft walked in the first and moved to third when Gentry walked Gabbert and Waters. DeKreek drove in the run with an infield grounder.

In the fifth, Kraft led off with another pass, stole second, took third on a wild pitch, and scored on a passed ball.

MOUNT PROSPECT scored its lone run in the second. Wilkes reached first when Chuck Esposito booted his grounder, and took second on Aukamp's single.

Both runners advanced on Mueller's infield tap, but Aukamp, thinking Wilkes might try for the plate, got caught in a rundown between second and third. When the dust had cleared, Wilkes scored and Aukamp reached third.

Jim Froemling, the next batter, lined to Schwenke at third, who quickly forced Aukamp for a double play.

Caddies

starters for their tournament that day. River Woods Caddie Master, Steve Rice, has 75 caddies at his disposal. The sixteen extras he picked up from Rauworth's catering service, helped.

IT WAS A good shake for the kids, too. River Woods guaranteed them the minimum caddie fee of $4, work or not. All worked, and several of them doubled the guarantee.

Both Rice, and club pro, Dick Knopp had something to say about the boys.

Rice, caddie master since the club opened, Aug. 1, 1962, mentioned that he heard nothing but good reports from the players for whom the boys worked. He also stated that it was apparent that they had received some training.

He pointed out that a caddie catering service is of special value for weekend tournaments. Most clubs have arrangements with one or perhaps two other courses. They shuttle their caddies back and forth for tourneys.

THIS BECOMES impossible on weekends when all courses are crowded. Since most tournaments are scheduled for weekends, the caddie service becomes potentially invaluable.

Knopp is a veteran with 27 years experience as a club pro. Before moving over to River Woods, he held a similar job at Thorngate in Deerfield, where incidentally, he holds the course record with a 66 posted in 1955.

Knopp heard about Rauworth's school through a personal friendship with the Winston Park operator. He pointed out that the seemingly obvious disadvantages of the program—lack of knowledge of the course—is not really a problem.

"This will show up only the first time a boy works a course. When a club makes a second request for caddies, they will be sent, as nearly as is possible, the same boys who have caddied the course before."

THE RIVER Woods pro says he was enthusiastic enough about the program to pass the word on to other pros in order that they too may make use of the service.

Three of the boys who took part in the maiden venture are Doug Spruance of Palatine, and the Gallagher brothers, Jim and Bob, of Arlington Heights.

Spruance, 14, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Douglas Spruance of 1467 Rosita Drive. Although a golfer himself, he had never done any caddying.

Doug was well satisfied with the jaunt to River Woods. He was the big earner of the group, coming home with a pocket deposit of $9.50. His big pay day was the result of a morning as a fore caddie on "blind" number one, and a stroll around the course with a late starter in the afternoon.

SPRUANCE, AN incoming freshman at Palatine High School, is currently signed up at Indian Valley Country Club and says he has worked four or five days since leaving Rauworth's tutelage.

The Gallaghers, residents of 300 W. Fremont, are not golfers, but, like Spruance had some knowledge of the game before they went under Rauworth's wing.

Jim, 14, will be a freshman at St. Viator's this fall. He has no particular plans about golf, but is looking forward to basketball, a fact that should interest Lion Coach Ron Feiereisel, since the older Gallagher is already 6-2. Bob is a year younger and an eighth grader at St. James.

The Gallaghers are doing their post graduate work on the fairways and greens of Rolling Green Country Club.

Little League Play Continues Despite Rain

Playoffs Slated In Most Leagues

For the second week in a row, rain hampered play in the Arlington Heights Little League. Many of Saturday's games were postponed because of wet grounds following Friday's heavy downpour.

However, some of the more intrepid managed to get in late games on Saturday resulting in champions being crowned in a few loops.

Make-up and playoff games will highlight this week's schedule (if the weather holds).

Senior

The league-leading Browns won three in a row, including a victory over the second place Indians, to move into first place by one full game.

E. Lockwood picked up the win in relief in the 12-3 win over the Indians. Rosholt and D. Lockwood blasted doubles for the winners. Brophy (triple) and Bozee (double) had extra base wallops for the Indians. Kroll was the losing pitcher.

Pat Martin's two-hitter gave the Browns a 5-1 win over the Redlegs. Pat fanned 12 batters in the six-inning affair. Grom and Kushner had two hits apiece for the Browns, including a triple for the former and a double for the latter. Staahl helped out with a double.

Wolf's double and Whalen's three-bagger were the Redlegs' only hits. Whalen scored the lone run. Swanezy was the losing pitcher.

The Browns pasted the Hawks, 11-6, with Grom's homer and Dave Lockwood's double and triple providing the fireworks. Rosholt was the winning hurler. Jorgensen took the loss.

The Indians came back to tip the Bears, 6-3, with Le Starge (winning pitcher) scattering seven hits, including three by Bob Weber of the Bears. Tossi took the loss.

Three Indian errors in the seventh gave the Lions a 3-2 win, and helped drop the tribe into second place. Young and Donahue, who picked up the win in relief, pitched for the Lions. Galyon took the loss in relief of Cole for the Indians. Peters of the Lions had the only extra-base hit, a double.

Loughman fanned six Lions on a two-hitter as the Bears came back to wallop the Lions, 12-1. Weber led the Bear attack with five hits in five trips. Loughman, Kehe and Nastal blasted doubles.

Dix's three-hitter gave the Bears a 9-1 win over the Hawks. He contributed to his own cause by blasting a homer in the fourth. Rettburg took the loss for the Hawks.

Varsity I

The Rams solidified their first place standing with a 7-2 win over the Orioles. Schaefer was the winner on a two-hitter. Hynes took the loss. Epperly hammered a homer.

The Orioles took another loss at the hands of the Phillies, this time, 6-4. Croarkin and Blackman hit homers, and Bublitz and Spry had two-baggers. Wittier picked up the win, and Sauter took the defeat.

Varsity II

The Eagles edged the Generals, 4-3, to give the Falcons (5-0) undisputed possession of first place. Collins drove in the tying and winning runs with a single in the fourth to give Drake the win. He needed help from Evenger in relief. Hebourg took the loss, also in relief.

Hicks had a triple for the Eagles, and Irmen, Shuelee, Rizzo and Klein had the hits for the Generals.

Meanwhile, the Falcons outlasted the Pelicans, 11-8, despite four Pelican homers. Hecht and Davis smacked doubles for the winners. Boariixi, Gumz, Soderberg, and Koeneman hammered the homers for the losers. Bayert added a triple. Shawhan was the winning pitcher in relief, and Soderberg took the loss.

Kowall (winning pitcher) and R. Loner held the Raiders to two hits as the Vikings won, 4-1. John Kanne hammered a homer for the winners, and Clark Simms slammed a double and a triple. Dassonville took the loss for the Raiders.

American

The White Sox picked up two more wins to take a one and one-half game lead. A two-run seventh inning rally gave the Sox a 2-1 win over the Yankees. Brajkin's twoout seventh inning rally gave the Sox a 2-1 win over the Yankees. Brajkin's two-out double brought in Buttenob with the tying run, and Crockett's single scored Brajkin with the winning tally.

The Yanks had broken a scoreless tie in their half of the seventh on hits by McDonald and McCallister. Foreman was the winning pitcher, and McDonald took the loss.

The White Sox also knocked off the second place Senators, 4-3, with Buttenob picking up the win on a two-hitter. He also banged out a triple. Abel had a triple for the winners and Chalifaux blasted a homer. Splittorff had a circuit clout for the losers. Williamson was the losing pitcher.

In other action, the Yankees defeated the Red Sox, 5-1, with Graham outdueling Miller. Tempco had a triple, and Jorgensen smashed a double.

The Tigers won a pair, blasting the Athletics, 10-4, and edging the Red Sox, 4-2.

Dick Press and Kimball led the Tiger attack in the Athletic tilt. Press had a home run and Kimball went four for four at the plate. J. Kenny picked up the win. Dean Schmelzer,, the losing pitcher, hit a homer for the Athletics.

Press picked up the win against the Red Sox, besting Whitehead in a pair of six-hitters. Kimball had a double in this one, and Benisek of the Sox hit a homer.

Rain Helps Wisconsin Fishing; Drought Hurt

MADISON, WIS., (UPI) — Fishing in Wisconsin is expected to pick up in the next few days as a result of recent rains, the state conservation department said in a report today.

In the meantime, except for a few old reliable places, prolonged dry weather and hot temperatures have hurt angling.

The department said old reliables were Door County smallmouth bass, Mississippi River pan fish, Lake Winnebago walleyes and Sawyer County muskies. Fishing also was generally good in Grant, Oconto, Sawyer and Waushara Counties during the past week.

On many waters, hot weather helped Creel catfish, and top pan fishing game in 18 counties with "heavy stringers" on the Mississippi River.

The department said fishing was good in these areas:

Bass—about a dozen counties had good fishing, with Sawyer County reporting a largemouth that weighed more than five pounds. Others were Door, Grant, Iowa, Manitowoc, Monroe, Oconto, Oneida, Sauk, Washington and Waushara.

Muskie—a 34-pounder was boated on the Chippewa flowage in Sawyer County, and there was plenty of action in Jackson and Rusk Counties.

Northerns—outstandingly cooperative in only four counties: Crawford, Marathon, Washington and Waukesha.

Trout—Hitting in Crawford, Florence, Grant, Oconto, Washburn, Washington and Waushara Counties, with Florence providing a 6-pound rainbow; Walleyes—very good in Ashland, Calumet, Columbia, Door, Florence, Grant and Marathon Counties.

North Blue Juniors

The Badgers took it all, knocking off the Blues, 3-2, for the league title. The win came on the heels of an 11-1 Blue win over the Badgers for the first half title.

In the first half playoff, Pete Manchee of the Blues held the Badgers to two hits, including a triple by Locascio, while fanning nine. He got good support with his teammates who turned in an unusual triple play, and a twin-killing started by Ray Thorsen.

The Blues raked Marszalek for 11 hits, including triples by Pete Anderson and Coulter, and doubles by Manchee, Turner and Powers.

But Bob Obst turned the tables in the league championship game, scattering eight hits, including a home run by Anderson, as the Badgers edged the Blues, 3-2. It was a heartbreaker for Manchee, the loser, who gave up only three hits, but a couple of walks and throwing errors in the fifth let in the winning run. Powers and Locasio banged triples for the Badgers.

Marszalek ended the regular season for the Badgers by

JUST DOGS

Distemper—

The one word that strikes fear into the heart of any kennel owner or any new puppy owner is . . . distemper. From Cornell University's Research Laboratory for Diseases of Dogs, there has now been developed a new vaccine to protect newborn puppies from distemper, something which will be of great help to everyone interested in dogs. The work at Cornell in this field has been going on for more than 12 years and it looks like the problem has now been solved.

The basic development of immunity occurs in a two-step procedure which, at the start, involves a vaccination with a vaccine of inactivated or killed distemper virus. When the pup becomes older a vaccination by the live dual vaccine takes care of the problem for once and always. This new type of vaccine will be of great help to kennel owners, where if distemper strikes it can wipe out newborn pups with a vengeance.

Dog-Hero—

An all-time record number of eligibles for the 10th annual Ken-L-Ration gold medal award, presented each year to the most heroic dog in America, has been recorded for the 1963 competition. The final award will be made on Aug. 21 at the Palmer House.

When the list closed last week, more than 70 dogs had been nominated for the honor as a result of heroic deeds performed by them over the past 12 months. They include a tremendous variety of breeds, from a Chihuahua to a Great Dane, and from the very finest pure-bred to the "curbstone setter."

One down—

How much longer will it take for some dog owners to wake up? Your editor has preached and preached . . . "Don't leave your dog in the car with the windows closed." In the summer time it can, and often is the end of the dog. A woman with a station wagon in Arlington Heights nearly found out the final result this past week. It was close and almost the end of the poor dog who was more down and out than alive.

If you don't think a car can get hot inside, just put yourself in it, close all the windows and, above all, make sure it's parked in the sun on a hot day. After an hour or two of this, believe me, you don't need to worry about a reducing cabinet. The answer is, of course, quite simple . . . when we get these hot days and you take the dog along in the car, just leave the windows open a little when you leave the car.

Barks and Bays—

Some folks with outdoor swimming pools have let their dogs go in for a short dip in hot weather. The dogs enjoy it, but a word of caution. Too much chlorine or other such material can sometimes upset the dog's stomach . . . and when he is in the pool, he can't help but swallow water. Take it easy, or, better still, give him a shower under the hose.

Parnelli Jones at Meadowdale Sunday

Parnelli Jones, Norm Nelson, Jim McElreath, Don White, Bill Chesebourg, Curtis Turner, Jim Hurtubise head the list of the nation's top stock car drivers who will appear at 2 p.m. Sunday in the U.S. Auto Club 250-mile, $20,000 late model stock car race at Meadowdale International Raceway near Carpentersville.

The majority of entrants seem to favor the 1963 Fords, which outnumber Dodges and Plymouths 3 to 1! Gone is the old Ford versus Chevy rivalry. Ford has taken over as the most popular make, with Dodge and Plymouth picking up the gauntlet in a mid-season challenge.

Road racing differs radically from oval races from the spectator's standpoint. He has a much wider choice of locations from which to view the contest. Meadowdale has several fine vantage points on the 2.25-mile course.

It's a rare occasion when stock car drivers take to a road racing circuit, a type of closed track usually inhabited by sports cars. Road racing goes in a counter-clockwise direction, as opposed to the customary stock car ovals, and demands far more shifting, braking, and wheelwork than would be used on an oval.

Past experience has brought some surprises, though, as the stock cars of the championship circuit have proven nearly as fast over certain road courses as some of the best modified sports cars.

A special trophy will be awarded to the fastest qualifier on Saturday by the Coyne Electrical School. An overall winner's trophy will be given to Sunday's victor by the Meadowdale Businessmen's Association in addition to a generous split of the $20,000 prize pot.

The USAC late-model stock car race is the first in a 3-event series making up Meadowdale Speed Weeks. On August 3-4, a National SCCA sports car race is scheduled, followed August 10-11 by an American Motorcycle Association 100-mile championship meet.

Busiest Back

Dewey Lincoln, fleet Michigan State fullback from Hamtramck, was the Spartans' busiest man in 1962 in terms of time on the field playing 339 out of a possible 540 minutes.

Mount Prospect All-Star Tilt Set

The Red and Blue leagues will tangle at 7 p.m., Tuesday, July 30, in the annual Mount Prospect Park District's Men's 16-inch All-Star softball game at Lions Park.

Bob "Charley Horse" Teichert Jim "The Octopus" Pollard, Gene "Tank" Dassonville, and "Killer" Kelleher will be among the loop's top 26 players who will see action.

In league play, the consolation and championship single elimination round robin will get underway this week. The winners and runners up will receive trophies. The trophies are now on display at Pro Sports Sporting Goods in Mount Prospect.

Attempt to Reduce Drowning Toll

Red Cross Suggests Water Safety Tips to Swimmers

Hopeful of helping to reduce the drowning toll of 6,500 a year, the American Red Cross has pertinent suggestions for the thousands of people who will engage in water sports this summer.

A great majority of the annual drownings occur during recreational use of the water — swimming and boating — according to Eulan Kortge, volunteer DuPage County Water Safety Chairman.

"Most of these tragedies could have been averted if the victims and their companions had known and followed safe practices," Kortge said.

"Both the drowning rate and the actual number of drownings have been reduced materially in the last 50 years," he continued. "But 6,500 a year is still too many." His first caution on safety in the water was "Don't try to swim too far too soon." A swimmer going into the water for the first time this year doesn't have the endurance he had the end of last summer.

TIPS FOR SWIMMERS

Other safety hints were these:

—Always swim with a companion, and swim where there are lifeguards.

—Stay out of the water when overtired, when overheated, for at least an hour after eating and during electrical storms.

—Watch your step. Walk, don't run around swimming pool.

—Avoid wrestling and other horseplay around a pool. Poor swimmers have drowned by being pushed into deep water.

—If you have a home swimming pool, it is safest to fence it in, to keep small children from falling into the water.

—Keep small children out of the pool except when adults are present.

—Separate deep and shallow water in your pool with a buoyed line.

—Keep handy such rescue equipment as ring buoys and reaching poles, as well as a first aid kit.

—Keep bottles and glasses away from the concrete pool deck.

—Alcohol and swimming don't mix. Stay out of the water if you've been drinking.

—Take precautions against sunburn, even on a cloudy day.

—Keep clear of the swimming pool area immediately in front of the diving board.

—Don't depend on inflated toys or tubes to hold you up in the water.

—Don't dive in shallow water and check unfamiliar waters before diving.

—Stay out of deep water if you aren't a good swimmer.

—In ocean and river swimming, watch for riptides and currents. LIFE WILL TELL currents. Lifeguards will tell you how to recognize dangerous conditions and how to save yourself if you are caught.

—In lond-distance swimming always swim parallel to shore and always with a companion or an accompanying boat.

—Stay away from piers and pilings while swimming.

—If your canoe or rowboat overturns, stay with it. Don't swim away from it; it usually won't sink.

TIPS FOR WATER SKIERS

Kortge offered the following safety hints for water skiers:

—Always wear a life jacket when water skiing.

—Have two people in the tow boat, one to drive, one to watch.

—Keep eyes on water ahead.

—If you fall, hold up arm to signal you are all right.

—To stop, sit down in water. If falling, curl up in a ball.

—Don't ski in shallow water.

—Don't wrap the tow rope around any part of your body.

—Don't ski at night.

—Don't signal the boat to "go" until the rope is taut.

—Don't overdo and become tired.

TIPS FOR SKIN AND SCUBA DIVERS

He made these suggestions on skin and scuba diving safety:

—Be sure you are in good health.

—Be sure you are a better than average swimmer and can pass these five tests: swim 300 yards, tread water for three minutes, tow an inert swimmer 40 yards, stay afloat 15 minutes and swim under water 15 yards.

—If you're new at the sport, enroll in a class for skin and scuba diving.

—Use good equipment whether skin or scuba diving.

—Always dive with a companion and know his location at all times. Be sure to establish a system of communication with him before you dive.

—Wear an inflatable flotation device.

—Always use certified air when filling scuba tanks.

—Know the area where you are diving. Know the limitations of your physical abilities, skill, experience and confidence.

—Use a Diver's Flag to warn boats a diver is down.

—Keep your weight belt uncovered and use a quick release for it. A good rule: "On last, off first, and always fastened by a quick-release buckle for one-hand operation."

—Ascend slowly and look up. Always exhale when ascending.

—Descend at a rate that permits equalization of pressure in ear and sinus spaces.

—Never dive with a cold, sore throat or sinus condition.

—Develop emergency procedures, learn simple life saving carries for rescue work, and know steps in first aid.

—Plan your dive carefully.

Mark Wins Overtime Tilt, 6-5

Mark Motors overcame a two-run deficit to whip the Colts 6-5, in nine innings Sunday in Arlington Park District fastball.

The win enabled Mark to keep pace with Kelly Olds, which blanked Air Force Raiders, 13-0. Both teams have 7-0 records and will meet at 2:30 p.m., Sunday, in a showdown match. An earlier meeting between the two clubs was rained out and will be made up at the end of the season.

Chuck Benzik, who led the Mark attack with two hits, including a homer, scored the winning run in the last of the ninth on a passed ball.

Pitcher Dick Hoffman drove in the tying tally in the last of the seventh with a two-out single. The Colts had gone ahead early in the game, 5-3, and held on until the two-run Mark rally in the seventh. A pair of Colt errors helped the Mark cause. Losing pitcher was Dale Humphrey.

Bill Slonicker, Grant Prather and Jack Edwards backed Kelly's ace hurler, George Cresswell, in his second straight no-hit effort and his fifth shutout of the season.

Slonicker belted three hits, including a homer, and Prather and Edwards lashed out five hits betwen them in the abvreviated five-inning affair, called because of a league 10-run rule.

In other action, Midway Construction won by a forfeit over the 45th Artillery Brigade.

In the northern conservation zone, the squirrel season will open Sept. 1 and close Oct. 31.

Limits in both zones are five squirrels a day and 10 in possession after opening day. Shooting hours are from sunrise to sunset every day of the season.

It is unlawful to kill white squirrels anywhere in the state.

The conservation department also announced that the 1963 dove season will begin at noon Sept. 1 and end at sunset Nov. 9. Hunting hours are from noon until sunset every day.

The daily bag limit is 10 doves—a reduction of two from the 1962 limit. The possession limit is 20—down four from the 1962 limit.

Kruse Beaten, Lead Shaved to 5½ Points In Tuesday League

Kruse's Tavern and Restaurant, Tuesday division leaders of the Mount Prospect Twilight League for most of the season, tangled last week with second-place Annen and Busse and wound up with their second defeat of the season as the Realtors hammered them, 6½-3½.

Fortunately for the Schlitzers, their season's accumulation of points was sufficient to keep them in first place, but their lead was trimmed to 5½ points giving new life to the rest of the first division teams.

Kruse's only point winner for the evening was "D" player Roy Stevens who clobbered Bob Kline for two points plus half a point for tying low individual net. Kruse's "A" player, Fred Jilek shot one of his better rounds but Ken Shipley of the Realtors, plus handicap, was too much for him and Shipley took two points plus the other half for tying low individual net. Don Snyder dropped his match and two points to Pat Danna and Art Skelton did likewise to Jim Kutill.

Surprisingly, despite their lack of individual success, Kruse's took low team net for the final bonus point.

In other league activity, Keefer's Pharmacy, tied for second last week, was dropped to third after absorbing their second consecutive defeat, this time to Golden Isle Restaurant, 7½-2½.

Phil's Pure Oil and Mount Prospect Electric Construction Co., both big winners this week, the former defeating Mount Prospect Bowling Lanes 8-2, and the latter clobbering Winkelman's Shell Service 9-1, moved to within striking distance of one of the "place" positions.

In the final contests, Kirchoff Insurance and Licht's Paint Store battled it out to a 5-5 tie and Wille Lumber and Fuel took it on the chin again, 3-7, from Illinois Range.

Low shooters for the session were Fred Jilek, Gene Raasch and Glenn Adams, all scoring 39s.

Birdies were reported by G. Raasch No. 5 and A. Raab No. 12 and 13.

Rain Halts Play In Friday Night Loop

It was going to be a big night at the Mount Prospect Country Club Friday.

Two teams in the Friday Night Twilight league — the second place Pro Sport Shop five captained by Erwin Kokes, just 1.6 points back, and the third place Meeske's Super Market quintet led by Ken Sophie and 7.6 points behind, had teed off in a down-to-the-wire effort to catch the season long leader Jim's Standard Service led by Dick Piehl.

The prize is the same for all three teams. The right to represent Mount Prospect's Friday Twilight league in the Annual Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap golf tournament on Aug. 18. And with only three more nights before the Aug. 3rd deadline, time is running out for Kokes and Sophie.

Yes, it was going to be a big night for the two teams chasing the leader, but now they have to wait again and the time left to catch the leader is now cut to two nights.

Just thirty minutes after the first foursomes teed off the deluge of last Friday night struck the Mount Prospect course sending the Friday Night Twilighters racing for the cover of the clubhouse. (And, as most discovered, they are not in condition for racing.)

All but two, that is. And there-in lies a story of golf course safety.

Caught at the farthest point on the Mount Prospect course from the clubhouse when the violent rain and electrical storm struck, Friday Night Twilighters Harold Lins and Dean Lee found they could not make any cover in the midst of the lightning and rain.

Practicing what golfers for years have been told about electrical storms, they left their clubs, golf carts and umbrellas in the middle of a fairway and laid down in the closest bunker at hand. And there they endured the storm until the lightning had subsided enough for them to make their way back to the clubhouse.

And when the rain had subsided, the standings remained the same with Captain Dick Piehl and his Jim's Standard Servicemen still looking over their shoulders at Kokes and his Pro Sport Shoppers and Ken Sophie and his Meeske's Super Marketeers. And there are only two nights left to qualify for Paddock's Inter-League event. And Lee and Lins are still drying out.

Carl's Loss Tightens Standings

Carl's Food Shop remained in first place this week despite a 7-3 loss to Mount Prospect Savings and Loan. Mount Prospect State Bank dropped nine points to Busse-Motor Sales, knocking the Bankers from 2nd to 4th place. Morton Pontiac moved into third place by drubbing Kerstings 8-2.

Gus Knaack continued his winning ways by taking three points from Ray Barish with a fine game of only 11 putts for the nine holes. Knaack carded a 40 for the evening giving him a total of 21 points.

Jack Flick, Knaack's nearest rival for the top individual honors lost two points to Vern Schneider. Flick remains at 17 points — four points behind Knaack. Knaack has now matched his 1962 total points of 21 which gave him the Most Valuable Player award.

With only 2 games remaining before the first place team is entered for the Paddock Tournaments, any one of nine teams could be the league's representative. Only 12½ points separate them.

Hope Chest Awards White Sox Tickets

Winners of the reserved seat tickets to the White Six - New York Yankee baseball game of Saturday afternoon, August 17th were announced today by John F. Milliken, campaign chairman of the 1963 door-to-door multiple sclerosis Hope Chest Drive. The tickets were donated to the Chapter to be awarded to the "top" marchers participating in the M. S. campaign in each community.

Milliken stressed that no proceeds from the drive were used for the tickets. They were donated by a friend of the chapter.

The Chicago chapter supports an outpatient clinic at Northwestern University Medical School for diagnostic and evaluation of multiple sclerosis patients. In addition, the chapter participates in the national research program directed at the cause and cure of multiple sclerosis.

In 1962 the National Multiple Sclerosis Society spent $851,407 on its total medical and research program. The Chicago chapter contributed $86,836.41 to the National Society for the year 1962.

Multiple sclerosis is a chronic disabling disease of the central nervous system, the brain and spinal cord. The National Multiple Sclerosis Society was founded for the purpose of attempting to unlock a century-old mystery, to discover the cause, prevention and cure for multiple sclerosis and related diseases afflicting 500,000 victims. The Chicago chapter is one of many throughout the United States supporting these efforts.

Local winners include:

Mrs. George Michelin, 362 LaPorte Drive, Addison; Mrs. L. S. Kuffel, 512 S. Vail, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Louise Berry, Mrs. Janet F. Denk, and Mrs. Gaillard Ross, all of Des Plaines.

Mrs. E. Youngquist, 37 Ridgewood Road, Elk Grove Village; Jim Bartlett, 805 Greenview Road, Itasca; Mrs. A. W. Baldocchi, 353 W. Glade Road, Palatine; Juanita Jones, 3504 Sigwalt St., Rolling Meadows; Lucie Bauer, 167 Center Ave., Wheeling; and Mrs. A. A. Pioch, 282 Charmille Lane, Wood Dale.

Bonnie Byrne Takes Second

Mrs. Sandra Fullmer of the Club de Golf, Mexico, won with a 241 total. Mrs. Carolyn Erickson of Mount Prospect was tenth at 270.

C. P. Floors Extends Lead To 5½ Points in Rob Roy

C. P. Floor and Tile has the lead, but Golf Rand is coming strong.

That's the picture at Rob Roy where the league season enters the final weeks. Floor and Tile increased its lead on the league with a 4½-2½ win over Rodewald while Rankin Radio and TV, former occupants of second place, absorbed a 5½-½ licking at the hands of Kirchhoffs.

But gaining a point on the leaders, as well as a position in the standings, was the onrushing Stop and Sock gang from Golf Rand Golf Center. Their 5½-½ victory over Prospect Heights Pharmacy not only enabled them to edge past Rankin into second place, but left them just 5½ points off the pace of 55 set by C. P. Floor and Tile.

In other action, Webber Paint whipped L-Nor, 4½-2½, Prospect Heights Service edged Gunnell's, 3½-2½, Prospect Barbers bounced Kelter Realty 5½-1½, and Borchardt's topped Joy-Di, 5-2.

ROLLING GREEN'S CHUCK PEDERSEN
Key to Good Putting—A Firm Stroke

Your Putter Holds Key To Scoring

by CHUCK PEDERSEN

I am sure you have all heard the old cliche, "You drive for show, and you putt for dough." At a professional tournament, it is the master of the green who collects the big check. That is why you see them devote more time on the putting green than on the practice tee. Putting is about 65 per cent of the game. Consequently, when you putt well, you score.

When putting, line the ball up off the left heel with a little more weight distributed on the left foot than on the right. Taking the blade of the putter back in a straight line is the foundation of a good stroke. This is essential in order to meet the ball with a square face on the forward stroke as illustrated above in the picture.

In stroking the ball, the left hand is a guide and should grip the club firmly, but not tightly. The right hand supplies the power in the stroke and it should be gripping the club firmly. Execute the stroke by hitting the ball with your right hand and in a rhythmic motion.

A good putter always strokes the ball firmly. Otherwise, the ball may be influenced to a greater extent by such foreign agencies as inconsistencies in the green, small pebbles and the run of the grain. A firm putt will overcome most of these forces and send your ball over a truer course.

Another tip to good putting is allow your arms to move like a pendulum. In other words, they must not be restricted or held too close to the body. Remember, putt from a relaxed position, and putt firmly.

Consider Bag Law On Duck Hunting

WASHINGTON, (UPI) — Conservationists from two Mid-Western States last week endorsed restrictive regulations to conserve the dwindling supply of ducks.

Merrill L. Petoskey, waterfowl biologist for the Michigan Department of Conservation, and Thomas Evans, Illinois Supervisor of Game Management, made the recommendation in testimony before a house wildlife subcommittee.

But William P. Thorn, Executive director of Ducks Unlimited, Inc., disagreed with the premise.

The migratory waterfowl population for the 1962-63 year was equal to or better than that of 1961-62, he said. Thorn said this sportsman"s organization does not agree with the fish and wildlife service prediction last fall that duck numbers would decline.

"Naturally, the hunters in our state do not like short seasons and smaller, more complicated bag limits any better than anyone else," Petoskey said. "But we do feel that objective and factual considerations of the resource itself are paramount to any other considerations."

He praised the "quality, integrity and initiative" shown by fish and wildlife service personnel, and urged that congress support the agency.

"We support whatever curtailment of the hunting season necessary to maintain duck populations," Evans said.

Illinois' own regulations sometimes are more stringent than those of the federal government, he said. Evans said it is vitally important that congress agree to some formula for payments in lieu of taxes, so that states like the Dakotas will be willing to give up tax-producing land for duck breeding grounds.

Al Richard Gets Ace in New York

A hole-in-one scored by Albert L. Richard of 1281 Ridge Ave., Elk Grove Village, could earn him a round trip to Scotland for two and $1,000. Richard gained his ace at the Sportsman Country Club in New York while entered in a national Hole-In-One Sweepstakes. The winner will be announced at the end of the year.

Winning Touch

Since Michigan State entered Big Ten competition in 1950, Spartan teams have captured 17 team titles outright and shared two other championships.

Seeks Home for Ostrich-to-Be

MUSKEGO, WIS., (UPI)—State Fair Director W. M. Masterson found today he still needs a home for an ostrich - the ostrich that will emerge from the eggs incubating in his office.

Clarence Decker, Muskego, agreed to take the bird and then he learned he had to get a license to keep it. Besides that ostriches need warm, draft-free quarters, hard to find during a cold Wisconsin winter, and they - the birds and the winters - are vicious. (B8

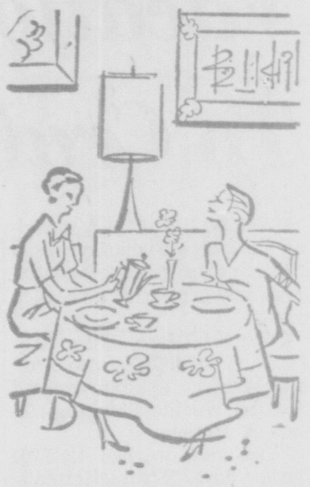
How to Shop for New Furniture



Suburban Living

Especially for Women

TO BRING OUT ALL the beauty of natural woods in the kitchen, consider the possibility of using copper fronts on some or all of your built-in appliances. Dishwasher here is finished in wood hue copper tone, one of three copper finishes offered with KitchenAid undercounter dishwashers. Wood hue copper, a baked enamel finish on heavy gauge steel, adds richness to the kitchen decor while complimenting the wood finish. Copper goes equally well with steel kitchen cabinets, particularly with pink, blue and other pastel colors.

Be Sure Of Where You Buy

by ANNE DOUGLAS
Consultant, Better Home Furnishings Council

How can you be sure of quality in the furniture you buy? How can you tell what you are getting for your money? What makes one piece cost more than another that looks similar on the outside?

So much of the construction of the average piece of furniture is hidden that the shopper must rely on the integrity of the furniture store or department that sells it and the manufacturer who makes it, to a great extent, reports the Better Home Furnishings Council of Greater Chicago.

MEMBERSHIP in the Better Home Furnishings Council, to which leading furniture stores and departments throughout northwest suburbs belong, is a good indication of the integrity of the retailer. Most of the manufacturers supplying these stores also stand fully behind their merchandise.

It never hurts for the shopper to know something of the "insides" of the furniture herself. When she visits a store she can ask more intelligent questions and is able to make a better choice of furniture for her needs.

Wood furniture, for example, may be veneered or solid; high quality furniture may be made either way, depending on the effect desired. Veneers present more highly figured grain patterns, often used for decoration on table tops, drawer and door fronts, and the like. Drawers should be dustproofed, and put together with glue, rather than nails for good fit and long wear. Mortise and tenon joints, in which adjoining pieces interlace instead of butt together, are considered best.

THE FINISH is as important as the wood. A good finish consists of many applications, of sealers, filler coats, and lacquers, with sanding and rubbing in between; there is no shortcut to a good finish.

Even more construction is hidden in an upholstered piece. A good chair or sofa will have a frame of sturdy hardwood, free from knots, to provide rigid support for the life of the chair. Double doweling at points of strain and corner block give added strength to this framework.

For comfort and resiliency, this hard frame must be cushioned. A typical chair or sofa of good quality will have a convoluted spring unit in the back, well padded with cotton put down in layers to guard against spring feel. The seat, which will bear more weight, may have a permalator, or wire frame unit, for added insulation, preventing the "cupping," or crushing down, of the filler into the coil unit below. On top of this goes the cushion.

CUSHIONS A few years ago were almost entirely inner-spring units, but this type is quickly being supplanted by others that provide equal or longer wear and more comfort at a cost that is often lower.

These include polyurethane foam, a resilient synthetic foam known for its long wearing qualities and light weight; molded foam rubber, unequalled for its cushiony bounce; and combinations of these with others. Foam rubber may be combined with a Dacron fiberfill wrapping for a puffier look, popular in traditional styles. Urethane may be wrapped in a layer of the same material but in softer density, to give an extra-luxurious feel. This may be "crowned," to give more thickness in the center than at the edges.

If this, along with problem of choice of upholstery fabrics, is too much for the shopper, she can rely on the quality offered by the reputable dealer and manufacturer.

SOME INTERIOR construction features of a quality chair are shown here on a cutaway model by Glorya Bakken of the Better Home Furnishings Council of Greater Chicago. Glorya is pointing to the convoluted springs in the back, over which go layers of felted cotton to provide softness and prevent spring feel, and then the upholstery fabric. Part of the strong hardwood frame is visable at left. The cutaway seat cushion, filled with polyurethane foam, rests on a spring base also padded with layered cotton, with a wire frame beneath to prevent "cupping" of the filler into the coil unit below.

Warmth and Color

Make Your Kitchen Showplace of Home

Of all the rooms in the house, none arouses more universal interest among housewives than the kitchen.

This is where the housewife spends most of her time. This is her "office." This is where she is absolute boss. This is the room that reflects her character and personality.

It therefore should follow that the kitchen should be the showplace of the house. Not only should it be functional and efficient, but it should be warm and beautiful.

SO IN planning your next kitchen—be it in a new home or the remodeling of your present one—choose the cabinets, the appliances, the floor and wall covering that will set your kitchen apart.

After you have laid out the kitchen and decided on the cabinetry, you will want to select the appliances that fit into your kitchen scheme. In the selection of appliances, consider the possibility of using your appliances to complement or accent the color and the finish of the cabinetry.

It isn't essential always to have the appliances finished to match your cabinets. Sometimes, in fact, you can over-do this "sameness." Consider instead the possibility of using copper or stainless steel on your appliances to offset the color of the cabinets.

WITH DISHWASHERS, for example, you can choose from any one of three handsome copper fronts or stainless steel. One of the copper fronts is a wood hue copper tone that blends equally well with modern or Early American decor. It is particularly suited to the wood kitchen because the warm copper color complements all natural woods and adds a rich look to the kitchen.

The wood hue copper tone is a baked enamel finish on a heavy gauge steel.

Also available with undercounter dishwashers is an antique copper front that is a genuine copper plating on heavy gauge steel. Edged Colonialtone, the third copper finish, has a lustrous reddish copper tone with dark shaded edges.

Whichever you choose, you'll find that copper brings a warmth and a beauty to your kitchen that few colors can match.

Elk Grove Jrs. Circle Dates

Elk Grove Village Junior Woman's Club members are circling two future dates on their calendars for the '63-'64 club year. First of these dates in the annual fashion show and luncheon sponsored by the IFWC-affiliated club. To be held Oct. 19, "Tams 'n Tartans" will take place in Tam O'Shanter Country Club. Fashions and models will be from Bonwit Teller according to Mrs. William McCarthy, ways and means chairman.

Election of a Mrs. Elk Grove will be the highlight of the club's sixth annual benefit dance to be held next April in St. Andrews Country Club. Mrs. McCarthy will be announcing further plans in later issues.

Early Vocal Training Is Child Help

School children sing better when they have received vocal training in nursery school, reports a University of Illinois music specialist.

According to Robert B. Smith in the summer issue of Illinois Research, recent tests showed that all of the trained second and third graders and all but two of the first graders sang with complete accuracy. These children were trained in the University's Child Development Laboratory in a vocal research project begun in 1958.

In comparison, the children in the same grades who had not received the nursery school training did not sing so accurately. The third graders who were tested performed least well. Almost 30 per cent of these children were very poor singers.

Smith tested 200 children in the study this spring.

Itascan to Homeland

Contractor Flies 'Family' to Sweden

Ragnar Benson, 437 E. Bloomingdale Road, Itasca, who flew with 72 relatives to Sweden for a visit in 1957 and picked up the $50,000 tab, will take off again on Thursday, July 25 — this time with 35 relatives and old-time employees whom he considers "all part of my family."

The 63-year-old Chicago contractor came here when he was 11 years old and worked himself up from a $5-a-week bricklayer's helper to head of his $80,000,000 industrial engineering firm. He has at least four reasons for the trip to his hometown, Almhult, in the province of Smoland.

THE FIRST is the christening of his 3-months-old grandnephew, Anders Benson, of 325 N. Garfield, Hinsdale, in his old parish church. Anders will be the youngest member of the reunion party.

The second is to attend the wedding of Anders' aunt, Gunnilla Bergstrom, in the same church.

"My third purpose is to celebrate the 50th birthday of my baby brother, Gust," Benson said. "In the Scandinavian countries when a man turns 50, it is considered the most important day of his life."

BENSON'S brother, Gust, is a superintendent in his 1,200-employee building firm.

Reason four is that Ragnar Benson wants to celebrate his own 64th birthday in his hometown with both his American and Swedish relatives—a total of 115.

There is still another purpose of the trip. "I'm bringing along some loving cups which I will give out as prizes to the winners of the south Sweden swimming meet on Aug. 14," he said. "It seems they named it after me."

The Benson reunion party will fly from O'Hare Airport by United Air Lines at 2:30 p. m. to New York. At 8 p. m. the same day the party will board a Scandinavion Airlines System jet for Copenhagen. There they will board another plane for a 10-minute hop to Malmo, Sweden.

Benson and his family will visit the farmhouse in which he was born. Over the years, Benson has installed electricity, plumbing and central heating.

RAGNAR BENSON

"AS LONG AS my mother was alive, she would not allow me to modernize it in any way," Benson said. "She told me she would never be able to get used to all the newfangled improvements and didn't think them proper in a farmhouse."

The party will return to Chicago Aug. 19.

Benson, who has been called Sweden's favorite American ambassador of goodwill, preached a sermon in his hometown church in 1957. He has no such intentions this time, he said. "I'll leave that to the preacher," he said.

Theatre Run

The Sisterhood of Maine Township Jewish Congregation is presenting a theatre run for "Mutiny on the Bounty" to be shown at the Golf Mill Theatre from July 26 to Aug. 15. Tickets will be sold at regular box office prices and will be good any day or evening except Saturday after 5 p.m.

Reva Weinberg, 299-5214, may be contacted for tickets.

Quite Contrary by Mary

Something for Bandaids

A few years ago the record companies came out with some albums entitled, "Music to Brood By," "Music to Eat By" and others of the same ilk. 'm thinking very seriously of cutting one of my own to be called, "Music To Bleed By." No matter, I certainly have a house to bleed in.

A few weeks ago a whole bunch of kids came rushing into my house with the news that one of my neighbor's children had cut his knee. As I was sort of in charge due to Papa and Mama being out for the evening, I invited them to bring the wounded one to me while I went for the inevitable Band-Aids. I mean, with boys one rather expects a skinned knee here and there.

MARY

In due time, in came the little sufferer. One look at the gash on his knee with the kneecap exposed to my horrified eyes caused me to reason that this was not Band-Aid time. He was taken to the hospital where about 30 some stitches were required.

Just the other day, one of my son's little boy friends decided that my front screen door, which has a glass panel, was not hooked so he slammed his whole arm through it. As he did not break into wracking sobs, I concluded that he was not hurt. It wasn't until I saw some blood on the shattered glass that I thought to ask him if he were hurt. He allowed as how he was a wee bit scratched as he stood bleeding profusely all over my front porch.

Once more I hied myself for the Bandaids. I started to wash off his wound and discovered practically a crater in his wrist. Visions of arteries and tendons popped into my head as I put the Band-Aids back and reached for the phone to his mother.

Off to the hospital for him where they discovered he had just missed a tendon and they donated 15 stitches to the cause. Now, what I want to know is, are all these Band-Aids going to waste? Aren't any of the kids going to come up with something I can treat with my own little home remedies? Or must I take a short course in the art of suturing?

Holiday Trimmings Displayed in Show

Cooling thought for warm summer days . . . Christmas is a hop, skip and a jump away!

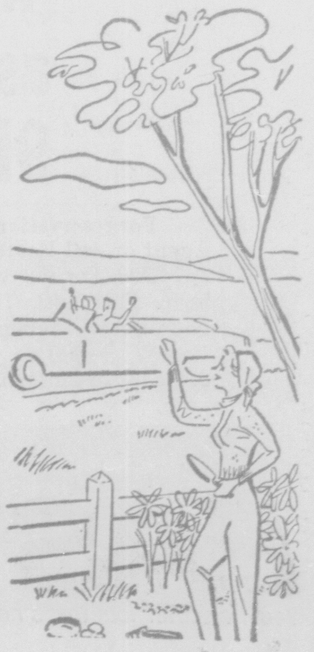
Retailers throughout the country are making their selections of gifts and holiday decorations at the China, Glass and Gift Market in the Merchandise Mart, July 29 through Aug. 9.

Christmas this year will be traditional with lots of green, gold and bright berry red. Holly wreaths and small decorative trees are shiny green trimmed with velvet bows, garlands of della robbia fruits, bright red cherries, strawberries and "just-for-fun" polka dot mushrooms.

TINSEL STRING, fluffy foil fringe and gold paper garlands offer trimming possibilities artfully festive and fascinating! Small mirrors on an invisible nylon thread, or multi-faceted glittering ornaments reflect a thousand dancing lights in a holiday room.

Oversize ornaments, much too big for the tree hang in clusters and carry Christmas into every corner of the house. Some resemble frosty decorated icicles; others use velvet, jewels and glitter for fancy festive baubles.

No cranberries or pop corn strings . . . but there's more than a hint that this will be an old-fashioned holiday season.



Scenic Refuge

Vacationers Flocking To Crab Orchard Area

MARION, ILL., (UPI)—A sprawling 43,000-acre wildlife refuge in southern Illinois is becoming increasingly popular as a vacation center.

So reports Harry Stiles, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Projects Manager at Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge southwest of Marion.

"Last year we had 1,345,000 'visitor days,'" he said explaining that a "visitor day" is computed on the basis of one person for one day.

"LAST YEAR'S attendance dropped from the previous," said Stiles, "but this year, based on present indications, will be a record-busting one. Last year's generally bad weekend weather hurt us. But we're getting the breaks this year, so far.

"Camping is becoming more popular every passing day here," he said. "Last year we had 58,000 single and family visiting camping days and 68,000 organizational camping days."

Stiles said Crab Orchard was a "unique" refuge in that, unlike its approximately 290 companion refuges in the country, it serves a three-fold purpose while the others serve only one.

"While most refuges exist only for wildlife, Crab Orchard serves the greater recreational needs of the area, wildlife needs, and industrial uses," he said.

Crab Orchard was opened by the federal government Aug. 2, 1947, as a refuge following its use during World War II as a major military ordnance area.

CRAB ORCHARD National Wildlife Refuge offers a variety of recreational activities for vacationers set in beautiful natural scenery. The refuge and its three lakes are located approximately 350 miles southwest of Chicago, near Marion.

Several sections of the refuge were leased to private industry on a long-term basis.

STILES CAME to Crab Orchard in 1951. "In my first year here," he said, "we had only about 350,000 to 400,000 visitor days. You can see how usage of this area by people has mushroomed."

Of the refuge's 43,000 acres, 22,000 has been set aside for use by the public, including the 7,000-acre Crab Orchard Lake, the 1000-acre Little Grassy Lake and the 810-acre Devil's Kitchen Lake.

"The fishing is very good here," said Stiles, "especially at Little Grassy and Devil's Kitchen. We had 68,000 visitor days of fishing last year."

CRAB ORCHARD also offers power boating, sail boating, hunting in season, picnic grounds, swimming, field dog training, and dog training.

"All of these activities are set in some of the most beautiful natural scenery anywhere," added Stiles.

RECENTLY RETURNED from a cruise aboard the S.S. Evangeline to Nassau, overnight by ship from Miami, were the Charles Brazeaus and Linda and Mike, 428 W. Foundry Road, Mount Prospect. Two days and a night were spent sightseeing, swimming and shopping in the colorful tropical island.

Unique Color In New Mexico

State Has Foreign Flavor for Tourist

By JEANNE WELCH
Travel Editor

I sometimes wonder whether the rank and file citizen (and his children) has any real concept of the vastness and diversity of these United States. True, mass communications and mass marketing are tending to wipe out regional differences so perhaps it behooves us to explore our own country as well as possible, before it becomes one monotoned, coast-to-coast shopping center.

One state with strong flavors of the foreign is New Mexico, the stark beauty of its deserts and wildernesses and its heritage from the Indian and from old Mexico giving it a piquancy few states can match.

Traveling in New Mexico has not always been a matter of spinning effortlessly over four-lane highways. Recently, however, several new roads have been completed and although there are still many well kept graveled roads, the new paved roads have opened up vistas easily accessible for the first time.

It is good news to me that three of the new roads are in the Taos area, for Taos is one of my favorite towns within our own borders. If you have a taste for the picturesque you'll dote on this artist colony's winding streets and walled gardens. Entrance into the latter is often through old, heavily carved, weathered doors. In fact, Taos' gardens always remind me of that beloved children's classic, "The Secret Garden."

One of the new Taos' roads, and a badly needed one, leads to the Taos Indian Pueblo where in a 900-year old tiered village Indians speaking the Tigua language live much as their ancestors did centuries ago.

Visitors can browse through the plaza of the pueblo and, for a fee, take photographs. Tribal dances, open free to the public, will be staged on September 29-30 and at Christmas and New Year's.

The state capital, Santa Fe, has scheduled several events of interest to summer tourists. Al fresco opera is offered through August 24, with "Die Fledermaus" and "Der Rosenkavalier" included in the repertory as well as two contemporary operas.

The Museum of New Mexico offers an opportunity to assimilate easily some of the area's history—the history of centuries. A new "San Gabriel Room" in the Palace of the Governors displays artifacts from ruins of the nation's second oldest capital, founded in 1598. The Palace of the Governors is itself 350 years old. How many Americans who return from Europe, impressed by its antiquities, realize that this nation is not strictly a 20th century one?

New Mexico is hot in summer, but dry and not uncomfortable. The state has also in recent years become popular with the skiing crowd. Summer or winter, New Mexico is one of our 50 states which bears exploring by the traveler seeking to broaden his horizons.

Wisconsin Expansion

Report Emphasizes Future Recreation Needs in State

MADISON, WIS., (UPI)—Department of Resource Development Director Frank P. Zeidler recently announced that the department has made available one of six technical reports prepared as the first phase of the comprehensive state plan.

The 125-page report, titled "Recreation in Wisconsin," presents inventories of the state's recreational resources and man-made recreational facilities and analyzes the state's present and future recreational needs.

It also makes preliminary recommendations for the wise use and development of the state's recreational resources.

A GRANT FOR the report was provided to the Department of resource development's planning division by the U. S. housing and home Finance Agency (HHFA) and an appropriation was also made by the state recreation committee. Staff services were provided by the conservation and resource development departments.

The report covers a two-year study by the department's recreation division staff. Included in the conclusions are these:

—Lack of recreation facilities is particularly severe in the southeastern and east central sections of the state, where the demands of urban populations in and outside the state are growing at a rapid rate;

—New and accelerated planning and action programs, both public and private, are required to stop destruction and limitation of recreational resources;

—Additional public land acquisitions are required to satisfy close-to-home, short-term recreational needs;

—The number of visitors to rural recreation areas is expected to increase 85 per cent by 1980 and 273 per cent by the year 2000;

—Out-of-state visitors spend one-third of the state's recreation dollars; and —Wisconsin's outdoor resources are found generally in linear patterns, extensive configurations of water, wetlands and significant topography created by wind, water and glacial action.

The Department of Resource Development said outdoor resources include more than just the areas required for sports. They should be recognized and conserved as much as possible in planning for residential, industrial and highway developments.

RECREATIONAL facilities currently under pressure and where programs must be undertaken to expand the supply of adequate facilities and areas, the report says, include:

—Swimming: approximately 1,000 new acres of rural public swimming beaches are needed to meet current demands, especially in southern and eastern Wisconsin. By the year 2000, new beach requirements are expected to rise to 7,050 acres.

Boating: Requirements will double in 20 years and increase nearly five times in 40 years. Better highways to the north, more kale access and boating facilities and 12 to 14 additional boat harbors on the Great Lakes will be required;

—Fishing: Clean water and adequate habitat for fish must be preserved and accelerated fish management and research will be needed to produce maximum supplies of sport species;

—Camping: Camping in a per capita basis in Wisconsin is lower than in other regions of the country because development of facilities has lagged behind demand. Coordinated governmental and private efforts are required to expand facilities;

—Water Skiing: Statewide, facilities for water skiing are still inadequate, but demands near urban areas are twice as great as ideal conditions would provide. Surface water zoning will be needed to preserve the sport;

Canoeing: Demands on the state's canoeing waters are expected to equal capacities by 1980. Approximately one-half the prime canoe streams should be protected by easements;

—Hiking: Additional hiking trails will be required, especially in southern and east-central Wisconsin. Except in the southeast, facilities are at present not utilized to full capacity because of lack of proper development and advertising. Easements are suggested as a means of acquiring hiking rights-of-way;

—Wildlife Supply for hunting is good, but poorly distributed. Demand is now equal to supply in the southeast, but is less than the supply in other regions. Greater discretionary powers must be given professional managers to arrange harvest on the basis of supply. Land use practices complement wildlife management whenever possible;

—Snow Skiing: Commercial ski hills have grown from nine in 1949 to 43 in 1962. Use of ski hills has risen 18 per cent per year since 1949. It may double by 1980 and increase four times by the year 2000. Commercial operations are now hampered by high liability insurance rates, lack of comprehensive show-reporting and lack of safety standards;

—Picnicking: More picnic facilities are now needed, especially in southeastern Wisconsin. Nearly two-thirds of the use is within 40 miles of picnickers' homes.

The report said additional facilities should be developed on lands now in public ownership throughout the state and noted that pleasure driving and sightseeing are still the most popular forms of outdoor recreation.

Multiflora Rose Is Hardy Plant

MADISON, WIS., (UPI) — The multiflora rose is a hardy plant that will survive drought and subzero cold, according to Harry Stroebe, southern area game division supervisor of the Wisconsin Conservation Department.

He said that diebacks may occur but new shoots will spring forth from the roots and entwine with old canes. He said that in a short time the hedge would be as imposing a barrier and as good a cover for wildlife as it was in the past.

An estimated 20 to 30 million of the "living fence" plants have been distributed by the conservation department in southern Wisconsin in the past.

Report Fires

MADISON, WIS., (UPI) — Prompt, accurate reporting of forest fires to the Wisconsin Conservation Department district ranger station means the difference between a small and a large forest fire, the department said this week.

Study Compromise For Indiana Dunes

WASHINGTON, (UPI) — Federal agencies here are studying a compromise plan to provide Indiana with a public harbor and still permit a 10,000 acre national dunes park, an aide to Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., said.

Indiana interests are pressing for a deep water port at Burns Ditch on Lake Michigan, adjacent to the Bethlehem and Midwest steel plants, present and planned.

Douglas has opposed the port at this site. He has tried to have the area declared the Indiana Dunes National Park.

The compromise is dependent upon the premise that recreation would be considered a factor in determining the benefit-cost ratio. It was worked out by Douglas and the "Save the Dunes Council" in Indiana.

THE COMPROMISE would have a smaller outer harbor than presently planned, yet at approximately the same site. A channel would be dug to a turning basin to be located at a site just north of the New York Central Railroad. The public harbor would be located on the west side of the basin, Bethlehem's on the east side and Midwest's along the channel.

This would preserve about a half-mile public beach, Douglas' aide said. About 1,000 acres of inland scientific reserve originaly included in Douglas' proposal has been destroyed, he said, "And the senator wants additional land east toward Michigan City to make up for what is needed for a 10,000 acre park."

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH E. Gerler, 808 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, are seen entering fashionable El Prado Restaurant on Union Square during their first West Coast vacation. After visiting Los Angeles and Disneyland they came to San Francisco, where they stopped at the Plaza and drove to Sequoia National Park before returning home via Union Pacific.

74 Gather for Wing Ding

Neighborhood Gala Includes Pigs, Prizes, Wobble Boards

by TALLIE MacKENZIE

Combine 130 pounds of roast pig, a sunny summer afternoon, dance contests under the stars, two blocks of neighbors, and you have perfect ingredients for a wing ding.

Coordinators, engineers, and hosts of a recent Arlington Heights "Pig Party" were the Richard Impeys, 621 S. Bristol; the Richard Schoells, 632 S. Bristol; and the Roger Carlsons, 631 S. Burton.

First knowledge of the gala was by unique invitations stitched in red and white checked napkins. Delivered in person, poetry announced that two Rockford-born and raised pigs would be ready for consumption in the Impey yard the evening of Saturday, July 20.

THE RED and white theme was also evident in each guest's beer can "glass." Obliging neighbors saved empty beer cans for weeks so the hosts could cover them for the party in red and white checked shelf paper. This was also used to disguise chianti bottles for candle holders to light dinner tables that also sported checked table cloths.

Waistlines were forgotten for the night as 74 persons consumed 40 pounds of potato salad, three watermelon fruit boats, and the two 65-pound pigs that had roasted over a cement block-lined pit improvised for the occasion. Guests marveled at the pigs which were staunchly laced — with Dorsey Conners coat hangers— to an old coal stoker spit. A one - sixth horsepower motor rotated the spit for 12 hours.

With the blessing of village authorities, the 600 block of S. Bristol was barricaded from traffic and lit with a string of Japanese lanterns. Dancing on the sand strewn street floor was started when each looked under his name tag to discover the name of his first dance partner. When guests were thus duly mixed, three contests were held.

PRIZES? Piggy banks, naturally, cleverly created from bleach bottles, felt and corks by Mrs. Carlson. Those going home with trophies were winners of the polka contest, Mrs. George McKenzie and Mr. John Lundin; the waltz contest, Mr. and Mrs. George Hoban; the twist contest, Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell.

As dancers recovered during a moment of calm, it suddenly sounded as though Martians were descending. Nothing more, however, than 74 pieces of masonite, the newest musical medium called "wobble boards." Each guest held a board vibrating it slowly and softly at first, then faster and louder accompanying the amazing tune, "Tie Me Kangaroo Down." Rewards for the enormous amount of musical talent were the boards as favors. All day Sunday the bubbling sound of wobble boards could be heard as children tried their hands as musicians."

Hostesses were gowned alike thanks to Mrs. Impey's deft sewing needle. She created shifts from red hankerchief print material for the three women and the same material was worn by the hosts as pocket hankerchiefs.

ROAST PIG was the piece de resistance last Saturday when three Arlington Heights couples hosted a gala party for 74 neighbors living in a 2-block area. Village police blocked off streets for the party, which included dancing and prizes. Preparing the two pigs over the open fire are Richard Impey, Roger Carlson and Richard Schoelz.

T. J. Roxworthy Weds Mrs. Barbara Lane

MRS. ROXWORTHY

It's "one big happy family" in the Thomas J. Roxworthy home on W. County Line Road since Mr. Roxworthy claimed Mrs. Barbara Lane of Lake Forest and Lakeland, Fla., as his bride. Mr. Roxworthy and three of his children and the former Mrs. Lane and her four children are now living in his home, "The Ponderosa," after the couple honeymooned at Wolf Lake Lodge at Dairymen's Country Club, Boulder Junction, Wis.

Without telling their plans to the children, the couple flew to Las Vegas on June 27 and were married in The Little Chapel Around the Corner. Arriving home the next day, they broke the news to their families and then left for their honeymoon.

THE BRIDE is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Stentiford of Lake Forest and Lakeland. She was graduated from Edgewood School in New York and from Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington. For the past three years she was a private secretary in Chicago.

Her four children are Stephen, Michael, Robert Patrick and Mary Diane Lane.

Mr. Roxworthy, who was a Lake Forest resident for many years prior to moving to this area 15 years ago, now operates a real estate firm in Barrington. He had a career in the newspaper field before entering his present business.

HIS THREE sons who live at home are Dennis, Donald and William. He also has two other sons, Thomas Jr. and James, and a daughter, now Mrs. Russel (Patricia) Rydin. Thomas Jr. and James reside in Barrington Woods and Mrs. Rydin in Chicago. (S

Philip Nesset's Bride Carries Heirloom Hanky

A 150-year-old handkerchief that her mother and grandmother used in their weddings was inserted in the bouquet of calla lilies carried by Mary Page Withers when she became the bride of Philip Nesset, son of Dr. and Mrs. M. Nesset, 469 N. Ela, Palatine, June 22.

The bride, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Dan B. Withers Jr. of Elgin, chose a cahama cloth gown with chapel train, and a Brussels lace mantilla veil completed her ensemble. Her father gave her in marriage.

Rev. Chester D. F. Boynton officiated at the 7:30 p.m. candlelight, double ring ceremony in St. James Episcopal Church, Dundee. Calla lily bouquets were on the altar and the pews were decorated with candelabras, daisies and vines. Deaconess Helen Taylor was organist.

MISS NAN Withers was her sister's maid of honor and was attired in a turquoise silk shantung floor - length dress. Her veiled headpiece was of the same color and her corsage followed the calla lily motif.

The gowns and flowers of the bridesmaids, Miss Wendy Withers of Madison, sister of the bride, and Misses Judy Westling and Minnie Geiwitz, both of Minneapolis, were the same as that of the maid of honor.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Withers chose a powder blue silk dress with matching hat and shoes. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a champagne-colored brocade dress with matching hat and both mothers had rose corsages.

Brothers of the groom, Dr. Burton Nesset of Ann Arbor, Mich., best man, and Dr. David Nesset of Palatine, usher, were among his attendants. Other ushers were Northfield, Minn., residents, W. Dale Weyhrich and David Taylor.

A RECEPTION for 150 guests followed the ceremony in the church parish house.

The newlyweds' honeymoon is being postponed until August, as Mr. Nesset is attending summer school at Luther Seminary in St. Paul. He is a graduate of Palatine High School and St. Olaf College. His bride, a graduate of Elgin High School and St. Olaf College, is a teacher in the Robinsdale, Minn. schools.

An apartment in St. Paul is the present home of the couple.

Galandak-Petersen Rites Unite Arlington Families

(Times-Candid

Amid a green and white setting with accents of yellow, two Arlington Heights families were joined when Miss Doren Galandak, daughter of the John Galandaks, 801 N. Patton, became the bride of Robert C. Petersen June 22. The bridegroom is the son of the Elmer Petersens, 624 E. Golf Road.

Our Saviour Lutheran Church in Arlington Heights was decorated with two potted palms at each side of the altar, two bouquets of white gladioli and mums and white bows with lily of the valley on the aisle for the 4:30 candlelight, double ring nuptials. Rev. John P. Petersen performed the ceremony and Dr. Robert Wolff was organist. An aunt of the bride, Mrs. Willard Schuessler, sang "O Perfect Love" and "Wedding Song."

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, was wearing a gown of pure silk organza over taffeta, fashioned with a fitted bodice and long tapered sleeves. The very full bouffant skirt fell into a chapel train and the gown was ornamented with re-embroidered alencon and accented in tiny seed pearls on the bodice. A pattern of the medallions fell away from the waistline in front to the back of the train.

A THREE-TIER veil of silk illusion was attached to a crown of lace and pearls, and the bridal bouquet was made up of two white orchids and stephanotis.

The maid of honor, Carol Oja of Algonquin, and four bridesmaids, Karen Schuessler of LaGrange, the bride's cousin; Dorothy Schultheiss of Elk Grove; Jan Linnemann of Roselle; and Marlene Ross of Huntington, Ind., were attired in nile green sheath dresses fashioned with fitted bodices and matching overskirts bordered in dyed to match chantilly lace. They wore wide hats of matching nile green net with tiny flowers on top.

Accenting the attendants' attire were the green necklace and earring sets, gifts of the bride, and their bouquets of yellow roses.

Don Petersen of Addison was his brother's best man, and ushers were Kenneth Rapp, Chuck Petersen, Charles Jarmuth and Norman Stevens.

A GREEN sheath embroidered with tiny pink flowers and crystal sequins was chosen by Mrs. Galandak for her daughter's wedding, and Mrs. Petersen was attired in an orchid lace jacket dress with orchid satin shoes. Both mothers had corsages of pink roses.

A buffet dinner was served to 230 guests in the VFW hall before the newlyweds left on their two-week honeymoon to Colorado, California, Las Vegas and Seattle. They are now at home at 85 Dover Drive, Des Plaines.

The new Mrs. Petersen, a 1960 graduate of Arlington High, attended Indiana University and is now employed at Allstate Insurance Company in Skokie. Her bridegroom, a '54 Arlington grad, works for United Air Lines.

Just Around the Corner from Patty McArdle

Megan's Surprise

Dear Peg:

I decided that it was time for a treat for Megan. While her brothers and sisters have been having a wonderful vacation at Grandma and Grandpa McA's farm, she has been faithfully attending her typing class at the high school every day. And with her Mama having to study in most of her spare time, poor Megan has had very little extra-curricular activity other than going to the pool with her friends. So it was time for a surprise.

McARDLE

Last Thursday, when I returned home from my afternoon class, I told her to get cleaned up, put on a pretty dress and I would take her to some very nice place. She looked at me a little dubiously, since we don't always agree on fun places, however, I assured her that she would enjoy the evening I had planned for her.

"Are we going to eat dinner somewhere in Chicago?", she asked, as it became obvious that we were headed in that direction.

"Yes, but I'm not going to tell you where—so don't try to find out." I replied, trying to sound very final.

"Does it begin with "D?" she parried (remembering the last treat she had, having dinner in the Cape Cod Room at the Drake Hotel).

"No. Now I'm not going to tell you any more, so don't ask!" This didn't stop her, of course, and she started through the alphabet. As soon as she said "A?" she could tell she need go no farther. I just can't keep a straight face.

"I know. You're taking me to the Pump Room in the Ambassador East Hotel!"

"Sure," I said, "and we're going to sit in booth one with Rock Hudson and Tony Curtis." This ended the guessing game, as she could think of no other place to eat beginning with 'A'.

What a surprised look came over her face, as I led her up the steps of the Art Institute.

"Here?" she exclaimed, "Where in the world do we eat in here?" This is what I thought the first time a friend took me to dinner at the Institute.

We walked through the building and came out onto the lovely, outdoor dining patio, located in the center of the building. Megan couldn't believe her eyes—the lovely pool in front of her, with its classic statuary fountains, surrounded by white iron tables with bright yellow umbrellas, made a truly enchanting picture.

A pretty little hostess, probably one of the summer school students, took us to a table alongside the pool. Watching the fountains spraying and spewing streams and ribbons of water has the same hypnotic effect as watching a burning fireplace. And the atmosphere is one of peace and calm.

Our dinner was delicious (and moderately priced) and, having arrived early, we had plenty of time to go through several of our favorite galleries before the 9:30 closing time.

If this sounds like something you and your family might enjoy, let me remind you that it is only on Thursday night that the Art Institute and the dining patio are open, other than the regular daytime hours.

Oh, yes, Megan enjoyed her surprise treat very much. I knew she would!

My love,
Patty

Here's HAUGH to Plan a Party

Let Guests 'Take Over' For Super Sandwich Party

With the days of summer heat and warm kitchens upon us, it's fun to eat outside with a minimum of cooking. This is fun for teenagers after a day of swimming or for small fry on a picnic and the best part is that it's easy on the cook.

PREPARATIONS

The main idea here is to "take the makings" outside. Set a picnic table with the gayest of covers in bright orange and brown. Cloth and napkins of paper cut down on ironing later. Heavy candles and a duck decoy with a few sprays of flowers in orange and green wheat set a lovely table anytime but especially when you add the bright reds of tomatoes, peppers and radishes and greens of lettuce, celery, onions, the glow of meats arranged on a platter and a grouping of dressings cold from the refrigerator.

The trick is to have two or three long loaves of warm French bread slit lengthwise and ready for fixing. Then three people to a loaf start their super sandwich, arranging all the cheeses, meats, dressings, salad greens, etc.

Tooth picks or skewers will hold the creation together and then the tasting begins. You can even award prizes of kitchen gadgets and seasonings for prizes for the best super sandwich built or constructed.

LOTS OF cold drinks in frosted glasses can be award winners, too, if you let your guests decorate them with thin slices of lemons, lime, oranges, cherries, etc. A watermelon scooped out and filled with fruit salad makes a wonderful salad-dessert combination, and winding up with a few salted nuts and cool mints the guests will be full and ready for the evening of dancing, movies, relaxing or what have you?

INVITATIONS

You need not stand on ceremony with this kind of a super supper. Just ask a few friends or even, relatives, and prepare all ahead of time. As for the fruit, just a simple note, add a bit of lemon to your bananas and peaches after slicing and they will not discolor in the air.

If you want to send out invitations, simulate the French bread with beige construction paper and fold it over lengthwise to fit a long legal sized envelope. On a bit of green paper for lettuce, write the time, on a red tomato of paper write the place, on pink paper ham write the title of the party and so on, so the loaf of paper bread is filled into a super supper sandwich invitation.

Your guests will really think you are a clever one to have done up such a simple yet satisfying super supper. (S

An unusually flavorful salad can be made with canned red kidney beans, chopped onion and diced celery marinated in a zesty dressing of beer a n d seasonings. Garnished with tomato wedges and cucumber slices, it is colorful, and aptly named Fiesta Salad.

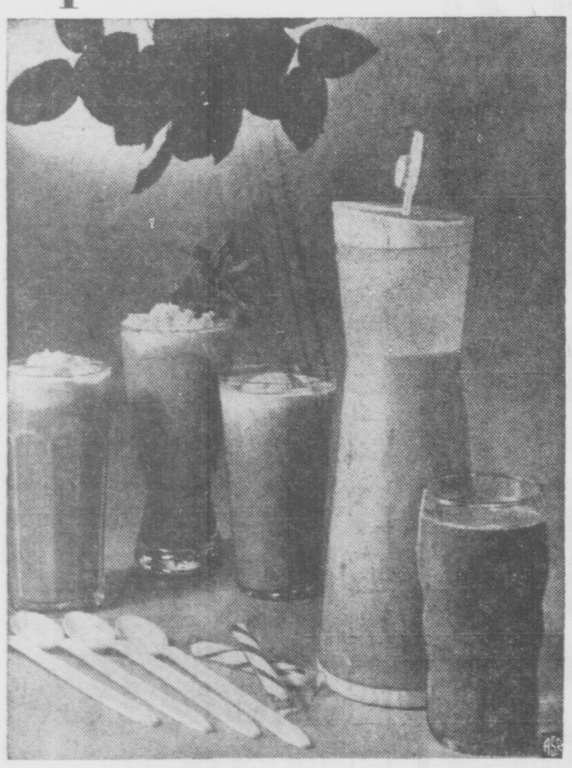
Greek Resorts

Nice and Antibes, popular vacation spots on the Riviera, are nothing new. They were founded by the ancient Greeks.

Super Milk Shakes



As summer sets in, kitchen traffic increases. The children not only want more to quench their thirst, but they want it more frequently. One suggestion that makes sense is to keep a shaker of chocolate-flavored milk ready and waiting in the refrigerator.

By making it ahead, you can add just the right amount of fortified syrup without being extravagant or wasteful.

AS A SURPRISE delight, vary the shake occasionally with additional ingredients. In addition to the 1 quart of milk, and the ¼ cup fortified chocolate flavored syrup, add an additional ingredient such as ¼ cup malted milk powder, or a few drops of peppermint extract, or 2 or 3 tablespoons instant coffee.

For special occasions and parties, prepare the shakes ahead as usual, then let the guests add their own final touches of whipped cream, a scoop of ice cream and toppings such as crushed peppermint candy, chocolate sprinkles and the like.

The shaker shown above is a 1-quart plastic shaker currently being offered for 50 cents and a labed from a jar of Bosco. Send money and label to Bosco Shaker, Box 8070, Erie, Pa.

Designers Recommend Home Office for Top Efficiency

Bills, grocery lists, letters, income tax, bank records, investments, bills and more bills. The paper work involved in running a home today is getting to be a full time business.

To handle it efficiently, many families are setting aside a specific area of their home as a home office. In smaller homes, in which an entire room can't be devoted to an office, the next best solution is simply to create an office area within another room.

How can office space be added to an existing room without sacrificing the basic decor of the room? Members of Armstrong Cork Company's Bureau of Interior Design have prepared a list of suggestions for planning an attractive and practical home office. Here are a few of their ideas:

1. WHEN PLANNING a home office, choose a room in which the home office furniture will coordinate best with the basic furnishings of the room. The living room, bedroom or family room are good places to look for space to locate a home office. Many types of desks are available that avoid the "commercial look" so don't be overly concerned about the room looking like a business office.

2. Place the desk in a corner or in some location where it will not dominate the room. This will usually make decorating easier and simplify the rearrangement of furniture to accommodate the home office furniture.

3. Select furniture that can "double in brass." A file cabinet is desirable for keeping orderly records and providing a convenient storage place for the large amount of paper work involved in running a home. Attractive cabinets are available which look more like end tables than file cabinets, making them a decorating extra rather than an eyesore.

4. GIVE CAREFUL consideration to the selection of the chair in front of the desk. Since appearance will be the primary consideration, the chair should not look like an "office" chair, but should coordinate with the rest of the furnishings in the room. Before choosing a chair make sure it will be comfortable for use at the desk and that the height of the arms and seat are convenient for typing.

5. Provide adequate lighting in the area of the desk. A lamp on the desk and one on the file cabinet should be sufficient. Matching lamp shades will help tie together the office area with the decor of the rest of the room.

6. Consider the use of a bulletin board on the wall behind the desk. A decorative window shade can be used to conceal the bulletin board when company is expected. By simply raising the shade, the bulletin board can be back in operation in a moment.

7. AN ACOUSTICAL ceiling will make the room more enjoyable for the entire family's use. The sound conditioning effect of an acoustical ceiling will help soften the clatter of typing and avoid disturbing others in the room. Also, the person at the desk can work less distracted by conversations in the rest of the room.

In addition to the sound conditioning feature, modern acoustical ceilings are available in a variety of colors, textures and designs and provide an attractive decorating extra.

8. While flooring should be selected primarily for its decorative appeal, ease of maintenance and durability should be considered. Sheet vinyl flooring materials are easy to care for because they can be installed virtually without seams. Some of the most popular effects in vinyl flooring feature textured designs with a slightly embossed surface that tends to conceal scuff marks and scratches. Many of these new flooring materials are available in natural effects and light colorings that simplify color coordination of all the decorating elements in the room.

Thomas McAuliffe Weds Marengo Girl June 22nd

In a June 22 ceremony, Phyllis Joost, daughter of former Arlington Heights residents, the Paul Joosts of Marengo, and granddaughter of the senior George Busse of Mount Prospect, and Thomas J. McAuliffe, son of the Lester T. McAuliffes, 621 N. State Road, Arlington Heights, repeated their nuptial promises before the altar of the Zion Lutheran Church in Marengo.

Baskets of glads and mums were placed at the altar for the double ring ceremony read by Rev. Russell D. Killion at 4 p.m. in the presence of the immediate families and close friends of the couple.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of white cotton lace with a scoop neckline and short sleeves. Her brief veil was held in place by a pillbox hat and she carried a cascade of Amazon lilies and ivy.

LYN DICK of Chicago was the bride's matron of honor with Nancy Julien and Marilyn Johnson as bridesmaids and the bride's sister, Juanita Joost, as junior bridesmaid. All were gowned alike in dresses of yellow and white checked cotton featuring a scalloped border of yellow and scooped necklines. Their bouquets were fashioned of white Shasta mums and ivy.

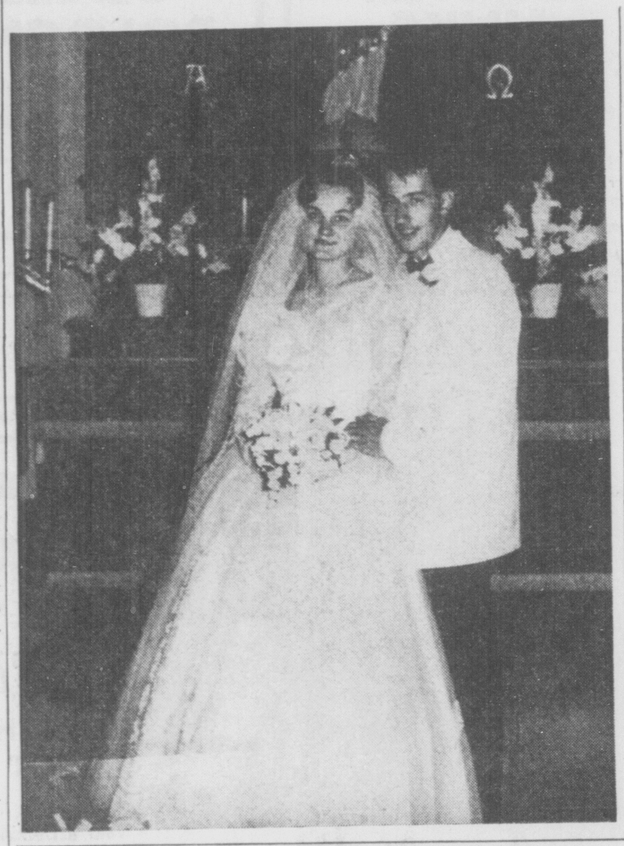
The groom's attendants were William Kopp of Arlington Heights as best man and Robert Beede and Edward Dick as ushers.

A wedding dinner was served to guests in the parish hall with a reception held later in the home of the bride's parents.

FOLLOWING the reception, the newlyweds left for a wedding trip at the Wisconsin Dells and are now at home in Arlington Heights.

The new Mrs. McAuliffe is a graduate of Illinois State Normal University and is presently employed in Park Ridge. The groom graduated from Arlington High School and Illinois Wesleyan University, and is employed in sales work in Elgin.

Bride Wears Sister's Gown For 'Something Borrowed'



Wearing her sister's wedding gown added a sentimental touch when Sandra Rae Suthers became the bride of James William Garard Jr. in Immanuel Lutheran Church, Palatine. The wedding of the Palatine couple was performed by Rev. R. Sauer on June 29 at 7 in the evening.

The bride wore the chantilly lace and satin gown which her sister, Mrs. Ralph Berlin, wore on her wedding day seven years ago. With it she wore Mrs. Berlin's floor length veil which was also trimmed with chantilly lace.

The gown had long sleeves and scalloped neckline on the lace bodice, and the lace was repeated in panels on the front and back of the full skirt. The lace was embroidered with iridescent sequins and pearls.

TO COMPLETE her attire she wore a cultured pearl necklace and carried a cascade bouquet of white roses.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Suthers of 635 W. Hillcrest Road, and the groom's parents, the senior James Garards, reside on Plum Grove Road. The newlyweds both attended Palatine High School.

The bridal party was colorfully attired in rainbow shaded organza dresses, street length, with short lace jackets. Their shoes were dyed to match, and their headpieces also matched, fashioned of an organza rose petal to hold a nose veil in place. Each girl carried a bouquet of carnations which matched the color of her dress.

THE THREE bridal attendants, all residents of Palatine, were Shelia Berlin, in mint green; Valarie Kober, in yellow, and Diane Priebe, in blue.

Also attending her as junior bridesmaids were her nieces, 5-year-old Karen Rae Suthers of Berwyn and Janice Lee Berlin of Palatine. They wore orchid organza dresses with white accessories. Their white lace bonnets were trimmed with orchid flowers, and their bouquets were also of orchid carnations.

The three adult attendants each wore a crystal necklace and earrings, the earrings a gift from the bride. The two junior bridesmaids wore matching necklaces, also a gift from the bride.

DRESED identically to the junior bridesmaids and carrying a basket of rose petals was 4-year-old Bernadette Clendenning of Chicago, who served her cousin as flower girl. With her at the altar was 3-year-old Johnny Holmes of Barrington as ring bearer.

The groom had his brother, John Garard as best man, and groomsmen were Kenneth Gotsch of Barrington and Dennis Wessel of Palatine.

Ushers were the bride's two brothers, Richard Suthers of Berwyn and Donald Suthers of Palatine. All the men in the wedding party wore summer formals with white jackets and white flower boutonnieres.

Kenneth Sodt of Elgin was soloist, singing "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer" for the double ring rites.

FOR THE festivities, which included a buffet supper and reception for 150 guests in Des Plaines VFW Hall, the bride's mother was attired in a pink lace dress with matching jacket and pink accessories. Her corsage was of white and pink-tinted carnations. Mrs. Garard chose an ice blue satin sheath dress with matching accessories, and her corsage of white and blue-tinted carnations also matched her attire.

After a honeymoon in Colorado Springs, the couple are residing in Palatine, both employed in the local area. (S

Pink Lace Fans Are Carried By Sharon Costello's 'Maids'

Pink lace fans with large crescents of deep red Happiness roses and ivy were carried by Miss Sharon Arlene Costello's attendants June 15 when she became the bride of John A. Lane in St. Raymond de Penafort's Church in Mount Prospect. The fans supplemented the pink and white color scheme of the 10 a.m. nuptial mass and completed the pink ensembles worn by the attendants.

Fr. Joseph Doyle officiated at the service, which united the daughter of the John M. Costellos, 9 W. Orchard Place, Mount Prospect, and the son of Mrs. Albert J. Lane of Chicago.

The bride approached the gladioli and peony-decorated altar with her father, down an aisle marked with ribbons and greens on the pews. Her gown was of candlelight white peau de soie fashioned with long, pointed sleeves and bodice of Chantilly lace. The full skirt of her gown ended in a coronation train extending from a large cabbage rose of peau de soie at the back of the gown. Her veil of tiered illusion was fastened to a high pearl crown and she carried a crescent of phalaenopsis, stephanotis and ivy.

SHE WAS attended by her sisters, Sandra Lynn Costello, as maid of honor, Cheryl Lee Costello as junior bridesmaid and 6-year-old Kimberly Sue Costello, as flower girl. Her 10-year-old brother, Keith John Costello, was ring bearer. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Donald Parks of Bensenville, Miss Barbara Mikotis of Fairborn, Ohio and Mis Julie Pitney of Mount Prospect.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids' formal - length silk organza gowns with bustles featured overskirts of taffeta. The junior bridesmaid's gown was street-length, as was the flower girl's full skirted gown. All the attendants, including the flower girls, wore large pink organza cabbage rose headpieces with circle drops of illusion veiling.

Instead of the lace fans carried by the older attendants, Kimberly Sue carried a basket of deep red Happiness roses. Young Keith wore a morning suit for the wedding mass, changing to a tuxedo for the hotel reception.

CHARLES J. Homan of St. Paul was the groom's best man and ushers were Donn Paul Irmiter of Clemson, S. C., William J. Lambrecht of Wilmette and James J. Raef of Chicago.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Costello chose a beige peau de soie gown with seed pearl trim and matching accessories. Mrs. Lane chose a side-draped gown of ashes of roses crepe with lace bodice and matching accessories.

Following the service, brunch was served in Ray Foley's Hyatt House in Lincolnwood and a 6 o'clock dinner reception for 175 guests was held in the Walnut Room of the Bismarck Hotel in Chicago.

The couple honeymooned for 10 days in Acapulco and Mexico City and are now residing at 1728 Monroe, Evanston. Both are employed by United States Gypsun in Chicago.

The bride studied at Quincy College in Quincy, Ill. and the University of Colorado in Boulder, Colo. Her bridegroom was graduated from Loyola University and received his Master's degree from the University of Chicago. (Jenart Photo(S

Newlyweds Working at Camp On Lake Geneva for Summer

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Heimsoth, recent newlyweds, are spending the summer working at Weslywoods Camp, Lake Geneva. This replaces a honeymoon for the couple, who were married June 15 in Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights.

The bride is the former Dorothy Ann Kieck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Kieck, 1015 N. Chicago Ave., Arlington Heights. The groom is the son of the Harold H. Heimsoths of Des Plaines.

The newlyweds will return to Illinois State University at Normal in fall where both will enter their junior year. They will live in the campus apartments for married students.

The bride is a graduate of Arlington High School and the groom of Prospect High.

THE WEDDING took place at 5:30, with Rev. Edgar H. Behrens officiating in the double ring rites. Theodore Lams was organist, accompanying Arthur W. Kieck, the bride's father, as he sang "Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Baskets of white peonies and glads graced the altar as the bride approached, wearing a floor length silk peau de soie gown with a chapel train. Lace scallops accented the front of the bodice, circling around to the back waistline where a bow held the separate train in place. The bride's silk illusion veil was held by a crown of seed pearls, and her bouquet was of snowdrift mums with ivy.

THE BRIDE'S attendants were all gowned alike in melon colored dresses with scooped neckline, elbow length sleeves and a skirt accented with four inverted pleats. A belt at the waistline had a tailored bow at the front, and a similar tailored bow trimmed the back of a pillbow hat which each girl wore to match her dress. Each carried a crescent bouquet of apricot daisy mums.

Marcia Randolph of Peoria was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were the bride's sister, Nancy Kieck; the groom's sister, Nancy Goebbert of Palatine, and Dorian Henning of Wauwatosa, Wis., a cousin of the bride.

There were also two flower girls, 8-year-old Gail Williams of Palatine and 9-year-old Kyle Larson of Belvidere. They were dressed similarily to the adult attendants.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD Steven Kieck of Arlington Heights was ring bearer and Spencer Gibbins of Alton, best man. Ushering the guests to their pews were Ronald Fritz, Alan Heimsoth and Gordon Goebbert.

A turquoise silk sheath, a white hat and turquoise shoes were worn by the bride's mother for the ceremony, and she had pinned to her shoulder a corsage of cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Heimsoth chose a mint green silk shantung dress with matching hat and shoes and also had a cymbidum corsage.

Following the nuptials 200 guests were received by the couple in Palatine Fire Hall, where Hardt's Melodiers played music for dancing. (S

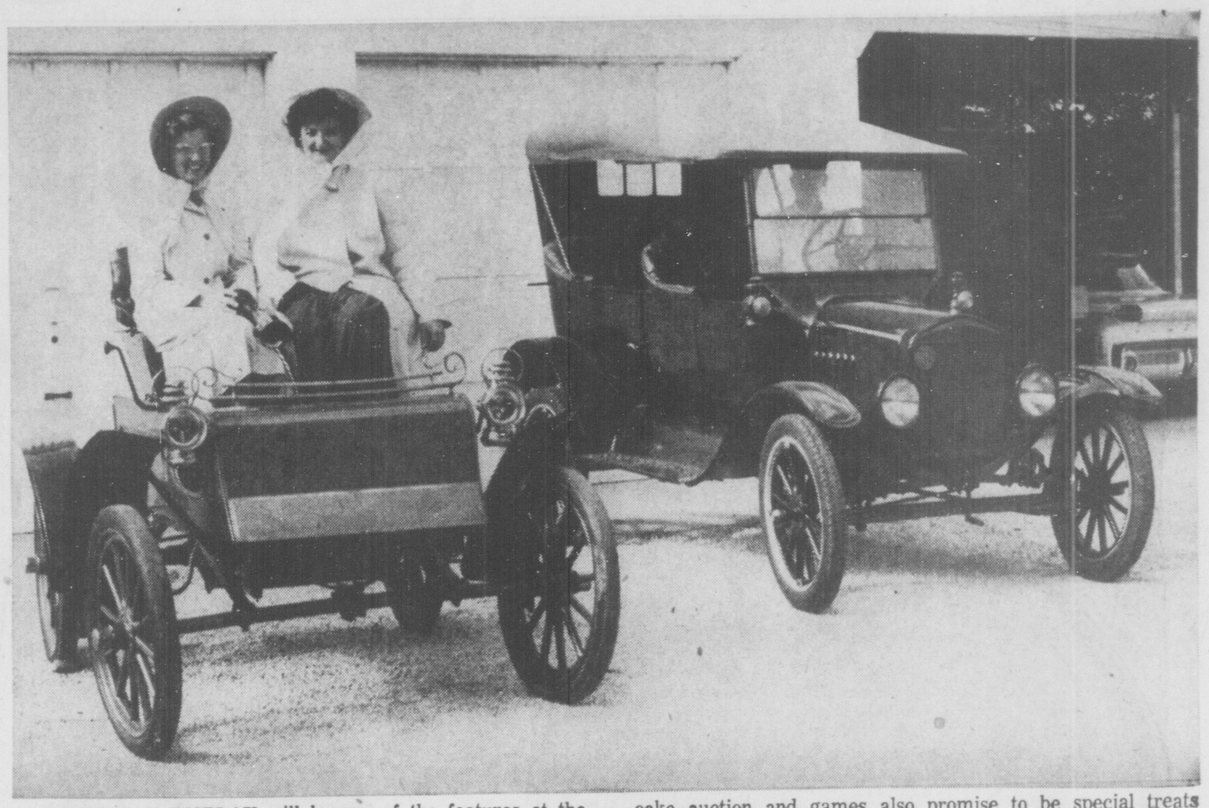
Especially for Women

NOT BIRDS OF A FEATHER . . . but these two pets of a family near Toledo, Ohio, flock together. The unusual friendship began when Mary Gorrell, 10, found the baby blue jay and brought him home. "Tind," the family cat, didn't mind.



ANTIQUE CAR DISPLAY will be one of the features at the ice cream social to be held Aug. 2 when the parking lot of Immanuel Lutheran Church, at Plum Grove and Wood Streets, Palatine, will be turned into an old fashioned ice cream parlor. Besides sundaes, floats, cones, cantaloup and pie, there will be old fashioned penny candy. A sing-along, cake auction and games also promise to be special treats at the social. Previewing the old autos are Mrs. Albert Baumgartner, president of the church's JOY Club, sponsor of the social, and Mrs. Willard Boward, club vice president and committee chairman of the affair. (S

School Principal Takes Teacher as Bride June 22

Relatives and friends of David Ralph Hasz, son of the Martin Haszes, 10 S. Elm, Mount Prospect, traveled to Fort Wayne June 22 to witness a wedding ceremony in which he took Miss Mary Beth Tessman of that city as his bride. The double ring service took place in Bethlehem Lutheran Church at 6:30 p.m. with Rev. Arno Scholz and Rev. Henry Blanke officiating.

The couple is now residing in Colby, Wis., where the groom is principal of Zion Lutheran School. His bride, daughter of the Henri Tessmans of Fort Wayne, taught last year in St. Peter Lutheran School, Arlington Heights. Both studied at Concordia Teachers College in River Forest, from which the groom was graduated.

A GOWN of embroidered net over taffeta was chosen by the bride for her marriage. Tiered net ruffles edged with lace formed a back panel which extended to a chapel train and the fitted bodice was fashioned with a sabrina neckline trimmed with sequins. Her veil, fingertip in length, flowed from a wreath of white flowers and she carried white Amazon lilies centered with pink rosettes and stephanotis in a cascade style.

Mr. Tessman gave his daughter in marriage during the candlelight service, during which Dudley Snyder and Mrs. Martin Hasz Jr. of Mount Prospect were soloists.

Two honor attendants, as well as three bridesmaids, preceded the bride down the church aisle. Matron of honor was Mrs. Thomas Sittler of Pierceton, Ind. and maid of honor was Miss Sandra Tessman of Fort Wayne. Mrs. William Hollman of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Theodore Kottmeier of Elgin and Miss Gay Vogel of Palatine were the bridesmaids.

All wore floor-length gowns of fuchsia satin fashioned with bell skirts and fitted bodices. They carried cascades of pink roses entwined with ivy.

THEODORE Kottmeier of Elgin was the groom's best man and ushers were Jon Tessman of Fort Wayne, Ronald Hoffman of Columbus, Ind., Claytor Fischer of Denver and Martin Hasz Jr. of Mount Prospect.

The wedding reception was held in a Fort Wayne clubhouse at 7:30 p.m., where the bride's mother received in a pink sheath of silk organza with overskirt. Her corsage was of pink and white carnations. A blue and white knit dress with white carnation corsage was the choice of Mrs. Hasz.

The couple honeymooned for a week in the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania before taking up residence in Colby.

Tuna Tempter Created For Summer Appetites

Tuna salad, popular across America, can be given a new look for summer. A creamy blend of tuna, mayonnaise and unflavored gelatine may be chilled in individual molds for a luncheon foursome. Or, for buffet supper service, double the recipe and serve on a fancy platter as shown in the photo.

CANNED TUNA fits the carefree mood of summer. It's ready to use the instant you open the can. Every bit is edible. Liked for its ease of use and flavor, it has protein of superior quality. Also in its nutritional count are B vitamins, and the minerals, phosphorus, iodine and fluorine.

Tuna Mousse needs only a light soup, perhaps a hot bread, relish vegetables, and a dessert to make an elegantly cool meal.

TUNA MOUSSE IS ELEGANTLY cool. This handsome tuna salad mousse, so appetizing for a hot summer day, is made the refrigerator way. Two cans of tuna in vegetable oil are combined with crisp diced celery and mayonnaise. Then the light, creamy mixture is jelled in a nippy base of unflavored gelatine and lemon juice. (SH

¼ teaspoon Tabasco
¾ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 cup finely diced celery
¼ cup finely diced green pepper

1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil

Sprinkle gelatin on cold water in saucepan to soften. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat; stir in salt, lemon juice and Tabasco. Cool. Gradually stir into mayonnaise until blended. Mix in remaining ingredients.

Turn into a 3-cup mold or individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens. Serve with *Cucumber Cream Dressing. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Note: If desired, recipe may be doubled and turned into a round 8 by 2 inch layer cake pan. Unmold and cut into wedgeshaped pieces.

CUCUMBER CREAM DRESSING

½ cup heavy cream, whipped
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vinegar

Do not peel cucumber; wash and chop very fine. Drain well. Combine with remaining ingredients. (SH

Tuna Crown Salad From West Coast

Here's a pretty switch on a perennial summer favorite—tuna salad goes glamorous West Coast style. Crowned with bright fruits, this nutritious main-dish salad is a cinch to make and a positive pleasure to serve.

FOR ALL ITS elegant appearance, Tuna Crown Salad rates just as high in nutrition as it does in looks. A serving of canned tuna provides more first-class protein than a comparable serving of red meat, plus valuable vitamins and minerals.

Tuna is high in poly-unsaturates, and it's easily digestible, due to a minimum of connective tissues. Wise choice for weight-watchers, drained tuna solids contain less calories than equivalent quantities of popular meat cuts.

TUNA CROWN SALAD

1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
½ cup each diced celery, diced cantaloupe and sliced grapes
1 tablespoon capers, optional
1 teaspoon minced onion
¼ teaspoon ginger
3 tablespoons mayonnaise

Combine drained tuna and remaining ingredients. Reserve oil for cooking purposes. Pack tuna mixture into a 2-cup measure. Invert on bed of shredded lettuce. Garnish with avocado slices and orange sections

Yield: 2 to 3 servings. (SH

Vanilla Added To Fruit Dish

PURE EXTRACT of the vanilla bean can save sugar, cut calories, when added to fresh fruit compote. (SH

Reminder to the calorie counters — a little pure vanilla extract added to fruit brings out natural flavor, reduces the need for added sweetening. Try it with this fresh-as-a-daisy dessert.

Yield, 6 servings. Calories, 97 per serving.

VANILLA MULLED FRESH FRUIT

1 cup fresh orange sections
1 cup fresh grapefruit sections
1 unpeeled apple, sliced
1 medium size pear
3 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon pure vanilla extract
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Arrange fruit in layers in a 1-quart baking dish, sprinkling each layer with sugar. Combine lemon juice and pure vanilla extract and sprinkle over the top.

Dot with butter or margarine. Cover and bake in a pre-heated moderate oven (350 degrees) 20 to 30 minutes. Serve hot.

Circus Party Features Crunchy Oatmeal Rings

Children expected? Oatmeal cookies are in order. And a party setting of some kind. Glass cups, holding red fruit-flavored gelatin "set on a slant" are the party "surprise."

Stack a circus elephant pretzel-stick with these chewy oatmeal cooky rings. Use the stick to store the cookies as well as to serve them, because the recipe bakes up soft and tender, and the flavor seems to improve in the humid air of July.

Breakfast cereals are excellent for ingredient use in recipes and make nutritional contributions of protein, important B vitamins, essential minerals, and food energy.

LEMON PECAN OATMEAL COOKY RINGS

1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup soft shortening
½ cup brown sugar, packed
½ cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1½ cups rolled oats
½ cup coarsely chopped pecans

Combine flour, soda, and salt; sift into large bowl of electric mixer. Add shortening, sugars, egg, lemon rind and juice. Beat at medium speed with electric mixer or by hand until smooth, about 2 minutes. Fold in rolled oats and pecans. Mix well. Turn level tablespoonfuls onto well-greased baking sheet 2 inches apart.

Make a hole about 1 inch in diameter in center of each cooky, using the back of a small spoon or the handle end of a washed wooden spoon. Shape into ring with fingers. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until done and lightly browned, 10 to 12 minutes. Remove from baking sheet at once and cool on wire rack.

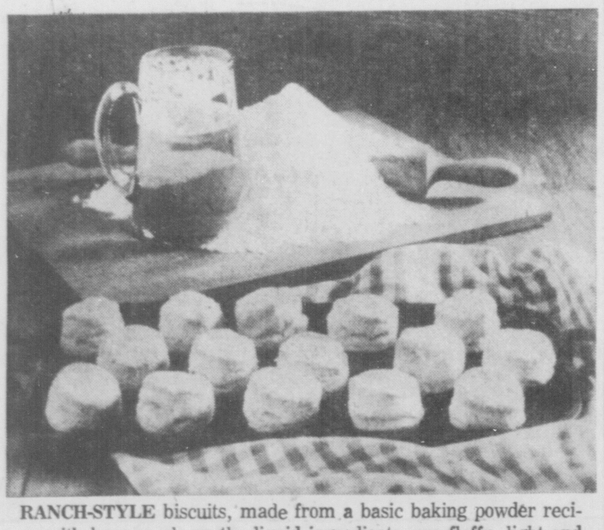
Yield: About 3½ dozen cookies. (SH

Here's a Good Steer: Ranch-Style Biscuits

Meanwhile, back at the ranch—warm, wonderful biscuits are baking. These aromatic biscuits are made from a basic baking powder recipe, with one delightful exception. The surprise ingredient is beer, or ale, and it helps make the lightest biscuits ever-

While these subtly-tanged biscuits are said to have originated on a ranch in the Southwest, baking with beer and ale is not new. In fact, baking and brewing are two of the oldest household arts, and the fruits of the latter were often applied to the former.

A small amount of beer or ale substituted for part of the liquid in the batter of muffins, nut cakes, pancakes and even holiday plum puddings gives delicious results, too.



RANCH-STYLE biscuits, made from a basic baking powder recipe with beer or ale as the liquid ingredients, are fluffy, light and luscious, (SH

RANCH-STYLE BEER BISCUITS

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder

N. Y. Newcomers Savor Chicken Hawaiian

FUDGE FROSTED BROWNIES make a mighty appealing afternoon snack in the opinion of Laurie and Allison Banks of Arlington Heights. Their mother, Mrs. Ralph P. Banks, uses a mix to make these extra-chocolaty brownies and frosts them with a soft and creamy icing. This and two others of this good cook's recipes for a chicken salad and cranberry mold are featured in the adjoining column.

Meat Is Marinated For Flavor

by LOIS SEILER

A chicken salad served with hot rolls and brownies for dessert is one of Mrs. Ralph P. Banks favorite luncheon menus.

"My children are responsible for naming the salad which I concocted," Mrs. Banks remarked. "They call it Chicken Salad Hawaiian because it contains chunks of pineapple," she smilingly explained.

This good cook marinates cooked chicken in French dressing overnight before combining it with the pineapple, celery and almond chips. Just enough salad dressing is used to hold the salad together, and it is served on lettuce leaves. The flavorful combination of ingredients in this salad makes it extremely tasty luncheon fare.

For her brownies, Mrs. Banks uses Double Fudge Brownie Mix, which is extra chocolaty. She usually doubles the recipe, substituting cream for the water and adding more nuts. She frosts the cake-like brownies with a creamy soft and glossy chocolate fudge frosting.

Another of this capable homemaker's favorite recipes is one which she received from her sister. "The recipe is for an unusual salad used at Krebbs, a famous restaurant in Skaneateles, N.Y.," Mrs. Banks explained. "It is delicious served with fowl, and is particularly nice for Thanksgiving dinner," she added.

CALLED Cranberry Velvet, this smooth salad consists of whole cranberry sauce, crushed pineapple, marshmallow tidbits and whipped cream. It can be frozen in a refrigerator tray or a mold.

The salad is pretty in appearance and has a refreshingly tart flavor which make it appealing any time of the year.

The Banks family moved from Buffalo, N.Y., over two years ago to their home at 722 Mayfair in Arlington Heights. They have three children: Scott, 16, a senior at Arlington High; Laurie, 11, a sixth grader at South Junior High; and Allison, 9, who will enter fifth grade at Dryden.

Mrs. Banks is a member of Circle 5 of the Women's Association of the First Presbyterian Church, the Arlington Heights Book Review Club and the PTA. She is also treasurer of the Cotillion Club and both she and her husband belong to a Sunday night bowling group.

Place chocolate, sugar, milk, salt and shortening in saucepan and bring to a rolling boil, stirring constantly. Boil one minute. Remove from heat and add vanilla.

For Breakfast— Raisin Buttercups

Slices of taste surprising raisinbread are spread with a mustard flavored butter and baked in muffin cups to make these Raisin Buttercups. When toasty, pile them high with creamy scrambled eggs and bacon. They're fun to eat!

During National Sandwich Month make your favorite sandwich with raisinbread. Deviled ham or cream cheese and nuts are especially good fillings. Ofentimes many varieties of raisinbread are available including cinnamon, orange and nut.

RAISIN BUTTERCUPS

1/3 cup butter or margarine, melted
1½ tablespoons prepared mustard
6 slices raisinbread
3 strips bacon
6 eggs
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
Dash pepper

Blend butter and mustard together; brush over inside of 6 large muffin cups. Fit raisinbread slices gently into muffin cups; brush inside each one with remaining mustard-butter. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) until crisp and golden brown, about 15 minutes. Fry bacon until crisp.

Remove bacon and all but one tablespoon drippings from skillet. Beat eggs lightly with milk, salt and pepper. Add egg mixture to hot drippings and cook over medium-low heat, stirring now and then, until eggs are set but still soft.

Sprinkle crumbled bacon over eggs just before they are done. Spoon scrambled eggs into hot raisin toast cups. Makes 6 servings. (SH

French Original— Coeur a la Creme

For generations this French original, Coeur a la Creme, has been a world-famous dessert. The recipe given here is a simplified version as creamy and delicious as the original. Frozen strawberries, just thawed, make a perfect sauce for the delicately textured "heart of cream."

Despite its elegance, Coeur a la Creme is easy to make and requires very little last-minute preparations, a virtue greatly to be desired in a company dessert.

COEUR A LA CREME

2 teaspoons gelatin
3 tablespoons cold water
1 pound (2 cups) cottage cheese
2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese
1 cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
3 packages (10 ounces each) frozen strawberry halves, thawed

Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat over hot water until dissolved. Put cottage cheese through a fine sieve. Soften cream cheese; add cream gradually, blending well. Add sugar and the cottage cheese. Stir in dissolved gelatin.

Spoon into 1-quart mold (heart-shaped, if desired) or 8 to 10 individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serve topped with the strawberry halves. Makes 3¾ cups, enough for 10 servings.

Week's Best Food Values

Consumer resistance to advancing food prices has become apparent, according to the University of Illinois Consumer Service.

For the week of July 22-27, beef and lamb costs are dropping, with promotion of beef resuming at low profit margin. Pork costs are currently high and bacon prices have jumped. Poultry meats are in good supply; fryers cost less.

EGG COSTS are rising but the retail price is unchanged. Rain and hot weather tend to maintain higher produce costs.

Strawberries, melons and peaches cost more. The vegetable outlook is improved except for corn, tomatoes and lettuce.

CHICAGO AREA food values include: meats - beef chuck roasts, round and sirloin steak, rib roasts, ground beef, pork picnics, lamb chops and steaks; poultry - fryers; produce - grapes, blueberries, plums, bananas, cucumbers, peppers, green beans, cabbage, celery and yams. (SH

New Ideas Serving 'Franks'

July is an ideal time for observing National Hot Dog Month. When the sunny outdoors beckons, who feels like spending much time in the kitchen? Here's where the simple hot dog fits in so nicely.

Call them hot dogs, franks, frankfurters, wieners — this ready-to-serve meat has been with us since its origin over a hundred years ago in Frankfurt, Germany. Since then, its popularity has multiplied vastly until the present, when we eat an average of over 60 frankfurters per person every year.

MANY EXCITING ways of serving the hot dog have been discovered, states meat recipe expert Reba Staggs. Why not collect a few ideas this month to vary your quick meals?

For example, Chili Topped Franks combine chopped onion and a can of chili with beans for spreading over slit frankfurters on buns. Grated cheese goes on top, and the open-face sandwiches are ready after 10 to 12 minutes in the oven.

CHILLI TOPPED FRANKS

6 frankfurters
6 frankfurter buns
1 can (1 pound 4 ounces) chili with beans
¼ cup chopped onion
1/3 cup grated cheddar cheese

Cut frankfurters and buns, lengthwise, almost through. Place buns, cut side up, in a 12 by 9-inch baking pan. Place frankfurters, cut side up, on buns. Combine chili and onion and spoon over frankfurters. Sprinkle with grated cheese.

Bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees) 10 to 12 minutes, or until frankfurters are heated through and cheese is melted; 4 to 6 servings. (SH

Kerner Hails New Aid Dept.

The recent General Assembly took a positive step when it voted to abolish the Illinois Public Aid Commission (IPAC) and replace it with a cabinet-level department under the Governor's Office.

The proposal to focus responsibility for the administration of the public assistance program was first advanced a dozen years ago by the bipartisan Commission to Study State Government. I made a similar recommendation two years ago. The legislature in its recent session saw fit to adopt that recommendation ("Relief and Politics" editorial July 18).

There has been unanimous agreement that the IPAC members, on their own time and without pay, have done an outstanding job. But the aid program reached such a magnitude that the commission format was no longer adequate.

PUBLIC AID accounts for about one-fifth of the states budget. It was inconceivable that an agency which handles such a large portion of the state's business should be removed from the governor's direct line of responsibility.

Administrative responsibility is difficult to place when such administration is by a commission. The aid program has often been controversial. The result has been that frustrated critics, unable to pin blame elsewhere, have sometimes wound up badgering unfortunate and relatively helpless recipients.

Under the new administrative structure there is that direct responsibility. In addition, policy questions can be resolved more quickly. Under the former system many critical matters had to wait many days, until the commission's regular monthly meeting, for decisions.

THE NEW public aid department is another of the policies adopted under this administration designed to cope with public aid. I have reported previously on our stepped-up efforts to reduce the workload of caseworkers, expand retraining and vocational education for recipients and impose additional safeguards on unnecessary expenditures.

This positive approach has resulted in a reversal of the tide of public aid payments. The new department should allow an even more effective approach to this serious problem.

Gov. Otto Kerner

Resident Urges Firsthand View

In relation to the many uncomplimentary words savored against our community Arlington Heights Garden Homesites: We did not move into this area to annoy you! We are not homesteaders moving in on your territory! We chose this locale because we like it and feel this is where we would like to raise our children. As ordinary tax-paying citizens we want the same things out of life as you do. Namely, a good education for our children, a clean, safe place for them to play, and a comfortable clean home to live in.

Like anywhere else, there are certain problems in starting a new community, but I personally feel, as you must, that this is no reflection on the people living there. They will be resolved in time. There must certainly be a lot of things you would like to change or improve in your own surroundings.

WE PERSONALLY invite you one and all to ride through our streets and see for yourself what we have accomplished in just one year's time. You will not find garbage and clutter in our streets and yards. Instead you will find many nice lawns and beautiful gardens. Corny as it might sound, Rome was not built in a day, and trees and shrubs do not bloom over night.

You will not find dirty and unkept homes, but people striving whenever they can and in every spare moment to build garages, cement their walks and beautify their landscaping.

GRANTED, WE have our eyesores, but don't you also have a few places you're not so proud of?

So before anyone else passes judgment on us or our children attending your schools, please come out and see for yourself.

Eva Kook
Arlington Heights

P.S. I have taken it upon myself to express the views of our community.

Lions Anticipate Another Success

The Mount Prospect Lions Club gratefully acknowledges with thanks the splendid cooperation and help of the community officers, Paddock Publications, Downtown Business Mens' Association, Chamber of Commerce, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mount Prospect Park District, Beauty Contest Committee and the local residents who made our annual Village Fair an overwhelming success in conjunction with the "Five Wonderful Days in Mount Prospect" celebration over the Fourth of July weekend.

The lucky winner of the Chevrolet Convertible was Fred Buhrke, whose winning ticket was drawn from the drum by Miss Mount Prospect, in person, at the fair grounds.

THE FIRST order of business at our board meeting was to present the Hadley School For the Blind a check for $1000 of the fair funds to initiate an orientation course for young blind students so that they may be able to travel and move in society by themselves.

Plans were also approved to assist the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organizations, Wheeling, who will take care of blind and partially blind students from 15 different districts from Waukegan to Crystal Lake and Wilmette to Schaumburg. They are in great need of Brailling and recording supplies and materials, special writers and texts in order to carry on their splendid program.

In view of the wonderful acceptance of the community this year, the Mount Prospect Lions Club looks forward to a greater Village Fair in 1964 and plans are already in the making.

In view of the fact that the beauty contest would not be possible without the Lions Club assuming its obligations, I think it is only fair that the Lions Club gets a little space in your publications now and then.

JUST FOR the record:

The original donation for the brochure of $150, started it rolling.

Chaperon paid by Lions, check for $75.

Aurora Hilton Hotel bill paid, $100.

Silver compacts for contestants by Lions, $84.50.

Kirkeby's Fashions trousseau for winner, Lions check for $300.

Flowers for winner, Lions check $10 and other miscellaneous bills and dinners at coutry club.

The decision to finance was made at joint meeting by Lynn Huffman, Ray Winfield and myself when no one else wanted the responsibility.

We have received one check from the village for $200.

Al Hengl, President
Mount Prospect Lions Club

News Coverage Change Piques

For the past eight or nine weeks, we have received the Elk Grove news in the front section of the Cook County Herald. I'd like to know what connection there is between Elk Grove Village and a Northbrook area resident? It's bad enough to read a Democratic paper that prints only one sided stories, but to be subjected to news of a village in which you know no one, and what's more, care less about, is too much.

Either send me the news of Wheeling in the front section, or cancel my subscription.

The Fence Post — Letters to the Editor

Itascan Is 'Bewildered' By Empty Rooms, Pay Hike

I am a bewildered and wondering Itasca — bewildered and wondering about the following:

1. Three empty classrooms in Washington School and the new Franzen School to open in September, 1963. Just how pressed for classrooms were we?

2. Mr. Rusche asks for a raise in salary — $11,000 plus not big enough for the job he does?

3. Mr. Rusche expects taxpayers to foot his tuition bills to the tune of $720.

4. Mr. Rusche is readying himself for another position.

5. Last, but not least, and this is the straw that broke the camel's back — teachers who are lowest paid on the salary ladder 'do not suffer' as much as he — says Mr. Rusche himself!

6. Evidence of the lack of good judgment and common sense in Mr. Peacock's responses in a recent article. A sage — if I ever saw one!

There must be many other Itascans who feel the same as I do. The only difference is they don't take the time nor trouble to pick up their pens and voice their disapproval.

I REPEAT — there is no sign of judgment nor common sense in the Board's activities. They go headlong into debt — propose new buildings no less — and feel that the taxpayer should accept any and everything they do propose.

Too bad we don't have people in these jobs who show judgment and are able to think through before innocent and already overburdened taxpayers have to foot bills for projects that we find were not so necessary after all!

Wondering
Itasca

Jackson Drive Problem Detailed

We on Jackson Drive are desperate in complaining about the condition of our short road in this Arlington Heights unincorporated Area.

Recently the undercarriage of an automobile belonging to one of our residents was damaged while trying to miss the numerous, deep chuck-holes in our road. A few days later a young boy was thrown from a bicycle and taken by ambulance to the hospital when his bicycle struck one of the holes in our road. Drivers of autos are required to swerve from both sides of the road to avoid tire damage, and they drive into edges of the ditches and close to mailboxes to avoid some of the 6 inch deep and 4-6 feet wide broken-topped surfaces.

When two of our residents attended a County meeting and complained in person about these road conditions, we were promised aid. The very next morning our road-sides were mowed by a County machine and operator. Now, we all know that chuck-holes filled up with grass do not make a better road!!!

So where do we go next for some definite results???

Mrs. H. Haar

'Responsible' Press Praised

"The Hidden City" series by Dick Hoffmann and Larry Cameron is more than an exemplary piece of good writing and first-rate photojournalism. It represents an attempt to broaden the horizons of readers by conveying to them something of the essence of a life and community that they would not not ordinary see.

But this is in keeping with the policies of the Paddock papers. Most suburban weeklies concern themselves only with run-of-the-mill local happenings, on the theory that their own readers care only to read their own names in the news, see their own images reflected week after week in a cheap mirror. The Paddock papers reach far beyond this limited approach. They concern themselves with events in Springfield, Chicago and government at all levels. They hold up a mirror to our times.

THIS FORMULA, which cuts against the grain of current practice, appears to have proved to be successful, judging from the fat advertising lineage. I am glad to see it. It illustrates that the readers of the Paddock chain of papers are not concerned only with themselves, but—as "The Hidden City" series indicates—with their fellow man.

Implicit in "The Hidden City" is the statement that, wherever we live, in city or suburb, tenement or townhouse, we share a common lot as a metropolitan area, as a people, as a nation, as members of one world and one human family. It is journalism of this most responsible and exceptional sort that gives us the view of the world around us. The Paddock papers are to be congratulated for this continuing contribution to community life.

Mr. Merchant

You're in good condition. Fine!

But what about the condition of your advertising program?

Does it have authentic circulation? Or is it being tossed into the garbage can, almost as soon as it reaches the door?

Advertisers know what they're getting when they buy readership in Paddock Publications — circulation that's paid for by the home owner because it's wanted, not wasted, in the home, with payments audited by the nationally-recognized Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Does it have IMPACT? Does it have vitality, originality, a freshness that appeals to the buying suburbanite? Paddock Publications has its highly trained advertising representatives on hand to work with you in preparation of your copy. Paddock also has its crew of experienced artists, compositors and pressmen to insure top readership of your message.

Perhaps you are already relying upon Paddock Publications to carry your message to the northwest area shoppers. Fine, we hope we continue to merit your support. But if you have been resting from today's ever-present merchandising problems, living on past reputation only, now's the time to take stock of your advertising program and gear for the future. Call on Paddock Publications for help.

In Appreciation

CARD OF THANKS

Our recent bereavement leaves us with grateful hearts toward neighbors and friends. Your helpfulness and comforting expressions of sympathy will always be remembered.
The family of
Donald E. Asay

OFTEN MISUSED

Distinguish between DESIRABLE (applied to that which one may well desire) and DESIROUS (applied to one who feels desire). Thus: "She was a desirable woman, and he was desirous of marrying her."

Do not say, "If either of the men want to go, tell them to talk to me." There are THREE errors in this statement. Say, "If either of the men WANTS to go, tell HIM to talk WITH me."

Do not say, "Not one in a dozen girls have ever taken me serious." Say, "HAS ever taken me SERIOUSLY." "One" is the singular subject.

Office Equipment

than a bunch of dust catchers taking up valuable storage space around your home?

Take the attic, for instance. There's that old chair . . . still sturdy, but never used any more . . .

and the stove you replaced years ago . . .

and the trunk Dad took to college . . .

and Junior's old typewriter . . .

wash tubs you haven't used since you got your automatic . . .

the bicycle no one has ridden in ages . . .

and the radio that hasn't been turned on since TV.

There's probably a lot more, too . . . all of it in good condition . . .

"But who wants it?" you say!

Someone does want it . . . and they're looking for it in Paddock Publications Want Ads.
